Remembering 'The Forgotten War' On Its 60th Anniversary

38 Local Servicemen Made The Supreme Sacrifice In Korea

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

In the August 1, 1996 issue of The Quincy Sun, one of the front page headlines read "The Forgotten War Is No Longer Forgotten."

The article referred to the creation of the Korean War Veterans Memorial at the corner of Hancock Street and what was then Southern Artery, now Merrymount Parkway.

On June 25, 2010 ceremonies were held at that Memorial to mark the 60th anniversary of the onset of the Korean War, a conflict which lasted just over three years, and in which, as marked on the memorial, 38 Quincy servicemen gave their lives.

The ceremonial placing of the wreath at the Memorial was by Sonny Joyce and William Corcoran, veterans of the Korean War and members of the Morrisette American Legion Post.

Upon the impressive memorial, made of a glossy black granite, are etched the names of the 38 Quincy heroes who were lost in the war, as well as the following wartime statistics: Wounded: 103, 28, POW: 7,000, Died: 54,247, MIA: 8,177.

Inscriptions read: "FREEDOM IS NOT FREE" and "IN REMEMBRANCE OF THOSE WHO DID NOT RETURN AND IN document this summer.

"This letter is an invaluable part of our history as a City and as a community, and it is reassuring to know that it is now fully preserved and protected for future generations," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "We are brainstorming ideas now on the most appropriate public display."

City Clerk Joseph Shea, the City's official keeper of records, advised that the letter be sent to the Brown's River Marotti Preservation Company of Essex, Vermont, where the City has sent volumes of historic vital records over the last several years using funding from the Community Preservation Act. The total bill to restore the letter was a little more than $500.

"They did a remarkable job on the letter, as they have done on the many documents and vital records we have sent them as part of this process to preserve all of our historic documents in the City," Shea said.

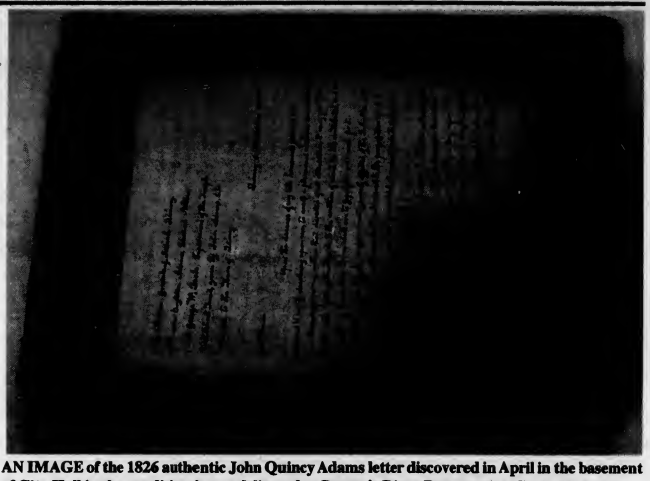
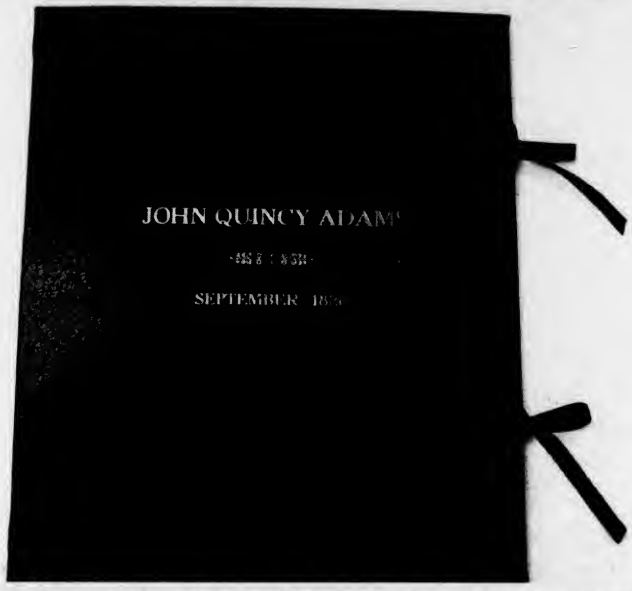
The letter, written in 1826, was hidden in a bound volume of City records for decades. As part of the preservation process, the letter was removed from the bound volume, and adhesives used to secure the letter in the book were painstakingly removed. The original adhesive seals were replaced onto the letter as part of the restoration process, but other stickers believed to be placed on the letter in the early 20th Century were removed entirely.



The letter was put through a "humidification" process, which made removing the adhesives possible and also allowed preservationists to flatten out wrinkles and other imperfections caused by the letter's age. The letter was then placed in an air-tight sealed covering to protect it for the future, and returned to the City in a hand-crafted binder.

The letter was penned just months after the death of John Quincy Adams' father, founder and former President John Adams, and lays out in detail the President's wishes for the permanent burial of his father at the First Parish Church in Quincy Center.



"I have considered it a duty devolving upon me to erect a plain and modest monument to his memory; and my wish is that divested of all ostentation it may yet be as durable as the walls of the Temple to the erection of which he has contributed," Quincy Adams states in the letter.

"I have many reasons for desiring that this may be undertaken without delay and among the rest that both my parents may not remain for an indefinite time without a stone to tell where they lie," he continued.

The instructions in the letter were followed by the Church, where Adams, Abigail Adams and John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams remain buried today. The temple is now a national historical landmark.

AN IMAGE of the 1826 authentic John Quincy Adams letter discovered in April in the basement of City Hall in the condition it was delivered to Brown's River Preservation Co. in Vermont.

Declaration Of Independence Re-Enactment Sunday

A re-enactment of the passage of the Declaration of Independence at the Second Continental Congress will be held Sunday, July 4 at 12 noon and again at 3 p.m. in the Carriage House, located on the grounds of the Old House at Peace field, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

Participants may assume the roles of the delegates to the Second Continental Congress and engage in a debate that will culminate in the adoption of the Declaration of Independence and the signing of the historic document.

The interactive and engaging event is an invitation to adults and children to take part in the momentous event that John Adams recalled as the "great anniversary festival" that will be celebrated by "bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other from this time forward forever more."

Following both sessions, the Declaration of Independence will be read aloud by members of the audience.

Seating is limited at both sessions, but every delegate or his "advisor" who attends will be able to participate in the debate.

The program is scheduled to be repeated July 20.

While you may not know its name, you may already be familiar with a ring style that is one of the hottest current trends in women's jewelry. Those Marquise-style, boat-shaped rings that are so decidedly feminine are called "navette" rings. The word "navette" is a French word that means "little boat." As for the rings that draw their inspiration from this elegant shape, they have been favored since Victorian times for their ability to visually elongate the wearers' fingers. This timeless style is often characterized by settings with multiple precious gemstones, which further add to the navette ring's appeal. Those who fancy rings would do well to add this jeweled adornment to their collections.
Our customers choose rings and other fine jewelry because our pieces make a personal statement about them. The fashion conscious people who come to us do so because they don't want to look just like their friends—they want to express their own unique, individual style. Quincy Mothers Sound Alert On Drug Dangers At Opioid Conference

FOUR QUINCY LEADERS (from left) Dr. John Franceschini, Department Head of Health and Physical Education for Quincy Public Schools; Lt. Patrick Glynn, Quincy Police Drug Unit; Alejandro Rivera, Program Director, Impact Quincy and Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan are all on the front lines in dealing with problems due to both illegal and prescription drugs.

Two Quincy mothers delivered frightening reports on drug abuse at last week's Opioid Conference as they described the heartbreak, wreckage and perpetual hope that trails them in the wake of their sons' addiction to drugs stolen from their medicine cabinets and from street dealers.

Related Story Page 11

The conference sponsored by Impact Quincy, a program of Bay State Community Services (BSCS), and held at Granite Links Golf Course, offered observers from all over the state an opportunity to learn of new directions, failures and successes, such as the Narcan program, in dealing with drug abuse problems in their communities.

Many of the 125 listeners stifled tears or cleared their throats as one panelist described the downward spiral of her son from promising student and athlete at Boston College High School to encounters with near-death, a homeless shelter and, now, institutional commitment. The young man is still only 24 and in treatment.

The two mothers, Nancy Holler and Kathy Deady, brought real flesh and blood images to the statistics presented earlier that day at the conference and testified to the life-saving benefit of Narcan.

Holler described the son who'd sailed through Milton Academy and three years of BC High before being hooked on drugs, starting with drugs stolen from her husband's painkillers for a degenerative disc.

Neither she nor her husband knew what was happening to the boy who had been offered early college admission and had been scouted by college baseball coaches in his junior year of high school.

After the problem escalated, he had to leave the family for the sake of his two little sisters.

"Six months earlier, he was going to graduate from BC High and now I was bringing him to a homeless shelter," said Holler.

Speakers addressed family denial, the need for education, the escalating dangers of prescription drugs and the need for treatment as well as the success of Narcan in saving lives.

Holler said that, at one point, her son collapsed, had no heartbeat and was not breathing when medics applied Narcan and, within minutes, he was revived, breathing with a heartbeat. He was subsequently com-

Furloughs Close City Offices Early Fridays

Cost-saving furloughs accepted by a pair of City unions will begin this week and will require that City Hall and other government offices close at 3:30 p.m. on Fridays throughout the fiscal year.

The Quincy Public Employees Association and SEIU Local 888 agreed to accept reduce their paid hours by roughly an hour every week as part of an agreement with Mayor Thomas Koch that will save about $200,000 in wage costs.

The two unions represent most office staff members at City Hall and other departments, including Inspectional Services and the Department of Public Works at 55 Sea Street and the Health Department at the Kennedy Center on East Squantum Street.

The furlough program was developed with a formula that will essentially mean that the roughly 150 workers in both unions will not receive raises included in their contract. The furlough agreement was developed as an alternative to wage deferrals accepted by several unions over the last two years.

The two City Hall unions and the two unions representing police officers have made wage concessions in both of the last two fiscal years in an effort to save jobs.

"All of our workers have made sacrifices, and these groups have done so two consecutive years, which is a substantial recognition of the times we face.

"I am grateful for the cooperation of all of our city employees as we continue to work through the challenges facing Quincy and the Commonwealth," Koch said.

Adams And Jefferson Dramatization July 4

A dramatization of the remarkable friendship of two Founding Fathers and Presidents of the United States – John Adams and Thomas Jefferson – will be held Sunday, July 4 at 7 p.m. at Beale Estate, 181 Adams St., Quincy.

The event is free and open to the public. It will take place under the tent on the lawn at the Beale Estate.

Park on the street. Bring a lawn chair.

Abigail Adams played a major role in the relationship between these often conflicted and contentious personalities. In a fast-paced series of encounters, the turbulent relationship between Thomas Jefferson (Colonial Williamsburg interpreter Bill Barker) and John Adams (veteran actor Sam Goodyear) ignites, flourishes, ruptures, and resolves itself.

The perceptive Abigail (Colonial Williamsburg interpreter Abigail Schumann) acts as a catalyst and motivator of the actions and reactions of these two dynamic personalities, and continues to maintain and defend her own beliefs.

The play spans 50 years of this long-lived and enlightened friendship.

A Day Of Irony

July 4th, you could say, is a day of irony in American history.

America was born on July 4th, 1776 and the two men who played major roles in that historic event also died on July 4th – 50 years later.

This Sunday marks the 234th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence – America's birth certificate – and the 183rd anniversary of the death of two main architects-Thomas Jefferson and our own John Adams.

ADAMS

Adams, like Jefferson, was a super patriot.

Certainly a much better patriot than he was a prognosticator. He predicted July 2nd-not July 4th-would be celebrated through the years as America's birth date.

Adams made that erroneous prediction in a letter to Abigail Adams dated July 2, 1776. In the letter sent from Philadelphia to Abigail here in Quincy, he declared:

"The second day of July, 1776 will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America."

The man, who would become second president after George Washington, thought this because the Declaration of Independence was adopted by 12 states on July 2. But, it wasn't signed by anyone until July 4.

HANCOCK

And, only two of the 55 signers actually affixed their signatures on July 4th. One was Quincy-born John Hancock, who as President of the Second Continental Congress, was the first to sign.

Most of the others signed the precious document Aug. 2. But six signed after that. And Thomas McKean of Delaware didn't get around to it until five years later.

Jefferson and Hancock usually get top billing in history books when it comes to the Declaration of Independence. Jefferson as its author and Hancock as its first signer.

Hancock's signature-bold and with a fancy flourish so "King George III can see it without his spectacles" probably is the most famous autograph in this country's history.

But Adams played a key, if not as glamorous a role, in putting the Declaration together and getting it adopted.

Jefferson himself acknowledged that when he praised Adams as "...the most efficient agent in procuring a public Declaration of Independence."

And then that ironic day-July 4th, 1826 – the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence when both Adams and Jefferson died.

Adams was stricken here in Quincy in his favorite wing chair in his second floor study at the Adams mansion, on Adams Street. Known as the Old House, this was the home of four generations of the illustrious Adams family and the summer White House of the second president and his son, John Quincy Adams, the sixth president.

Adams and Jefferson, once close allies, had a falling out but reconciled in later years through the efforts of Abigail as a peacemaker.

Among Adams' last words as he lay dying were "Jefferson survives."

He thought Jefferson had outlived him. But actually Jefferson had died earlier that same day at Monticello in Virginia at age 83.

News traveled slowly in those days, long before radio and television. There were no such things as instant news bulletins.

If there were, just imagine the flurry all day as the media-especially cable TV-staked out the Adams Mansion here and Monticello in Virginia.

ABIGAIL

Adams was just three months and 15 days from his 91st birthday. He survived Abigail, his wife of 54 years, by eight years.

But he had lived to see his son, John Quincy Adams, become president in 1825.

The latter was in Washington when his father died and did not know of his death until several days later.

Abigail, the first woman to be the wife of one U.S. president and the mother of a second never knew that second honor.

Four days before he died, Adams was asked to give a 50th anniversary July 4th toast to his fellow Quincy residents. The old man replied:

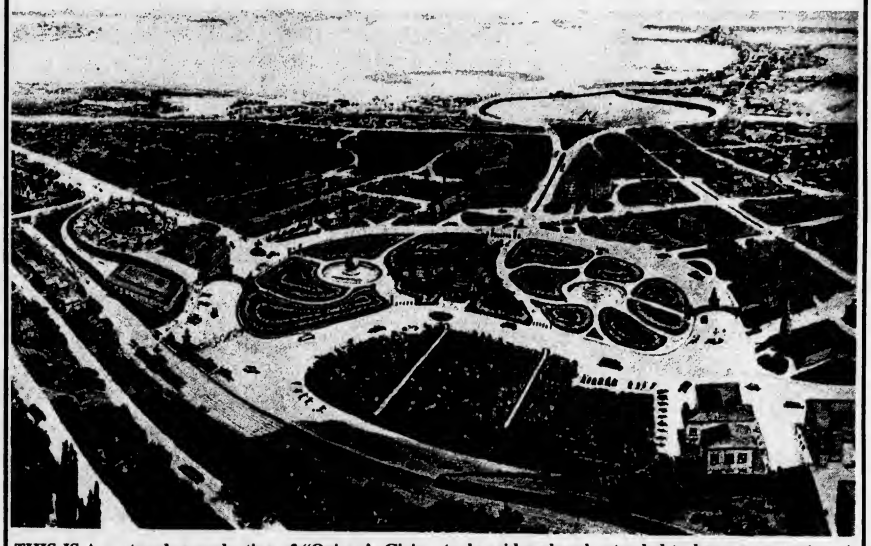
"I will give you independence forever."

Asked if he would like to add to that, he declared, "Not a syllable."

"Independence forever" – those words to remember and cherish.

If you've never been to the Adams Mansion – (Old House) – you've been missing a visitor's treat.

The Mansion has been under the supervision of the U.S. National Park Service since 1979 and is part of the Adams National Historic Park.



The late Willhelmina, as superintendent, gave the Old House her personal loving care. Present Supt. Marianne Peak has carried on that tradition.

They have kept the house in a "lived in appearance."

Strolling the beautiful rooms, you get the feeling that John and Abigail are out for a little walk and will be right back.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A postcard reproduction of "Quincy's Civic Center in 2025," a vision 100 years into the future as presented 85 years ago by the Quincy City Planning Board to Mayor Perley Barbour in 1925. It was the board's contribution to the history of the City's Tercentenary Celebration that year. This bird's eye view is looking east with the First Parish Church in the center. The foresighted vision was a precursor to today's proposed Adams Green except the old City Hall is missing. It was planned to replace it with a new City Hall on the corner of Spear and Coddington Streets as can be seen here. That never happened, of course, and that is now the site of the Bethany Church, which was then located at the lower right, now the site of the Bank of America building. The large building in the lower right was the then new Mount Wollaston Bank building, now the site of the Stop and Shop headquarters. Foster Street and Cottage Avenue as show here on the upper right were planned to be widened and extended to become an east-west connector between Hancock and Washington Streets and beyond to the new Southern Artery just being built, diverting traffic from the Center. It was the beginnings of an idea finally coming to fruition today just a little further to the right of this view. In the distance, beyond all the open space and pedestrian friendly greenways, there was envisioned a large coliseum style stadium with a running track on Faxon Field next to the high school that was also just built. The Adams Academy building is on the far upper left. Many other of today's landmarks are also discernible. Note the steam-powered railroad train approaching the side-by-side Quincy Center stations; diesel at the time had only limited use. But, the two cast-iron pedestrian overpasses were forerunners to those that are now in Las Vegas. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

In 2009, this tournament raised over $38,700 to support the groundbreaking work of Dana-Farber's doctors and researchers.

This year marks the 28th year of Jimmy Fund Golf, one of the country's largest golf programs for charity. From traditional golf tournaments and country club member events to mini-golf tournaments and all day golf marathons, volunteers create golf fundraisers that combine their love of the sport with their desire to support the fight against cancer. Each event is an incredibly rewarding and fun way to support a great cause!

The Dana-Farber Leadership Council Golf Tournament was one of the many golf tournaments that will be held in 2010 to raise funds for the Jimmy Fund and Dana-Farber. American Airlines, Callaway Golf, Dunkin' Donuts, Forty Seven Brand, the International Golf Club, and GateHouse Media New England are the presenting sponsors of Jimmy Fund Golf. Nearly $74 million has been raised by these dedicated volunteers and sponsors since 1983.

Special Election For Cerasoli Rep. Seat

This Week

By FRANK McCAULEY

A special election will be called in October to fill the vacancy created when Robert Cerasoli was named the state's new Inspector General.

Cerasoli, 43, Quincy Democrat, who represented the Third Norfolk District for 18 years, was unanimously selected Inspector General from 109 applicants by Gov. William Weld, Attorney General Scott Harshbarger and Auditor Joseph DeNucci.

He replaces Joseph Barresi who retired last week after 10 years in office. State law limits the term to two five-year terms.

Based on the number of inquiries regarding Cerasoli's seat since his appointment, City Clerk John M. Gillis said the special election should generate considerable interest in Quincy and Weymouth.

Some names mentioned include Councillor Daniel Raymondi, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, Bruce Tobin, brother of Rep. Steve Tobin and School Committee Member Ron Mariano.

QUINCY HOSPITAL AWARDED $108,799 GRANT FROM THE STATE

Quincy Hospital has been awarded a $108,799 grant from the Massachusetts Executive Office of Human Services for career advancement and education toward professional certification in medical library science.

The proposal was submitted by Quincy Hospital's Department of Human Resources. The program will provide an opportunity for laboratory personnel to enhance their skills through courses at Northeastern University.

Join us for some back yard stories and make your own simple bird feeder. This program is for children ages 4-8. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Animal World Experience

On Monday, July 19th 2:30 p.m. at the Wollaston Branch Library.

Imagine if there was a way for your backyard to benefit wildlife while still being beautiful and functional for you.

There is!

In this second intriguing and interactive program from Animal World Experience learn why animals have such a hard time surviving in the average backyard.

Meet live animals such as a corn snake, millipede and tree frog that may live in your backyard. Explore many ways to help them including how to make a birdhouse out of recycled materials.

This program will take place in Wollaston Branch Library's own backyard, weather permitting. Please note this is NOT a petting zoo program - not everyone will get a chance to touch the animals.

This program is for children ages 4 and older. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Craft: Hanging Planter

On Thursday, July 22nd at 2 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library.

Come join us for a fun craft project this summer. Using recycled materials create a one of a kind planter that can be used indoors or outdoors for your favorite plant.

Registration is required. This program is for children ages 7-10. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

On Wednesday, Aug. 18th at 6:30 p.m. we will be holding our 3rd Annual Summer Talent Show. Do you sing, dance, play an instrument or have another talent you would like to demonstrate? If you are between the ages of 4 and 13 you are invited to perform.

You must sign up in advance and space is limited so that each person will have enough time to perform. Stop by or call the children's room at 617-376-2411 to sign up.

There is no online registration for this very special program as we will have some questions for you about your act.

'Paddle For The Environment' At Blacks Creek July 17

The Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) will hold its second annual canoe and kayak race fundraiser, Paddle for the Environment on Saturday, July 17 beginning at noon.

This is an exciting event for families and outdoor enthusiasts in which teams compete in boating races on Black's Creek. The day also includes music, free activities for kids, a cookout, and lots of fun.

"We are an all volunteer organization with a great record of success on a very small annual budget" said QEN founder and spokesperson, Steve Perdios.

"We have spearheaded numerous initiatives to preserve open space, reduce the carbon footprint of our municipality, and raise awareness of sustainable living. This event not only helps keep us going, it highlights one of Quincy's environmental jewels: Black's Creek."

Individuals and businesses are encouraged to participate. The registration fee is just $20 per person and includes lunch. Participants can race individually in the kayak event or joins teams for relay races. Previous boating expertise is not necessary and boats and equipment will be provided by the Quincy Recreation Department. Racers can provide their own boat if they prefer.

"We appreciated the support from the Quincy Recreation Department" continued Perdios. "They have a wonderful, affordable boating program for all ages and we hope the Paddle will encourage Quincy residents to use this terrific resource".

To join a race or for more information call Gail M. Macdonald at 617-599-4119 or go to www.qenet.org.

Afghanistan Drawings Exhibit At Crane Public Library

Kyle David Lindholm will exhibit sketches, drawings, and prints from his 2007 and 2008 visits to Afghanistan from today (Thursday) through July 29 in the Coletti Reading Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

A public reception will be held Thursday, July 8 from 6 to 7 p.m.

Lindholm, an illustrator and cartoonist, traveled to Afghanistan to record a country at war. His eyewitness sketches capture glimpses of life beyond the frontlines of the U.S. occupation in cities like Kabul and Jalalabad.

According to Lindholm, "These are not necessarily drawings of our war in Afghanistan. Nor is conflict necessarily the subject. The work illustrates a visual record of what I saw, one drawing at a time. Whether sketching cautiously along the roadside, or making observations through the bullet resistant glass of my SUV, or just perched on my belly upon a rooftop with sketchbook in hand, Afghanistan never failed to provide rich and complex subject matter."

Lindholm earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Works on Paper from the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. He lives in Boston and currently teaches drawing and illustration in Brookline.

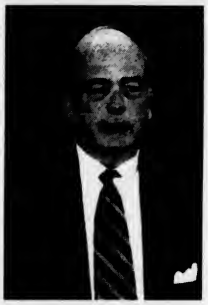
Holds U.S. Senate Seat Once Held By 6th U.S. President

Sen. Brown To Speak At JQA Birth Wreath Laying Ceremony July 9

The annual White House wreath-laying ceremony commemorating the birth of President John Quincy Adams will be held July 9, and this year's program will feature remarks by the Massachusetts native who now holds Adams' former U.S. Senate seat: U.S. Senator Scott Brown.

To be held at noon Friday, July 9 at Quincy's United First Parish Church – where both John Adams and John Quincy Adams are interred alongside their wives – the formal wreath-laying ceremony will also feature remarks by direct Adams descendant Peter Boylston Adams, Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, and Caroline Keinath, deputy superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park.



A military honor guard under the direction of Commander David Hagen of the U.S. Navy Operational Support Center in Quincy will formally present the White House wreath during the ceremony, which will also feature musical performances.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Minister, said, "As we honor John Quincy Adams as the sixth President of the United States, we also honor his life-long and devoted public service as as a statesman and legislator.

"We especially honor his

SEN. SCOTT BROWN

PETER BOYLSTON ADAMS

courageous and principled stand against slavery in the House of Representatives.

"This church was important to the Adams Presidents and their families. United First Parish Church (Unitarian) in Quincy stands today for the principles of democratic government, free expression of thought, and the worth, dignity, and full equality of every person," Bennett added.

Arthur Ducharme, director of United First Parish Church's Historic Interpretive Program, said this year's ceremony will be the first wreath-laying ceremony to feature a sitting U.S. Senator as speaker. Noting that John Quincy Adams had once served as one of Massachusetts two U.S. Senators, Ducharme said, "We are pleased, therefore, that Sen. Brown is able to join us to help recognize the service and accomplishments of John Quincy Adams."

In the 1960s, President Lyndon Johnson began the tradition of sending a large red, white and blue wreath from the White House to be placed on the graves of deceased U.S. presidents on their birthday anniversaries. John Quincy Adams was born on July 11, 1767. Because his birthday falls on Sunday this year, the White House is sending the wreath for presentation on July 9.

State Sen. Robert Hedlund, who hosts a radio program on WATD, also will be present to record portions of the ceremony for later broadcast.

Following the ceremony – which is free and open to the public – the presidents' crypt will be open for tours.

United First Parish Church is located at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, directly across the street from the Quincy Center MBTA station.

Parking is available in the Presidents Place parking garage located at 1250 Hancock St.

Fireworks: Safety, Illegality

There was a press conference recently, held at Houghton's Pond in Milton with the State Fire Marshal in attendance as well as representatives from various other agencies. It's these agencies I want to highlight here while suggesting a reason for their attendance.

The State Fire Marshal's Office is leading the way in an initiative to proactively convey the message of safety and the illegality of using fireworks within the Commonwealth. Their program is entitled, "Be Smart! Leave the Fireworks to the Professionals", while it encourages attendance at supervised fireworks displays rather than their illegal use by those incapable of using them safely. In fact should you need a listing of upcoming legal displays, access the Fire Marshal's website at Mass. Department of Fire Services.

The president of the Fire Chief's Association was there since there were 715 major fires and explosions between the years 2000 and 2009 involving illegal fireworks causing 1 fire death, 10 civilian injuries, 8 fire service injuries and an estimated dollar loss of 1.5 million dollars. Is being responsible for an illegal display worth that burden?

A representative of Brigham and Women's Hospital was in attendance where records throughout this country and state are loaded with incidents of those needing medical attention from burns and other injuries suffered from fireworks. Typically, 67% of the victims are children under the age of 18; 29% are children under 14 years of age. Do you want to embrace that responsibility?

A Fire Prevention Association representative, along with other code enforcers from other communities were there to support and plea their case for a safe Fourth of July, 2010. The message being, the possession and use of all fireworks by private citizens is illegal in Massachusetts. This includes Class C fireworks which are sometimes falsely called, "safe and sane" such as sparklers, party poppers, snappers, firecrackers, cherry bombs, to name a few. Sparklers alone burn at 1800 degrees Fahrenheit.

Illegal, unsupervised fireworks can lead to circumstances no one can anticipate, while they can be avoided. I am certain that those involved in prior incidents did not consider the consequences of their actions. The regrets occur after the damage is done.

The precautions associated with a professional display alone are extensive. Even then, considering the crowds and nature of explosives, we must trust in the wisdom of code and the professionalism of those certified to conduct the display.

Don't take a chance with illegal fireworks. Enjoy your holiday while celebrating it without a regrettable outcome. Leave fireworks to the professionals. Thank you for doing so!

Speakers: City Confronting Problem Head On

Mayor, City Honored For Leadership On Drug Issues

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Denial, even by state and city officials, is a major obstacle in easing the problems of drug abuse, according to speakers at The Opioid Conference held last week at Granite Links Golf Club. That's not the case in Quincy under Mayor Thomas Koch's leadership where drug abuse is being faced head-on, according to the speakers.

"Quincy has recognized there is a problem here," said William Spinks, Director, Bay State Community Services, Inc. (BSCS) who presented Koch with the BSCS Visionary Award for his leadership on drug abuse issues.

"You could have left it lurking in the shadows. Instead you formed the Substance Abuse Task Force," said Ken Tarabelli, President and CEO.

Project Impact, a program of BSCS headed by Alejandro Rivera, sponsored the conference.

"I would hold up Quincy (as an example) to other communities," said Commissioner John Auerbach, state Department of Public Health (DPH), who considered the city's program "outstanding" and "a model for the rest of us."

"There are few mayors who have done more," said Auerbach.

Spinks presented Koch with the BSCS award midway during last week's conference as the mayor had addressed a ceremony for Korean Veterans earlier the same morning.

"We drew a line in the sand," Koch said of efforts to face the problem head-on. However, Koch, also said the award should be given, not to him, but to members of the task force who have worked on the problems and taken the initiatives.

Shortly after his first election, Koch created the 30-member Mayor's Drug Task Force, which has worked with Impact Quincy, a program under BSCS and with 16 partners ranging from Cong. William Delahunt to the Norfolk County Sheriff's office.

Arthur Keough, chair of Impact Quincy, described working with Quincy businesses and supporters in raising funds for drug awareness initiatives such as a Wollaston billboard warning of the abuse of prescription drugs in the medicine cabinet.

Near the meeting's end, Quincy Police Lt. Patrick Glynn also praised Koch.

"He depoliticized it," said Glynn, adding, as an example, that Koch and Chief Paul Keenan were responsible for allowing the Narcan program to develop in Quincy.

At this time, every police officer, firefighter and emergency technicians is trained in the application of nasal Narcan which has been successful in reviving overdose victims whose hearts and breathing has stopped.

While treatment, and education are essential, so too is enforcement important.

Lt. Glynn said Quincy police are receiving more tips and information from residents.

In the last three-month report, Lt. Glynn said officers made 97 arrests in the city, a substantial increase over past years.

Koch 'Confident' Central Project On St. Ann's Site

Middle School in a move that could save millions of dollars in land costs for the long-planned school.

"For a number of months, the Parish had made it clear to us that they would not be selling the school, but we always kept the door open a crack," Koch said. "We have not, and will not, be putting any pressure on the Parish, but we now are feeling positive that the door is open and that we can work together with St. Ann's and the Archdiocese to make this work."

Koch has met quietly with Parish leaders several times in recent weeks, and those meetings have resulted in a renewed interest by the Church to sell the school property. Koch said he remains adamant that the sale will only go forward if the Church agrees to it, and there will not be an eminent domain taking.

The School, which closed this month as part of a consolidation of Archdiocese schools in Quincy, is located next to the site where City officials had been planning to locate the new school, which includes a parcel owned by Eastern Nazarene College, the Presidents City Inn, and a car wash.

If an agreement with St. Ann's is reached, the Eastern Nazarene property would still be part of the site, but the motel and car wash would likely not, Koch said. In the end, it could mean the difference of several million dollars, the Mayor said.

Koch said the shifting site will not have a major effect on the timing of the project, noting that the administration, School Department, and the Central Middle School Building Committee have been working through the administrative tasks of the project for the last several months.

In May, The Massachusetts School Building Authority working with the Central Committee selected the firm Ai3, LLC to design the new school.

The City had expected to have a land purchase for the site ready to be reviewed by the City Council this year, and that timeline has not changed, according to City Solicitor James Timmins, the chairman of the Central Building Committee.

Koch has stressed that the Central project must move forward despite the economic climate because Central is already 115 years old and deemed by state authorities as in dire need of replacement.

The School Building Authority will reimburse the City for about 68 percent of the cost for the new school, and Koch has said repeatedly that he will propose selling the current Central site to help defray land-acquisition costs.

Morrissey Amendment Would Expand Bottle Bill To Water Bottles

By LAURA GRIFFIN

State Sen. Michael Morrissey recently offered a compromise to proposed state legislation aimed at an expansion of the current bottle bill.

Under Morrissey's compromise, an expansion would be limited to the deposits and the redemption of plastic water bottles.

The current law, Section 321 of Chapter 94 of General Laws, requires five-cent deposits on soda and beer cans while a proposal supported by Gov. Deval Patrick would expand that law to all non-carbonated beverages including water, sports drinks and malt beverages.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

That legislation has met with major resistance from unions and bottlers while Gov. Patrick cites the potential boost to state income. In addition, environmental groups believe an expanded bill would help protect natural resources from the onslaught of trashed plastic bottles.

Morrissey's amendment would limit the expansion to plastic water bottles which would require a five-cent deposit at purchase and have a five-cent redemption value.

As co-chairman of the Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy Committee, Sen. Morrissey said last week he is willing to release the proposal to the full legislature.

Morrissey's co-chairman Rep. Barry Finegold of Andover must, also, agree to move the issue to a vote and that has not happened yet.

A spokesman in Finegold's office said earlier this week that the bill and the amendment is under consideration and Rep. Finegold has not made his decision, "He's looking at all sides."

The current legislative session will end July 31 and the bottle bill cannot be considered by the full legislature unless the committee releases it.

22,000 New Meters For New Systems

New Water, Sewer Rates Take Effect Today

City ratepayers will experience a slight bump in their water and sewer costs this year as the water rate increases today (July 1) by 19 cents or four percent and the sewer rate by 36 cents or three percent.

The 2011 rate for 100 cubic feet is $4.71 effective today, up from this past year's $4.52 while the sewer rate for 100 cubic feet increases from $10.69 to $11.05 per 100 cubic feet.

Mike Coffey, Business Director for the Department of Public Works, alerted city councillors to the upcoming rate increases last month during budget discussions when he presented an optimistic outlook for the water and sewer enterprise funds in contrast to past years when department strained under multi-million dollar shortfalls.

"We're collecting 98% to 99% of the bills on time now," Coffey said, noting, also, there are now fewer requests for abatements because the city is billing more actual reads, rather than estimates.

As for the future, Coffey said the department will eventually target a regular surplus of $4 million squirreled away for water and sewer improvements and, as a potential buffer against rate hikes by the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA) which supplies the city's water and sewer supplies and services.

For the fiscal year 2010, Coffey expected a $230,880 surplus in the water Enterprise Fund and a shortfall of $111,065 in the sewer fund. These funds may only be used for water and sewer projects or to stabilize rates.

Coffey said the stabilization fund was absolutely critical as rates and department needs can fluctuate and the department must advance programs to conserve costs, such as its I and I (inflow and infiltration) program.

This year, Coffey said the I and I work on Bay State Road, Squantum, sealing leaks cost $300,000, but will save $2 million over ten years through an annual savings of $190,000 to $200,000.

However, the city will not experience the savings for another year as MWRA rates are based on the previous year's usage.

Coffey, also, presented plans for future improvements to the city's system. A major project is the installation of a new meter-reading network, according to Coffey's official report.

Under the plan, the city will install 22,000 new meters and radio transmitters to replace the existing system.

Labeled the Automatic Meter Reading System or AMR, the program should aid both the city and the ratepayers and should be underway as soon as the equipment is delivered, according to Coffey.

Coffey wrote that efforts will be made to explain the changes to residents, "Our goal is to minimize any confusion or disruption among Quincy residents as we move forward with this large project."

Last year's Citywide Water Leak Detection Program is also completed and inspectors found leaks totaling approximately 85,000 a year. Those have been sealed.

Announces Executive Order During Visit To Quincy Tuesday

Patrick Launches Small Business Purchasing Plan To Aid Local Companies

By JOE REARDON

Small businesses in Massachusetts got a shot Tuesday as Gov. Deval Patrick came to Quincy to sign an executive order establishing a Small Business Purchasing Program (SBPP).

The ambitious program is designed to give small businesses based in Massachusetts greater access to procurement opportunities for expansion.

Patrick signed the order at the offices of Play, formerly known as Screened Images Inc., a media/technology company located at 159 Burgin Parkway in Quincy that designs websites and does video work for companies.

"Small businesses are the backbone of our economy and are critical to supporting job growth and economic development across the Commonwealth," said Governor Patrick. "Particularly in these challenging economic times, we have a responsibility to support these small businesses and their workers so that they have an opportunity to succeed."

The program will be run by the state's Operational Services Division and requires executive branch agencies and departments to focus on small businesses when going after non-construction goods and services valued between $5,000 and $150,000. The program also calls for an expansion in the second year to include procurements valued at over $150,000.

Gov. DEVAL PATRICK

Small businesses will have free access for one year to SmartBid, a service that provides account holders with automatic email notifications of Executive Department procurement opportunities and quick and easy online bid submission for resulting contracts.

There are currently 600,000 small businesses in Massachusetts according to the Small Business Administration (SBA). Under the new program, small businesses will be defined as:

- Employing 50 or fewer full-time equivalents;
- Independently owned and operated;
- In business for at least one year;
- Has gross revenues of $15 million or less based on three-year average;
- Is organized/registered to do business in Massachusetts;
- Has its principal place of business in Massachusetts; and
- Is a for-profit business.

Laura Noonan, the president of Play, said it was an honor to have the governor sign the order at the company's offices. "The program itself, there's a lot of energy to it," she said. "It has that feeling of beginner's eyes.

"It's a real honor to be 38 years old and meet the government for the first time."

Noonan, who gave Patrick a tour of the office and its mechanics, went on to say that the new program would be beneficial to Play's 10-employee company and other small businesses in the Commonwealth. "We love what the idea of play does," she said. "You're in the game. We thought, what if we worked that way."

Play's customers are 85 percent government agencies, 50 percent of which are criminal justice. The company recently designed the Mass Rides website under the Department of Transportation.

The company had no Massachusetts contracts for the first seven years. Play currently has contracts in 27 states.

Patrick pointed out that for the first time in 20 years people are moving into Massachusetts faster than they're moving out. Small businesses, he said, are the backbone to the economy. "We need to do what we can in government to help small businesses," he said. "You guys are on fire here."

State Representative Stephen Tobin said it was important to recognize the role of the small businesses and that he was supportive of the program.

"Today, we're seeing the government being helpful," Tobin said.

Koch Postpones Action On Stretch Energy Code

Mayor Thomas Koch has asked City Council to postpone action on the "Stretch Energy Code," according to Chris Walker, Policy Director.

Walker said the mayor wanted to meet with additional parties before the city adopts the new code.

"Stretch" as it is known defines major and minor changes in construction and renovation projects in an effort to save energy and costs. However, the proposed code has raised fears among contractors and builders as to new costs and delays on projects

After two public discussions, including a public hearing, city councillors had recently planned to vote on the code before the summer recess and indicated the measure would be approved.

Councillors delayed action after Walker's report.

Joseph Bodkin Endicott Graduate

Joseph G. Bodkin, son of James and Mary Bodkin of Quincy, recently received a Bachelor of Science degree in sport management at Endicott College.

JJ Insurance STRATEGIES

by Jim Sullivan

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?

A mechanic has several sources to gather parts to repair a vehicle after it has been in a crash. As noted in this week's column, generic parts usually match the safety and quality of parts from the original manufacturer. Please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 for guidance on your auto insurance. One of our agents can review your options and recommend the best policy for your driving patterns and financial assets. We are located at 151 Hancock Street. Smarter Choice! Smarter Move!

When it becomes necessary to replace the cosmetic parts of a vehicle's outer skin (such as fenders, hoods, and door panels), consumers may be offered crash parts from either the original-equipment manufacturer (OEM) or from aftermarket crash parts suppliers (generic). While generic parts are usually less expensive, consumers may question their safety and quality. The fact is that generic crash parts are often manufactured by the same supplier, and in the same manner, as OEM parts. This is an issue consumers will want the repair technician to make very clear. With the possible exception of hoods, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety deems there are no safety implications of using cosmetic crash parts from any source.

NOTE: CAPA-certified parts (Certified Automobile Parts Association) meet the necessary quality standards to ensure consumer safety and satisfaction.

THE OPIOID CONFERENCE June 25 sponsored by Impact Quincy drew local, regional and state leaders together to share ideas at Granite Links Golf Course. From left are Alejandro Rivera, Program Director, Impact Quincy, John Auerbach, Commissioner, state Department of Public Health, Kenneth Tarabelli, President and CEO, and Bill Spinks, Director of Prevention and Intervention, both from Bay State Community Services, and state Sen. mitted to treatment.

"Overdose deaths exceed motor vehicle accidents," said keynote speaker Dr. Alex Whalley, Medical Director for the state's DPH Opioid Overdose Prevention Pilot Program, who praised Quincy's Narcan program which has trained police, fire and ambulance responders and reported that over 600 lives have been saved through the use of Narcan.

Drug abusers are not the only persons damaged by the drugs.

"We're talking about thousands of people affected in many different ways," said Commissioner John Auerbach, state's Department of Public Health (DPH), referring not only to the addicts, but their families and, often times, their victims as he linked drug addiction to crime, violence, accidents and infectious disease. "There's denial."

Auerbach described 29 drug-related deaths in Quincy in the past two years, and the over 600 cases of opioid-related emergencies that were treated in the city's hospital emergency rooms.

Despite such statistics, many speakers like Auerbach were optimistic.

"We do believe we are turning a corner," he said.

ARTHUR KEOUGH, Community Chairman of Impact Quincy, described the ever-changing challenge of dealing with drug problems at the recent Opioid Conference sponsored by Project Impact.

Dr. Whalley said both Quincy and Massachusetts outstrip the country's average.

"Massachusetts is one of the leaders in overdoses in the country," noted Dr.Whalley.

Quincy ranks seventh in the state with an average of 12 drug-related deaths a year.

Most alarming is the abuse of prescription drugs which often serve as the first step to addiction, according to the speakers.

Prescription drug emergencies in hospitals across the country now equal the number of medical emergencies reported for illegal drugs, noted John Kivlan, Legal Counsel to Cong. William Delahunt and a former Norfolk County assistant district attorney.

Kivlan held up a New York Times report published just a day earlier, citing statistics from the national Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and said, "It should have been on the front page. Obviously, this is a national epidemic."

Auerbach said prevention must start with age-appropriate education and a non-judgmental approach as drug abuse cuts through all social and economic lines, "This is something that can happen to you," said Auerbach.

And it did happen to the Hollers and the Deadys who were totally unprepared.

THE VISIONARY AWARD was presented to Mayor Thomas Koch last week by Ken Tarabelli, President and CEO, Bay State Community Services, Inc. in honor of his leadership efforts to stem drug abuse in Quincy. Koch said he planned to give it to the persons working on the problem.

THESE QUINCY MOTHERS dealt first-hand with the horrors of their sons' drug abuse. Nancy Holler and Kathy Deady described the shock, the heartbreak, the near-death episodes, and the perpetual hope of parents at Opioid Conference sponsored by Impact Quincy June 25.

"I wish I had known so much more," said Holler who said she knew next to nothing about addiction until her family was torn apart by drugs.

There's no quick fix for the recovering addict either, according to Dr. Whalley who outlined the stages in healing and said that the chronic condition lasts 27 years at which time the addict either stops or dies.

Dr. Whalley said that in the first year of recovery, the addict gets clean and sober and for the next three years changes his or her lifestyle, dropping the illegal activities and shady friends of the past. From the third to fifth year, the addict's life improves dramatically and is better than before they started drugs.

Both Dr. Whalley and Auerbach cited the importance of Narcan in saving lives and the need for more facilities for both in-patient and outpatient treatment.

Deady's son, a recovering drug addict who has been clean for six months attended the conference. He is currently in a halfway house while Holler's son has been committed for treatment.

One observer at the conference, resident Dana Martinson, objected to the wide distribution of Narcan and treatment goals for addicts, charging he'd been robbed by drug addicts and suggesting that "Narcan was like a fire extinguisher" eliminating the dangers for addicts.

Martinson also objected to lumping cigarettes in with mind-altering drugs when he retorted, "Smokers don't rob you."

Jacqueline Gutierrez, Narcan Outreach Worker, who has trained Quincy's police and fire responders, said after the conference that Narcan "does not enable. There's no potential to get high off it."

In addition, Gutierrez said she gets a report every time a person seeks a refill and, recently, one person said that Narcan saved the life of a cancer patient who had taken the wrong dose of medicine.

QUINCY KOREAN VETERAN'S Memorial Roll Call is read by Joseph H. Brooker (left) and Fred J. White in front of the Korean War Memorial at the corner of Hancock Street and Merrymount Parkway. Thirty-eight servicemen from Quincy died fighting in the Korean War which began June 25, 1950. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Noble

KOREAN WAR VETERAN and former Mayor Arthur Tobin was the keynote speaker at ceremonies commemorating the 60th anniversary of the onset of the Korean War. "Today on the 60th anniversary of the Korean War, let us honor the memory of the 38 Quincy heroes who paid the supreme sacrifice and remember their families and loved ones," the Marine Corps veteran said.

RECOGNITION OF ALL THOSE WHO SERVED."

After the Quincy City Council approved the proposed memorial and granted the land for it in 1994, private donors stepped up to raise the funds for its placement. P.C. Lawrence M. Norton praised the efforts and generosity of all those who made the memorial possible.

"All proceeds for the building of the memorial were donated by different families and organizations. We sold the bricks, we sold these benches, we sold the pillars, we had a golf tournament and raffles. The city provided the land and we provided the money."

The bricks and the concrete benches to which Norton refers are inscribed with words of the donor's choosing, many just listing the names of loved ones and those persons' dates in the military, if they had served.

Norton said, "John W. 'Butch' Mahoney designed this memorial and Chuck Antonellis did all the bricks and the Derbes Brothers helped us. Even the flag poles were purchased--they all paid big bucks... that's how you raise almost $90,000."

Norton shows extreme pride in the personal investment Quincy residents and business owners showed in erecting this tribute to those lost in Korea. "Thirty-eight Quincy men fought and died over the 38th parallel and this memorial is 'kicked' at 38 degrees—how's that for trivia?"

Also referring to North Korea's attack across that 38th parallel, which sparked a conflict at first never referred to as a "war," Mayor Koch said, "The American veteran responded to the call—the United States of America drew a line to stop Communism.

"America has always recognized that it's more than just about America, but we are part of the greater human family. In this country, time and time again, our veterans have stepped up to fight for freedom for people we don't even know."

Guest speaker and former Mayor Arthur S. Tobin, himself a Korean War Veteran, United States Marine Corps., spoke movingly of the day's commemoration.

"Young men and women from the City of Quincy and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts have answered the call to serve our country from the time of John Adams and the Revolutionary War, to the Civil War, the Spanish American War, World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam, the Gulf War, Iraq and Afghanistan.

"Thankfully many of our veterans returned home safely and played an important role in making our country, our state and this great City of Presidents, a better place than it was when they left.

"And sadly, many--too many--of our young heroes paid the supreme sacrifice in keeping our country free and safe. Quincy honors the memories of these heroes each year at Memorial Day, Veterans Day and at the Clock Tower at Marina Bay.

"Quincy's favorite sons and daughters have served our country at different times in history...I stand before you today to remind you of the heroes of this city who have served her... that you remember them and their contributions and their sacrifices.

"Today on the 60th anniversary of the Korean War... let us honor the memory of 38 Quincy heroes who paid the supreme sacrifice and remember their families and loved ones.

"It is especially meaningful to me because I served in the Korean War, I climbed the cliffs of Incheon, I witnessed the destruction of Seoul, I stood within feet of the 38th Parallel, I witnessed poverty, destruction and bloodshed.

"These 38 Quincy heroes whom we commemorate today served in a foreign land under extreme conditions—extreme weather and against overwhelming odds, and stopped an aggressive force."

In paying tribute the Quincy Korean War veterans, State Senator Michael Morrissey said, "We still have people in harm's way today in all parts of the world, but particularly in Afghanistan and Iraq--remember them in your prayers. As we remember those people who fought for us sixty years ago, remember those people who are serving today."

Color Guards representing Quincy's Morrisette Post, The American Legion, the William R. Caddy Detachment of the Marine Corps League, the Bryant VFW Post and the North Quincy Junior R.O.T.C. presented colors.

The flags of America, the United Nations, Korea, POW's and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts were raised.

Although the commemoration was organized on somewhat short notice, some 80 elected officials, guests and veterans stood in respectful silence as veterans Joseph Brooker and Fred White roll called the names on the Memorial.

In closing the ceremonies, P.C. Robert LaFleur played a particularly touching "TAPS." A luncheon followed at the Morrisette American Legion Post.

The Right Care – The Right Time – The Right Place

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, June 22 at approximately 9:35 p.m., Officer Dan Parisi was dispatched to Deerfield Street on a report of 2 males acting suspiciously, standing in the street as they looked into driveways. Upon arrival, the officer located the 2 males standing on the sidewalk. As the officer exited his cruiser and approached the two males, he was immediately met with an overpowering odor of marijuana coming from them.

LT. DAN MINTON

After receiving identification from the two males, Officer Parisi told them that they reeked of the smell of marijuana, then asked male suspect #1 if he had any marijuana on his person. He replied that he did and it was in his right front watch pocket. A search of this pocket revealed a small zip lock plastic bag with marijuana in it. A further search of his person revealed a large plastic sandwich bag of marijuana.

Through the Officer's training and experience, he believed that not only was this amount more than an ounce, but it was for more than just personal use. Concerned that he had two suspects at hand without additional units, Officer Parisi placed suspect #1 into handcuffs and placed him in his cruiser.

Officer Parisi then asked suspect #2 if he had any marijuana on him and he too confessed, stating that it was in his crotch. Suspect #2 was now placed into handcuffs. The officer examined the plastic corner bag of marijuana and believed that the suspects were selling the marijuana.

The marijuana is packaged in this form so it is easier to conceal, so that the narcotics will not fall out of the bag and it is easier to pass to another party undetected. Officer Parisi believed that the amount and packaging of the marijuana recovered from Suspect #2 was intended for sale rather than personal use.

Detectives Ryan and Duran arrived on scene and read Miranda Rights to both suspects, who confirmed that they understood these rights. Suspect #1 told the Officers, "I just started selling," when asked how long he had been dealing. Suspect #2 said, I used to sell but I don't anymore."

Suspect #1 had $224.00 in various denominations, folded together in various amounts in a key chain wallet and in a Camel tobacco tin. Drug dealers will often fold their money in this way in order to keep track of their sales.

During this time, suspect #1's cell phone rang constantly, consistent with someone who sells drugs. A criminal record check of suspect #2 showed that he had 14 arraignments, 2 for possession of class D, 1 for possession of class D with intent to distribute, and 1 for violation of controlled substance act.

Officer Parisi placed the suspects, 19 and 20 years old and from Wollaston, under arrest for "Possession of Class D with intent to Distribute and Violation of the controlled substance act."

Nice Work!

UNDERSTANDING HAMMERTOES

Hammertoe is a general term used to describe the buckling of any of the toe joints. Hammertoes may be rigid or flexible, subject to the joint's ability to move. With a flexible joint, you can straighten the toe with your fingers; a rigid hammertoe cannot be moved and may cause pain and distort the movement of the foot. The stress it causes to the ball of the foot may result in calluses. For mild symptoms, the use of a splint or pad to hold toes straight may be sufficient. If symptoms are severe, outpatient surgery may be necessary. After the procedure, a surgical shoe must be worn for several weeks. If you are having problems with hammertoes, see your podiatrist.

Podiatrists are medical professionals who are specially trained to use a wide range of therapies and surgeries to treat conditions relating to foot structure and function. For instance, I am one of only two podiatrists in this state who has completed the advanced training necessary to offer patients relief from pronation through the use of the HyProCure™ procedure, a titanium implant that prevents the abnormal motion of the ankle caused by this condition. We're located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. You can reach us at 781-986-3668.

Conway Charity Golf Tournament Raises $15,000 For Homeless Causes

Participants in the 26th annual Conway Country Charity Golf for the Homeless event at the Easton Country Club last week helped raise more than $15,000.

The event, run by Jack Conway & Co., benefits homeless causes throughout Southeastern Massachusetts. The damp and dreary conditions didn't squelch the excitement of the full field of 144 golfers who helped celebrate the event's 26th year.

"It's always a great opportunity to help the homeless, and it's a fun way to do it," said Chairman Jack Conway as he welcomed the golfers. "And this year was special as we once again passed our fundraising goals and completely sold out."

For almost three decades, Conway Country golfers have helped raise over $475,000 since the tournament's inception in 1984, which went directly to shelters like MainSpring House in Brockton, Conway House in Middleboro and Evelyn House in Stoughton.

The winning team for this year's tourney was Ron Poirier, Kevin Hokanson, John Golski and Kevin Callanan, and they shot a 9-under, 62 in the scramble format.

Top 20 Tips for a Safe Fourth of July

Grill Smart: Watch What You Heat

The Propane Gas Association of New England reminds everyone, even the most seasoned outdoor cooks, to beef up on safety before firing up the grill.

"With simple appliance updates and proper maintenance, people can get a head start on ensuring safe, enjoyable time with family and friends outdoors," says Joe Rose, president of the Propane Gas Association of New England.

To reduce any risk of an unwanted fire or burns from propane, consumers should routinely follow some key tips for the safe operation and maintenance of their grills:

Ventilation

• Always keep the lid open when lighting your grill. Don't close it until you are sure the grill is lit. • Keep the grill in a well-ventilated area, at least ten feet away from the house—and at least three feet away from trees and shrubs.

• Never use a grill indoors or in any unventilated space. This is both a fire and carbon monoxide poisoning hazard.

• Always use and store propane cylinders outdoors in an upright position.

• After filling or exchanging a cylinder, take it home immediately. While transporting the cylinder, keep your vehicle ventilated and the valve closed or capped.

• Never use, store or transport propane cylinders near high temperatures.

Firing Up The Grill Safely

• Never use matches or lighters to check for leaks. Never use starter fluid with propane grills.

• Before connecting the cylinder to your grill for the first time, use a leak detection solution (a 50/50 mixture of water and liquid soap) to check connections for leaks. Keep all flammable materials away from the grill. If you detect a leak, immediately turn off gas and do not attempt to light the grill again until the leak is fixed.

• Before lighting your propane grill for the first time in the spring, check the cooking grid and warming rack to be sure both are in their proper place. Clean the grid, the interior of the grill, and the burner (according to the manufacturer's instructions) with a wire brush or scraper to remove any built-up food.

• If the grill does not ignite within ten seconds, turn off the gas, keep the lid open and wait five minutes before trying again. If the igniter fails to light the grill after two or three tries, turn off the gas and replace the igniter according to the manufacturer's instructions.

• Do not smoke while handling a propane cylinder.

• When refilling the cylinder, always have the supplier check for dents, damage, rust, and leaks.

• Regularly check the tubes that lead into the burner for blockage from insects or food grease.

• Use a pipe cleaner or wire to clear blockage, pushing it through to the main part of the burner.

General Safety Tips

• Always follow grill manufacturer's instructions and keep written materials on hand.

• Designate the grilling area a "No Play Zone," keeping kids and pets away from the equipment.

• Always have one person in charge of the fire at all times. Never leave a hot grill unattended.

• When your grill is not in use, cover the disconnected hose-end fittings with plastic bags or protective caps to keep them clean.

• Never attempt to repair the tank valve or the appliance yourself. See a propane gas dealer or a qualified appliance repair person. Be sure to locate your model number and the manufacturer's consumer inquiry phone number and write them on the front page of your manual.

• If you smell gas and you are able to, safely turn off the cylinder vale, turning it to the right (clockwise). Immediately leave the area and call 911 or your local fire department. Before you use the grill again, have a qualified service technician inspect your cylinder.

Harvard Vanguard Physicians Honored By Tufts Health Plan

Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates, a multi-specialty physician practice with offices across eastern Massachusetts and an affiliate of Atrius Health, announces 11 physicians at the medical group's Quincy practice have been awarded the Tufts Health Plan Blue Ribbon designation for excellence in adult and pediatric patient care.

The Blue Ribbon designation represents the top 25% of practices in the Tufts Health Plan network as calculated by Tufts Health Plan using their proprietary methodology that considers both quality and cost efficiency. The ranking includes data from 2007 through the end of 2009.

"Everyone at Harvard Vanguard is dedicated to providing high quality and cost effective care for our patients," said Les Schwab, MD, chief medical officer for Harvard Vanguard. "We continually strive to improve our performance and this recognition is an excellent demonstration of the outstanding level of care that we are achieving."

The Quincy practice of Harvard Vanguard is located at 1250 Hancock St.

Keeping Cool And Safe In Extreme Heat

Extreme heat and humidity is a staple of summer, especially in New England.

For many, this is a highly anticipated and fun time of year, but it does not come without dangers.

Ron Walls, MD, chairman of the Department of Emergency Medicine at Brigham and Women's Hospital, cautions people about the potential for heat-related illnesses during scorching triple-digit days when the body generates and absorbs more heat than it can dissipate.

Fortunately, trips to the emergency department are preventable by taking some basic precautions.

During times of extreme heat, Dr. Walls offers these safety tips:

• Drink plenty of water, non-caffeinated beverages, or sports beverages, even if you do not feel thirsty. The body can lose enormous amounts of fluid through perspiration and increased use in the intense heat. It is better to "stay even" on fluids, rather than to fall behind and catch up. Thirst is a late indication that your body is already low on fluids.

• Avoid dehydrating drinks that contain alcohol, caffeine or high amounts of sugar. Any of these can cause you to lose more fluid in the urine than you are taking in.

• Wear loose, lightweight, light-colored clothing and put on sunscreen with an SPF of 15 or higher. Wear a hat and shade yourself with an umbrella, if possible. Seek shade, walk on the cooler side of the street, decrease your pace. All of these can help keep your body cooler.

• Do not take salt tablets, which do not replace water loss and can increase blood pressure, irritate the stomach and seriously affect people with a history of heart disease.

• Remain indoors for the heat of the day, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. if necessary. Try to limit strenuous outdoor activities and physical exercise to morning and evening hours.

• Be particularly careful regarding the heat if you are on blood pressure medicine, medicines for psychiatric conditions, or have serious heart or lung disease.

• Take special care to check on individuals who may be at greater risk for heat-related illnesses: children, senior citizens, and people who have a mental illness or heart disease, high blood pressure, lung disease, or diabetes.

Dr. Walls advises people to know the warning signs of heat-related illnesses and to seek medical care early if significant illness is present:

• Heat Rash (prickly heat): A red or pink rash resulting from blocked and swollen sweat ducts; causes discomfort and itching. This usually will resolve after a cool shower. An antihistamine might help with itching if it persists. Check with your doctor.

• Heat Cramps: Can occur in the muscles after exercising in the heat if the body loses excess fluid and electrolytes. Signals include muscle pains and spasms, muscle tenderness, nausea and vomiting, weakness and fatigue. This is a signal to move to a cooler environment, cease physical activity, and replenish fluids and electrolytes.

• Heat Syncope (fainting): Results from exertion in a hot environment, but can also occur as a response to heat without activity in people on certain medications, such as beta-blockers. Light headedness or dizziness is the most important early warning of heat syncope and is a signal to move to a cooler environment and lie down, resting and replenishing fluids until the symptoms resolve. Lightheadedness occurring only on sudden change in position, as in moving from lying to standing, can also be an early warning of heat syncope, and similar measures should be taken before symptoms worsen. All patients with heat syncope should be evaluated in the emergency department. Patients with positional lightheadedness or mild lightheadedness that does not resolve with 15 – 30 minutes of rest and fluids, similarly should be evaluated by their doctor or in the emergency department.

• Heat Exhaustion: All patients with heat exhaustion require evaluation in an emergency department. Heat exhaustion typically occurs after intense exertion and heavy sweating when the body fails to sufficiently cool down, or after prolonged exposure to intense heat and humidity. It results in a form of shock due to decreased blood flow to vital organs.

Symptoms of heat exhaustion may include heavy sweating, cool, moist, pale or flushed skin, headache, dizziness or weakness, mild confusion or drowsiness, and nausea. Body temperature is usually near normal. Heat exhaustion is a serious condition that may lead to heat stroke. A person experiencing heat exhaustion should be moved to a cool area and given oral fluids if tolerated. Call 911 or seek another form of rapid transport to the nearest emergency department is required.

• Heat Stroke: Heat Stroke is a life-threatening illness that requires emergency treatment. Seek help (call 911) immediately. Heat stroke represents a failure of your body's normal defense mechanism to cope with, and adjust for, the excess of heat.

Body temperature rises and critical body functions fail. The most important symptoms include flushed, hot, dry skin, absence of sweating, confusion (which can be severe), lightheadedness, profound lethargy, weakness, vomiting, a weak, rapid pulse, decreased alertness, and shallow, rapid breathing. The key sign that distinguishes heat stroke from moderate heat illnesses is a noticeable change in mental status (disorientation, confusion, impaired thinking).

VOICE FOR HEALTH

Chiropractor

RUNNING INTO TROUBLE

Because chiropractors are experienced in treating musculoskeletal problems, they are quite familiar with the injuries that afflict runners. Chief among these are knee injuries, which are often mechanical in nature. Chiropractors assess everything from the wear on a runner's shoes to leg-length discrepancies when seeking to uncover the source of these problems and correct them. When the common problem of plantar fasciitis (acute pain in the middle and rear of the heel) arises, the chiropractor is likely to undertake an imagery study to determine if tendons have calcified to cause heel spurs. Runners may also turn to chiropractic for treatment of Achilles tendonitis, abnormal pronation, sciatica, stress fractures, and iliotibial band syndrome.

Activities involving jumping, running or falling may cause a traumatic injury to the knee. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we know how serious knee injury can be, and we can help you get back on your feet and back in the game. For exceptional chiropractic treatment we invite you to call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Stop suffering needlessly – give chiropractic a try. It works! We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Because it shares many of the same symptoms, iliotibial band syndrome is often mistaken for sciatica.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

ON PINS AND NEEDLES

Thanks to a host of a technical and procedural developments, most patients view a visit to the dentist with little, if any, trepidation, However, if you are wary of going to the dentist, you are not alone. It is estimated that one in 20 people suffers from severe anxiety about dentistry (known as odontophobia), and about one-third of all people say they experience moderate anxiety when visiting the dentist. Fortunately, the dentist can effectively work with anxious and fearful patients who make their concerns known. Patients can avail themselves of treatments such as relaxation techniques and tranquilizers/sedation to lower their tension levels. Recent research shows that the ancient Chinese treatment of acupuncture also effectively quells patient anxiety and pain.

Sedation dentistry enables patients with special needs to undergo treatment without anxiety. We believe that a patient who understands his dental care options will make the best choices, so patient education is an important part of our practice. We take time to listen to your concerns and develop a personalized plan to enhance your smile. Everyone wants a beautiful smile – and everyone should have a healthy one. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointed for professional, gentle dental care. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. According to the a recent study, dental patients who underwent five minutes of acupuncture treatment saw their Beck Anxiety Inventory scores drop from 26.5 to 11.5.

Raised $14,000 In Memory of His Grandfather

Jonathan Sheehan Biked PMC Hingham Kids Ride

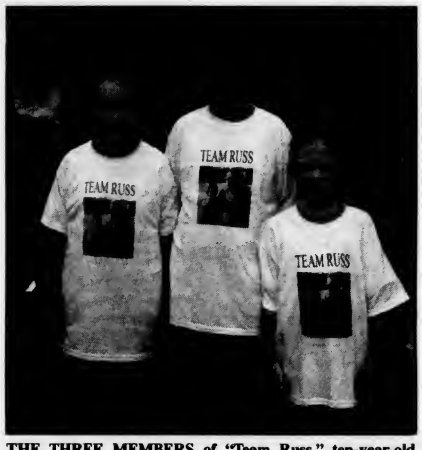
By JOE REARDON

Jonathan Sheehan didn't have to go out and train specifically for the Pan-Mass Challenge Hingham Kids Ride earlier this month. Ten-year-old Jonathan does enough bike riding with his friends on a daily basis to make the four-mile charity ride through Wompatuck State Park feel like nothing more than an afternoon out with his friends, burning up the neighborhood streets of Quincy.

"I did four because I knew I could do it," said Jonathan, without a hint of braggadocio in his voice. "I was zipping through the park because my parents bought me a new mountain bike.

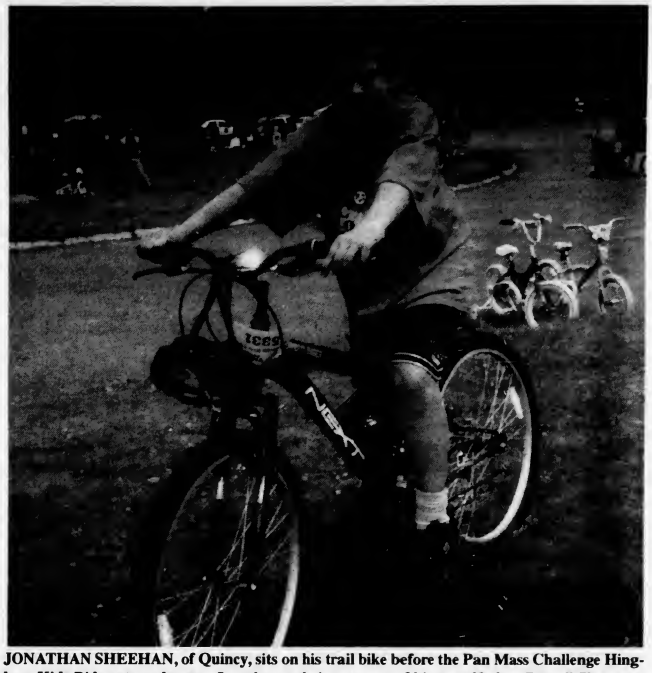
"I ride around my neighborhood and up to Wollaston Beach. Since it's a city, it's hard to get around. In Wompatuck State Park, there are paved roads and trees."

For Jonathan, the ride meant much more than just finishing the four-mile loop through the scenic park. As a member of "Team Russ" with his 10-year-old cousin Cathryn Johnson of Whitman and his seven-year-old sister Julianne, Jonathan was looking to raise as much money as possible in memory of his grandfather, Russell Sherman, who died of cancer a couple of years back.



When Jonathan learned his grandfather was diagnosed with cancer, he asked his mother what he could do. Extra hugs and kisses for his beloved grandfather didn't seem like enough for Jonathan so he immediately signed up for the PMC Hingham Kids Ride.

More than 460 kids took part in this year's event, ranging in age from 3 to 14. There were five routes offered for varying levels of cycling experience. Courses included the "Tyke Loop" for toddlers and longer loops for older, more experienced riders. The PMC Kids Rides have been a huge success having raised more than $2.3 million since its inception in 2006.



Jonathan had taken part in the ride for the past three years and has raised more than $8,000 by writing letters, hosting lemonade stands and recycling cans and bottles. His work has paid off and he has the distinction of being the event's top fundraiser. His goal coming into this year's ride was to raise his total over $10,000. Jonathan demolished that with a total that broke the $14,000 mark.

He would eventually like to ride the full Sturbridge-to-Provincetown PMC. This summer he plans to ride the 44-mile Cape Cod Rail Trail, his furthest excursion yet. And he'll be putting in more miles on his bike than ever. When Jonathan's 15, he's planning to take on the PMC 50-mile loop in Wellesley.

More importantly, the fundraising in memory of his grandfather will continue.

JONATHAN SHEEHAN, of Quincy, sits on his trail bike before the Pan Mass Challenge Hingham Kids Ride gets underway. Jonathan rode in memory of his grandfather, Russell Sherman, and raised more than $14,000.

Team On Five-Game Winning Streak- Two Weeks Left In Regular Season Play

Morrisette Is Rolling; Confidence At All-Time High

By SEAN BRENNAN

Winning breeds confidence; it also builds momentum.

Morrisette Legion is proof of that. The team, as of Tuesday morning, was on a five-game winning streak, improving its record to 7-3 overall and squarely placing themselves into the thick of the American Legion South Sectional playoff picture, which begins on July 18.

Morrisette is rolling behind a deep pitching staff and a solid offensive output from batters 1-9. The team's five-game winning streak began with a 7-6 win over Cohasset Legion on June 20, and continued with victories over Stoughton (4-3 in eight innings), Hyde Park (3-2 in eight innings), Jamaica Plain (10-5), and Braintree (5-3).

The winning streak has lifted the team's belief in what they can accomplish this summer, but, more importantly, tacked on ten points to the overall team standing in its quest for a spot in the American Legion South Sectional tournament.

"This five-game winning streak has given the team so much confidence along with ten enormous points in the standings," said Morrisette manager Steve Maze. "It has been contagious and the kids are ready to play and they just want to get back out there everyday. Our wins over Stoughton, JP, and Braintree are momentum builders and it all comes back to the balance and depth of our pitching staff and offense.

"This year I have four legit starting pitchers, four legit relief pitchers and a closer. We don't have to worry about our starter throwing all seven innings; every game this year we have been able to let the starter go four or so innings and then we have brought in our relief pitchers and our closer."

On Monday night, Morrisette found themselves down 2-0 in the bottom of the fourth to Braintree, but a couple of hits and a throwing error plated three runs. The biggest blow came an inning later when Ryan Louis tripled to deep right-center; he came around to score on a moon-shot two-run home run from Matt Rodriquez that put Morrisette up 5-2.

Louis started the game and went six innings. Josue Ordonez closed it out in relief.

"The win over Braintree was huge," added Maze. "Not only did it keep the streak alive, but we had already lost to them earlier this year."

Against JP on June 25, Morrisette avenged another early-season defeat with a 10-5 victory. Infielder Joe Edgerly, starting his first game at first base, finished 2-for-3 with two RBI and played a solid game defensively. Ordonez picked up the win on the mound.

"Joe was great for us in this game," said Maze, "and Josue got the win. He has been a huge addition to the team in 2010."

Morrisette, on June 23, jumped out to a 2-0 lead on Hyde Park Legion as Ryan Louis pitched six scoreless frames, allowing just a single base hit. Closer Kevin Magoon replaced him but defensive miscues in the late innings gave Hyde Park life and tied the contest at 2-2. In the eighth inning, second baseman John Ainsley was the hero. Ainsley's game-winning hit made a winner out of Magoon and gave Morrisette its second straight extra-inning victory.

On June 21, Morrisette knocked off Stoughton, 7-6, in eight innings. The team scored two runs in the first (Matt Rodriquez two RBI), two in the second (Joe Alibrandi RBI, Louis RBI), one run in the third (Lamont Toombs RBI), and one in the seventh (Rodriquez RBI).

Joe Alibrandi opened the eighth inning with a single; Greg Nelson singled; Colin Ryan reached on an error to load the bases, and Louis scored the game-winner with a sacrifice fly.

Kevin Magoon picked up the win in relief.

"It has been a good run for the team. We very easily good have lost some of these games that went to extra innings, but we held on and that is a good sign," said Maze on Tuesday. "This week is going to be a test. We played Braintree on Monday; we have a doubleheader against Milton tonight and close out the week with games against Stoughton and Holbrook.

"There are only two weeks left in the regular season and right now with our record we are in the playoff hunt. There is still work to be done, but right now we are paying some good baseball."

Morrisette is scheduled to play today (Thursday) at Stoughton Legion (5:45 p.m.) and will host Holbrook Legion on Friday night at Adams Field. First pitch is set for 8 p.m.

Defeats McDermott Club in Finals

Heritage Companies Wins Farm League Championship

Heritage Companies recently captured the Quincy Junior Farm League Championship in an exciting win over a solid McDermott Club team.

Vicker DiGravio hit the game-winning double in the bottom of the sixth inning to clinch the title for Heritage Companies; DiGravio's hit plated Alex Kiley with the winning run.

Alex Kiley, Matthew Summering and Brandon Sullivan contributed strong pitching efforts for Heritage in the championship game and each also delivered run-scoring hits to help Heritage overcome an early deficit.

Heritage, two nights earlier, won a pivotal game against McDermott Club in comeback fashion. Down two runs in the fifth inning, Ryan Odegaard led off with a walk; Ryan Quirk's double scored Odegaard; Quirk then scored on a double by Frank D'Agostino. Matthew Sheridan delivered another double to score D'Agostino with what would be the winning run.

Frank Calabro closed out the win on the mound earning the save with a clutch pitching performance; Alex Kennedy had delivered two big hits earlier in the game to keep Heritage within striking distance of McDermott Club.

Jack Cooke, Aidan Foley, Cameron Moore and Jimmy Maloney were also key contributors in both the field and at the plate in Heritage's run to the championship.

"Every player on our team got a clutch hit or made a heads-up play at some point during the season that contributed to the championship," said Mike Kiley, Heritage Companies sponsor and head coach. "This was truly a team effort from the first practice of the season to the championship game."

The team finished the year with a 16-1 overall record.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

This week, we, as a nation and as individuals, celebrate the birthday of our nation. On July 4th, let us take the time to re-pledge and renew our faith in our country...

Born of a revolution, this country began with a pledge: liberty and justice for all. Now ... more than 200 years later ... we, the American people are still striving for these goals. It's easy to find fault ... but it takes dedication and unity to bring about change, as our forefathers did. We have the freedom now to do it peacefully. Let's celebrate that freedom today and honor our nation for what's been achieved. Then, let's join together ... with a renewed sense of purpose – to reach our goal.

Today, we sometimes take our rights and freedoms for granted. On this Fourth of July, let us remember that many of our forefathers died for these causes, giving us the gift of a free nation.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you don't like to change plans once they're set, once again, you might find that doing so can make a big difference in your favor. Family matters dominate the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You continue to get encouragement for your proposals, including some support from unlikely sources. Use this positive flow to move forward with your plans. Good luck.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Family matters are dominant this week. It's a good time to be with those you love. It's also a good time to contact and reunite with loved ones with whom you've lost touch.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be careful not to allow differences of opinion to create unpleasant feelings, especially in the workplace. A neutral observer could check out the situation and suggest a resolution.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While the Lion's Den is the center of attention this week, with family matters dominating much of your time, workplace issues are also important. Try to find a balance between them.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The future of a new relationship could depend on how much the usually impatient-to-get-things-done Virgo is willing to stop pushing and let things happen naturally.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Worry over a loved one's well-being is eased with good news from a sympathetic source. Your continued show of love and support is important. Stay with it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good time to consider mending fences with someone you wish was back in your life. Forget about blame, and focus on the good things you once shared.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good week to start researching information regarding whatever changes you're considering, whether it involves a new home, a new location or a new job.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A long-anticipated job opportunity could turn out to be less than you expected. But appearances might be deceiving. Check it out before you decide it's not for you.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Good news: Adapting to a new situation might come more easily than you expected. You can look for continued support from colleagues who appreciate your contributions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Someone you care for might need more reassurance from the typically "unemotional" Pisces. Go ahead. Open up, and you might be surprised at what you find when you do.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a romantic at heart, although you can be amazingly practical when you need to be.

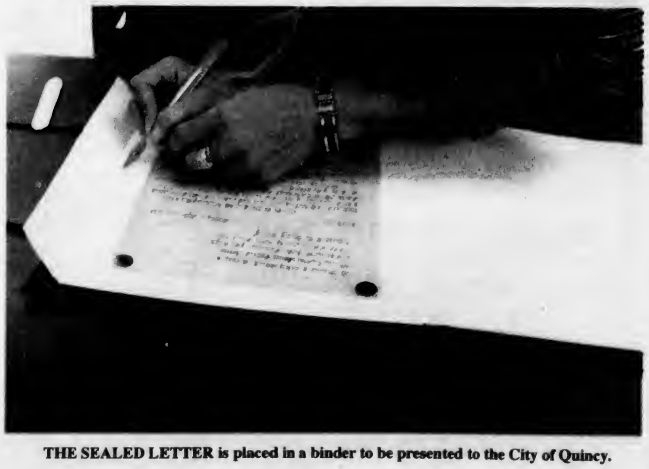
A SPECIAL CHEMICAL is applied to safely remove the original seals used to attach the letter into the volume of city records. Those seals will be placed back on the letter.



THE LETTER IS placed into a humidifier that will loosen the remaining tabs stuck to the letter in later years and to prevent the aging paper from crumbling.

ONCE HUMIDIFIED, preservation experts can safely flatten wrinkles and other imperfections to the letter that occurred over time.

THE LETTER is sealed in airtight plastic, preventing any further damage or deterioration.

THE SEALED LETTER is placed in a binder to be presented to the City of Quincy.

Number Of Visitors At Historic Sites Equal Or Ahead Of Last Year

City Tourism In Full Swing

By JOE REARDON

Quincy's tourism season is in full swing and is expected to stay steady through the prime vacation months of July and August.

Tourists from all over the country and areas around the globe have been flocking to the birthplaces of first sons John Adams and John Quincy Adams, the second and sixth presidents of the United States. The Old House and its gardens, and the final resting place of the presidents and the first ladies in the cellar of the United First Parish Church are popular sites for tourists and history buffs alike.

Arthur Ducharme, director of the United First Parish Church's Historic Interpretive Program and Adams historian, has given tours to more than 3,000 people since the season opened on Patriot's Day. That number does not include school field trips, educators on grants or members of historic organizations.

"The last two days we had lines," said the affable Ducharme. "On Monday it was continuous."

The public's fascination with the Adamses is still riding the wave of the white hot David McCullough novel "John Adams" and the HBO miniseries which starred Paul Giammati and Laura Linney as John and Abigail Adams, respectively.

"It's full speed ahead," said Adams National Park Superintendent Marianne Peak. "The David McCol-

$250,000 Grant For Public Radio Project

Court To Pioneer Online News Reporting System

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy District Court will be on the cutting edge of the latest news reporting technology starting in September, thanks to John Davidow, Executive Editor, WBUR.org.

"We're going to create a model for how courts should deal with smart phones, WiFi, and live blogging from courts," Davidow said Tuesday, explaining that the public, not the mainstream media, is already exploring such technology while the media is playing catch-up.

Davidow's project, "Order in the Court 2.0," aimed at bringing digital reporting systems to courthouses was recently awarded a $250,000 Knight News Challenge grant. The goal is to open court proceedings to the public and create a technology model for all courts.

Downtown Negotiations Progressing

Negotiations with Quincy Center developer Street-Works, LLC are making "substantial and critical" progress, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday, and will continue throughout the summer with the expectation that a final development agreement on the historic $1.4 billion project be delivered to the City Council this year.

The City's team of lawyers and financial experts have been locked in day-long negotiating sessions with the Street-Works team at several points over the last month, with Koch playing an active role handling the larger negotiating points on behalf of the City.

On the table is what is called a Land Disposition Agreement, which will form

Beat The Heat At The Kennedy Center

Mayor Thomas Koch reminds seniors that The Kennedy Center at 440 East Squantum Street is available during the day as a cooling center as the first scorching days of the summer gripped Quincy this week.

The senior center, opened last year, is fully air-conditioned and has a full schedule of programs throughout the day to help seniors beat the heat. The Center is open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays.

Koch also reminded residents to stay hydrated during hot weather and to check on elderly or sick neighbors during the heat.

Quincy Medical, Tufts Medical Form Clinical Affiliation

To Collaborate On Patient Care Initiatives

NEW CLINICAL AFFILIATION - Representatives from Quincy Medical Center and Tufts Medical Center as well as city officials attending the announcement that the two centers will collaborate on patient care initiatives. From left: Jose Varghese, MD, chairman of Radiology, QMC; Mayor Tom Koch; Thomas Fitzgerald, MD, president of QMC Medical Staff; Don Uvanitte, Eastern Insurance, QMC Board member; John N. Kastanis, Interim CEO, QMC; Ellen Zane, president and CEO, Tufts Medical Center; Assistant Majority Leader and Quincy State Rep. Ron Mariano; Grace Murphy-McAuliffe, Citizens Bank, QMC Board chairwoman; Raymond Tung, East West Bank, QMC Board member; Richard Barry, Barry and Associates, QMC Board member; Henry Tuttle, CEO Manet Community Health Center; and Eric Cohen, MD, President of Quincy Primary Care (NEQCA).

Quincy Medical Center and Tufts Medical Center have formed a clinical affiliation that will support and expand QMC's ability to offer high-quality clinical services to local patients, and will enhance area residents' access to advanced, tertiary-level care.

Members of the QMC leadership team, board of directors, medical staff and employees crowded the hospital's main conference room last Wednesday to welcome representatives from Tufts, as well as Mayor Thomas Koch and Assistant House Majority Leader Ron Mariano of Quincy.

John Kastanis, QMC's Interim CEO, welcomed the group and introduced Tufts CEO Ellen Zane, who received a very warm greeting from physicians and employees who worked with her when she served as QMC's Chief Operating Officer and CEO from 1990 to 1994.

Grace Murphy-McAuliffe, QMC chairperson of the Board of Trustees, thanked her fellow board members, and the QMC medical staff and employees for their commitment to the hospital and for their diligence in forging the affiliation between the two hospitals. She then introduced Koch and Mariano, who were equally enthusiastic and optimistic about the agreement and what it means for QMC.

"Quincy Medical Center is a key part of the conversation whenever I am talking about the economic development and revitalization of Quincy Center," Koch said. "Quincy Medical Center is a vital part of our community and I am very pleased with the promise this new relationship brings to Quincy and its residents."

Mariano agreed. "This affiliation is a step in the right direction to ensure that much needed medical care continues to be provided where it should be – here in the community hospital setting. I, along with Sen. Michael Morrissey and our other colleagues at the State House, are fighting for you in every way we can to help you succeed."

Kastanis said QMC's clinical affiliation with Tufts Medical Center is designed to bring services to the community that complement the excellent care provided by our community physician partners.

"Our affiliation is a key step forward in implementing our plans to achieve long term financial stability for Quincy Medical Center," he added.

"Tufts Medical Center is pleased that our physicians will be working closely with their community-based colleagues in Quincy to ensure that patients in Quincy Medical Center's area have access to the best possible care," said Ellen Zane, President and CEO of Tufts Medical Center. "Our model of care reinforces our strong belief that patients should receive the appropriate care in the appropriate location, and our clinical affiliation is designed to enable more care to be delivered in the Quincy community."

The two hospitals also announced the first clinical programs to be expanded at Quincy Medical Center as a result of the affiliation are breast cancer surgery and thoracic surgery. Other programs in development include enhanced cardiology services and geriatric services offered at Quincy Medical Center as well as outreach to the Asian communities both hospitals serve.

"The QMC medical staff has been very involved in developing this affiliation," said QMC Medical Staff President Thomas Fitzgerald, MD. "These new services bring a more comprehensive capacity to the community that our physicians have been asking for and the medical staff is excited to welcome our new colleagues to Quincy."

"The QMC Board of Trustees is committed to the success of Quincy Medical Center and this affiliation with Tufts Medical Center is a great positive step forward," said Grace Murphy-McAuliffe, chairperson of the Board. "I want to thank my colleagues on the Board and the QMC staff for their continuing dedication to our community's health."

An important goal of the affiliation is to enable more patients to get their care at Quincy Medical Center by expanding the hospital's services and supporting existing programs. At the same time, when patients need tertiary-level care, Tufts Medical Center will be Quincy Medical Center's preferred referral center. The Quincy Medical Center – Tufts Medical Center collaboration will ensure high quality patient care that is well coordinated, provided in the best clinical setting, and close to home.

Quincy Medical Center is the primary preferred community hospital for patients who see primary care physicians from New England Quality Care Alliance's Quincy Primary Care group including those at Manet Community Health Center. Primary care physicians from Granite Medical Group and Harvard Vanguard Quincy also use Quincy Medical Center as their preferred community hospital.

"A strong Quincy Medical Center is vitally important to our patients, and to us," said Eric Cohen, MD, President of Quincy Primary Care and member of the NEQCA board. "I am confident that this affiliation will offer great value to our patients and to my primary care colleagues in the Quincy area."

"Manet Community Health Center and Quincy Medical Center both have a special focus on providing health care to underserved members of our community," said Henry Tuttle, CEO of Manet. "In recent years, our two organizations have been particularly dedicated to serving the needs of Quincy's growing Asian population. We are pleased to see Quincy Medical Center affiliating with another institution that has made serving the underserved part of its core mission, and that also shares a special focus on the Asian community."

"The physicians of Granite Medical and Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates in Quincy greatly support a vibrant Quincy Medical Center," said Gene Lindsey, MD, President and CEO, Atrius Health. "We believe a strong clinical affiliation with Tufts Medical Center will bolster QMC's mission of providing excellent patient care in the community."

ENGAGING PERSONALITIES

Those with an eye toward becoming engaged may want to take a look at some of the hottest new trends in engagement rings. Actually, vintage-inspired settings with cushion-cut diamonds are something old that is new again. Cushion-cut diamonds (also known as "pillow-cut" diamonds) exhibit a unique shape that has been around for over a century. These square and rectangular designs with rounded corners are favored because they feature large facets that increase the gemstone's brilliance. The larger facets also highlight the diamond's clarity. Also very popular are emerald-cut diamond engagement rings, as well as oval diamond solitaires. For something different, engagement rings with pink sapphires and diamond side stones are worthy of consideration.

Part Of Capital Improvement Plan To Be Presented To City Council

Mayor Proposes $2M In Repairs To School Roofs

Mayor Thomas Koch will propose more than $2 million in repairs to leaking school roofs as part of a broader capital improvement plan that the administration plans to present to the City Council this summer.

"Our school buildings are vital assets to our community, and these repairs are necessary to ensure that our children have a safe and functional learning environment," Koch said. "We are moving forward with a conservative financing plan that is within our means in an effort to address many of our infrastructure and capital needs. In many instances, it will only be more expensive if we wait."

During tours of every school building this spring, Koch said he saw a number of leaks beyond what traditional, in-house maintenance could fix. He specifically pointed to buckets collecting water in some schools, and even makeshift funnels to catch the leaks.

"The maintenance staff does a great job with the resources they have, but a lot of these will require a total overhaul of the roofs to ensure a long-term fix," Koch said.

City officials conducted a structural review of school roofs, and current planning calls for a $500,000 repair the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center, $350,000 for North Quincy High School, $340,000 for the Lincoln Hancock Elementary School, $170,000 for Sterling Middle School, $150,000 for Montclair Elementary School, $130,000 for Wollaston Elementary School, $120,000 for Squantum Elementary School, $100,000 for Atherton Hough Elementary School, $70,000 for Broad Meadows Middle School, $65,000 for the GOALS program building on Hunt Street, $42,000 for Merrymount Elementary School, $40,000 for Parker Elementary School, $40,000

Child Car Seats Installed, Inspected

Koch: State Budget Cuts Will Have No Further Impact On Quincy

Mayor Thomas Koch said today that the final state budget signed by Gov. Deval Patrick last week will mean no additional cuts to City services because of conservative projections included as part of the City's spending plan.

"We were not wearing rose-colored glasses in our planning and we anticipated a substantial cut in state aid," Koch said. "The spending cuts included in our budget largely reflect the numbers in the final state budget, so it will not be necessary for us to revisit the budget as it stands right now."

Cities and towns across Massachusetts will be cut a total of $160 million in state aid, and for Quincy that means about a 5 percent cut from the last fiscal year, or about $2 million. In the last two years, the City has seen state aid cuts of more than 10 percent – even after $4.3 million in federal stimulus money for the School Department is calculated.

Municipal Finance Director Nicholas Puleo said budget planning focused on the "worst-case" state-aid scenarios first raised when the Legislature began budget deliberations in the spring.

"It appeared from the start that there was going to be another sizable local aid cut, so we planned accordingly," Puleo said.

The $230 million budget for Fiscal Year 2011 includes spending cuts in virtually every area of government, with the Koch administration focusing on two major priorities: Protect core services without raising the total property tax levy beyond what is generated by new development.

Administration officials acknowledge that the budget is likely the most difficult in at least a generation, with spending cuts ranging from 3 to 15 percent in some departments. Schools and the city's public safety departments were cut by less than 4 percent from Fiscal Year 2010 levels.

Ward 4 Neighborhood Watch Community Meeting July 14

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci and the Quincy Police Department will be working with residents in the coming weeks to establish a Neighborhood Watch Program in South and West Quincy.

Concerned citizens are asked to attend a community meeting with Palmucci and the Quincy Police Department Wednesday, July 14 at 6 p.m. at the Ward 4 Neighborhood Center, 100 Brooks Ave.

Neighborhood Watch is a crime prevention program that stresses education and awareness. It teaches citizens who to assist law enforcement by identifying and reporting suspicious activity in neighborhoods. It also provides citizens an opportunity to make neighborhoods safer and improve the quality of life.

Neighborhood watch groups typically focus on observation and awareness as a means of preventing crime and employ strategies that range from promoting social interaction and "watching out for each other" to active patrols by groups of citizens.

For more information, contact Palmucci at 617-834-3945.

Brown's 'Homecoming'

It's not exactly a homecoming but U.S. Sen. Scott Brown should feel quite at home when he arrives in Quincy tomorrow (Friday), believed to be his first public appearance in the City of Presidents since his stunning election this past January.

BROWN

The Wrentham Republican will headline the list of dignitaries who have been invited to speak at the annual wreath-laying ceremony commemorating the 243rd birthday anniversary of John Quincy Adams at United First Parish Church. Our nation's 6th President was born July 11, 1767.

It will be an historic day on an historic day.

For starters, Brown will be the first sitting U.S. Senator to speak at the wreath laying ceremony since the tradition began in the 1960s as directed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson. LBJ ordered a large red, white and blue wreath from the White House to be placed on the graves of deceased U.S. presidents on their birthday anniversaries.

The United First Parish Church is the only site in the United States where two U.S. presidents are buried. John Quincy Adams along with his father, John Adams, and First Ladies Louisa Catherine and Abigail Adams are entombed in the church crypt.

A similar wreath-laying ceremony is conducted in October to mark the anniversary birth of John Adams, the 2nd U.S. President, who was born Oct. 30, 1735.

Over the years, the church has done a wonderful job increasing public awareness of these important birthdays in our nation's history. It is a dignified ceremony featuring a military honor guard, musical performances and the formal wreath laying.

But Brown's appearance should bring a new level of importance to this event. After all, a U.S. Senator doesn't visit Quincy every day. And apparently no other sitting senator has attended this ceremony since the tradition began over 40 years ago.

The church doesn't want Brown's visit to be construed as a political appearance. Rightfully so. Tomorrow is not a day for politics, it's a time to honor and embrace the legacy of John Quincy Adams. Considered one of the great diplomats in American history, JQA also served as a U.S. Secretary of State, U.S. senator and representative, and Ambassador to the United Kingdom, Prussia and the Netherlands. As a Congressman, Adams became a leading opponent of slavery.

But there are some other political parallels and symmetry worth mentioning.

Brown was elected to the same U.S. Senate seat that JQA held from 1803 to 1808. Filling the unexpired term of the late Sen. Ted Kennedy, Brown is the first Republican to hold the seat since Henry Cabot Lodge (1947-1952). He's also the first Republican U.S. Senator from Massachusetts since Edward Brook was defeated in 1978.

As far as political parties go, John Quincy Adams was a member of the Federalist, Democratic-Republican, National Republican, Anti-Masonic and Whig parties. He was also a staunch believer in the separation of church and state. He took the presidential oath of office on a book of laws, instead of a more traditional bible, to underscore this principle.

On a personal level, Brown should feel a great deal of satisfaction returning to this city. The Bay State's junior senator canvassed the city campaigning to fill the unexpired term of the late Ted Kennedy. After the preliminary election, the so-called political experts considered him a long-shot to defeat Democrat Martha Coakley in the final.

But Brown's appeal caught on. Some say it was his performance in one of the last televised debates when he called out and said, "it's not Ted Kennedy's senate seat, it's the people's seat." He also took sharp aim at President Obama's attempt to reform health care. A vote for Brown was a vote against the legislation.

Locally, Brown made at least a half dozen appearances in Quincy between November and January.

According to Jennifer Logue, chairperson of the Quincy Republican City Committee, Brown spoke to various groups like the Lions Club and Ward 4 seniors while stumping at holiday fairs and senior citizen centers. She noted a fundraiser was held just before Christmas at Alba in Quincy Center, and during a visit to 1000 Southern Artery, his daughter, Ayla – a former contestant on American Idol – performed a holiday concert for the residents.

Of course, anyone who was near Quincy Square on the Saturday morning preceding the January election will remember the scores of supporters lined along Hancock Street, many holding "Go Scott Go" and "It's Gonna Be a Brownout" signs. Among those turning out here for the rally were GOP Chairwoman Logue; her father, former Mayor Frank McCauley and former Gov. William Weld.

Brown defeated Coakley here three days later – by 2,227 votes. Brown polled 15,607 to Coakley's 13,330. The winning margin of 53.29 percent to 45.51 percent virtually mirrored the state's: 52 percent to 47 percent.

How important was Quincy to the Brown campaign?

"I'd say Scott winning Quincy was very important," Logue says. "While Quincy is still seen by many to be a blue-collar, Democratic stronghold, the demographics are changing." She notes Quincy has fewer than 6,000 registered Republicans, yet John McCain received approximately 16,000 votes in the 2008 election.

"So clearly, there are some conservative-leaning Independents and Democrats out there. And quite a few of them came out to support Scott," Logue adds.

Indeed.

If you assigned every Republican vote and every unenrolled vote in the final election to Brown, that total would still be 527 votes short of his overall vote. My guess is not every Republican and unenrolled voter turned out for Brown, so evidently a good number of Democrats crossed party lines to vote for the Republican Brown.

Quincy was certainly a key piece to Brown's election puzzle. Eric Fehrnstrom from the Brown camp said "Watch cities like Quincy, I think we can win there." He also made several references to Quincy's importance, and a couple of days after the election, he told Greta Van Susteren again that it was getting the winning results from cities like Quincy that let the campaign know they were going to win, Logue noted.

After tomorrow, expect to see much more of Brown. He's endorsed Republican Jeff Perry, a state representative from Sandwich, for Congress in the 10th District. Quincy has the largest block of registered voters in the district. Perry, by the way, has handily won every GOP straw poll that's been held by significant margins, Logue says.

Brown is also up for election to a full six-year term in 2012.

Welcome back to Quincy, Scott. And, we'll see you again . . . soon.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1932 postcard view of the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs on Wollaston Beach. Both buildings were later destroyed by fire. Squantum on the left has been rebuilt but Wollaston has never fully recovered from its disaster. This was probably the most popular part of the Beach at the time with the lifeguard station just across the street from where this picture was taken. The new Interpretive Wayside Panels along Wollaston Beach include postcard views of the yacht clubs when they were in their prime. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

NEW POLICEMEN APPOINTED BY THE MAYOR ARE ALREADY IN THE ARMY

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin appointed two permanent members of the police department, but neither will serve until after the war; both are in the Army.

The new patrolmen whose police work is temporarily deferred are First Lt. Ralph Hatfield of Squantum and Pvt. Leighton Rogers of Billings Road. Rogers was a second cousin to Mayor Burgin. Hatfield topped the civil service list while Rogers was second.

Mayor Burgin asked for a new civil service list from which to appoint two military substitutes who will serve until Hatfield and Rogers return from the Army.

SECRET CHECK OF RENTS UNDERWAY

A secret rent survey by the federal government – with an unfavorable result meaning the appointment of a federal fair rent administrator for this area – is being carried on in Quincy this week.

While many facts are lacking regarding the survey, it was reported that rents in various parts of the city were being spot-checked. Members of the fair rent committee were told that Quincy was under observation and if rents were not under control within 60 days, after May1 a federal coordinator would be appointed for this area. At present, rents are frozen as of March 1, 1941.

Morrissey Bill Would Strengthen Illegal Drug Laws

State Sen. Michael W. Morrissey of Quincy announces the Senate has approved legislation he wrote ensuring that all forms of the dangerous street drug known as "Special K" will be treated as an illegal narcotic under state law.

The drug, formally called Ketamine, is a hallucinogen that produces effects similar to PCP, and Morrissey said drug pushers have been able to alter it into a number of different forms over the years that fall outside of scope of existing state laws eligible for prosecution.

The law, which will bring Massachusetts in line with federal statute, makes it a crime to possess any material, compound, preparation mixture containing Ketamine. The drug can come in either liquid or powdered form, and can be snorted, swallowed in pill form, injected, or even smoked.

"Drug dealers will always find creative ways to deliver their deadly product, and it requires constant vigilance on our part to guarantee that law enforcement and prosecutors have the tools they need to keep these drugs off the streets and out of the hands of our children," Morrissey said. "This change broadens the definition of the drug to include all of the various chemical compounds that make Ketamine an illegal narcotic."

Morrissey said he worked in collaboration with District Attorney Bill Keating's Office on the bills and added that is supported by the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security and the Massachusetts State Police Crime Laboratory.

"The problem of illegal drugs is not going to be solved overnight, but we are fighting this scourge with every weapon we have," Morrissey said, noting that he has also successfully fought to enact some of toughest laws targeting drug traffickers in the entire country.

Eliminating Library Media Specialist A Great Concern

The Quincy Public Schools has eliminated the position of Library Media Specialist from all of its elementary and middle schools.

In doing so, all K-8 students, their teachers and their principals will be forced to operate without the support of a person whose training and credentials include advanced academic degrees and rigorous licensing certification from the Commonwealth.

The library media specialists are professionals charged with servicing their school's students as a promoter of literature and their teachers as a co-director of learning. Without this professional collaboration, the library media center is reduced to a mere repository of books and materials which are neither properly channeled to those who can most effectively used them, nor are they accounted for and protected by established library procedures.

Quincy parents and taxpayers should not have to tolerate this situation.

Cemetery Letter Was Well-Written From The Heart

In a recent Quincy Sun letter on June 10 written by Jean Ann Phinney, it blew me away and brought a tear to my eyes.

We'll never know, but I'd like to say she hit it right on; what chatter goes on at the graves of all our cemeteries.

As someone who has family, uncles, aunts, grandparents and a past wife at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, the letter truly moved me.

Well written from the heart.

God Bless our veterans.

Gunther Tooties Opens Fourth Location At 1253 Hancock St., Quincy Center

Mayor Thomas P. Koch, Ward 5 Councilor Doug Gutro, representatives from the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and local business owners were on hand to celebrate the recent grand opening of Gunther Tooties, located at 1253 Hancock St., in Quincy Center.

Gunther Tooties started in a small Pembroke location and the Quincy location is their fourth. Their Hanover and Duxbury locations complete the group.

While known for several tasty menu selections, it is their New York style bagel that sets them apart from other café style eateries. The shop's unique name was derived from the name of a patrol cop in the 1960's sitcom "Car 54, Where Are You?"

Over 30 bagel offerings are baked daily at the Pembroke location and perhaps the most popular is their signature and award winning French Toast bagel. All their cream cheese offerings are produced in house and the selection of types and tastes are equally as impressive.

If a more substantial breakfast is your choice, hearty breakfast sandwiches are available; all beginning with egg offered with a wide range of additions, from Bacon, Ham or Sausage to Goat Cheese and Spinach.

For the "lunch bunch" a great selection of Panini Sandwiches on the bread of your choice or a healthy salad followed by something sweet from a selection of freshly baked bakery items. Their micro brewed specialty coffee prepared and served in numerous ways tops a long list of beverages.

In Quincy, Gunther Tooties is open Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The Quincy location also offers free wireless internet and on Fridays an "Open Mic" night.

For more information including their menu, visit www.gunthertooties.com or call 617-471-1866.

Tomato, Zucchini Pasta

I recently was at a buffet dinner, and one of the entrees was penne pasta. And I enjoy all kinds of pasta, but this one had a different flavor.

So a few days after that I decided to try to replicate that dish. The only hint that I had was that I saw small strips of zucchini running through it. And it was a pale tomato sauce indicating to me that it had milk or cream added to it. So I took it from there. I have to admit it wasn't exactly the same flavor, but I feel as though I created something different on my own. Hope if you try it you will enjoy it.

TOMATO, ZUCCHINI PASTA

1 zucchini
2 medium onions (sliced)
½ can crushed tomatoes
1 large garlic (chopped)
1 tablespoon or so of basil (either dried or fresh)
¾ cup milk (I used 1%, but you can use any kind or cream)
1-pound penne pasta
Salt and pepper to taste
¼ cup cream cheese
Olive oil for sautéing

First cut the zucchini in small strips (Julienne style). Set aside.

Slice the onions and caramelize them in the olive oil. When they are half done, add the zucchini and sauté for a short time. You don't want to over cook them, as they are small pieces. Add the tomatoes, basil, salt and pepper and cook for about 20 minutes on low.

Add the milk or cream and heat until well blended. Cook the pasta according to directions and then pour the sauce over it, adding the cream cheese slowly until it melts into the pasta. Top with either Romano or Parmesan cheese.

Walkable Communities Workshop In Wollaston

Mayor Thomas P. Koch, Ward 5 Councillor Douglas Gutro and Planning Director Dennis Harrington invite all interested parties to attend a Walkable Communities Workshop Monday, July 12 at 1:30 p.m. at the Beale Street Wollaston Library Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The Quincy Planning Department, the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, and the Boston Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) are holding a workshop to discuss pedestrian issues in the Wollaston Business District and the surrounding neighborhood.

The workshop will consist of a presentation from the Boston MPO staff, a community "walking audit," and a follow-up brainstorming session to discuss possibilities for improvements. The presentation by MPO staff will focus on best management practices for pedestrian design, and will show local, regional, and national examples of how to best improve pedestrian conditions.

"Quincy's neighborhoods are of great importance to the overall fabric and economic vitality of the City," Koch said. "Improving pedestrian conditions makes good economic sense. Local business districts benefit from intense foot traffic."

"Some of the most derisible places to live, visit, or shop are often-times the most pedestrian-friendly," Harrington said. "People want to be in places where they can walk; improving conditions will certainly help the Wollaston Business District revitalize for the future."

Meeting Wednesday On Wireless Dishes At 314-316 Water Street

A neighborhood meeting regarding a proposal modify an existing antenna installation at 314-316 Water Street was set for Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said Sprint Spectrum, LP and its affiliate Clear Wireless, LLC are seeking a special permit to add to wireless backhaul dishes on top of the existing building. The project's proponent seeks a variance before the Zoning Board of Appeals July 20.

Representatives planned to attend Wednesday's meeting to discuss the proposal in further detail with interested neighbors.

All neighbors were invited and encouraged to attend and participate. For more information, call Palmucci at 617-834-3945.

Tourists Find Quincy A Worthy, Fascinating Destination

By JOE REARDON

Anna Lackovic stepped outside the United First Parish Church into the bright early afternoon sun, still carrying the small United States flag in her hand.

The pretty, brown-haired 7 year old had just visited the final resting place of presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and their wives, Abigail Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams in the basement of the historic church.

Anna, who was vacationing with her family from West Palm Beach, FL, sat in John Adams' pew in the church before viewing the tombs in the cool, quiet cellar. She had only heard of the city's first sons peripherally through her mother, Michelle, a high school history teacher.

"It was cool," said Anna. "I even got to see the gravestones."

Anna's 5-year-old brother, Austin, learned a song in kindergarten that names the presidents. He knows them all, first and last name, in order.

"He's the reason we stopped here," said the kids' father, Brian. "He mentions them all the time."

For the Lackovics, the traffic on a Monday morning in Quincy was far less than it would be in West Palm Beach. "It's got that getaway feel to it," Brian said.

Since Patriot's Day, when the church opened for visitors, the director of the United First Parish Church's Historic Interpretive Program and Adams historian, Arthur Ducharme, has given countless tours of the church, sprinkling in his own bits of little known history of the Adamses.

Ducharme has found in his 14 years of conducting the tours that people tend to become very emotional when they see the tombs. It's then that he steps out of the room to let the tourists reflect, alone with the country's forefathers.

"I try to respect their visit," Ducharme said. "People are brought to tears. A woman brought in four-dozen roses for each of the presidents and first ladies.

"The tour is at the mansion and the honor is here. Many tears are shed downstairs."

With June, July and August comes the busiest time of the tourist season in Quincy. Tourists from all over the country and globe descend on the City of Presidents to visit the United First Parish Church. They gather at the Quincy Historical Society to take the popular trolley tour of the Adams birthplaces and the Old House, also known as the Adams Mansion.

The Old House tour leaves tourists breathless with its meticulous garden and impressive library with over 12,000 of John Adams' books. Original, priceless portraits of family members hang on the wall and many of the rooms still hold the original furniture.

Karen Yourell has been a park ranger for nearly 20 years but her passion and enthusiasm giving tours and sharing her knowledge of the Adamses hasn't lessened with time.

"It's an exciting, dynamic place to work," said Yourell. "People have asked me if I get tired giving the same tour. I tell them no because they're all different people and it's not the same tour.

"This is a very diverse audience here. We see them from very young on school field trips to very old."

Yourell believes the beauty of the tours is that the history of the Adamses comes alive. "People can read David McCullough's book and watch the HBO miniseries but what they really eventually want to do is see the real place and walk in the real footprints," Yourell said.

Susan Carlyle of Philadelphia took the trolley tour on Thursday with Samantha Ainuddin of Somerville and Robin White of Atlanta. It was the first visit to Quincy for all three women.

"I want to see the houses and historical markers," said White. "And I'd like to learn things I didn't already know."

Ainuddin, a self-proclaimed political and news junkie, has traveled to historical locations throughout the entire country and decided to take the Adams tour after reading Cokie Roberts' book "The Women Who Raised Our Nation," which included portions of Abigail Adams' letters. Ainuddin found the tour fascinating and pointed out how much history is in Boston and its suburbs.

"The park rangers were very knowledgeable," she said. "They (people in the area) should definitely check it out. I've moved around a lot so I try to get to the different historical sites. I'm going to try to go to Abigail Adams' birthplace today."

TOURISTS LISTEN intently to a U.S. National Park Service ranger as he gives some of the history of the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams during a recent visit.

Mayor Proposes $2M In Repairs To School Roofs

for Atlantice Middle School, $20,000 for Bernazanni Elementary School and $10,000 for the Point Webster Elementary School.

Mayor Koch said he plans to include the roof repair program in a large capital improvement package that will need the approval of the City Council. He said the Administration team is currently working on the full details, and he added that the plan is likely to include repairs to sea-walls and other projects.

The proposal will be in the form of a borrowing package, and Koch said that the City has done a good job managing its debt load over the last two years to maintain a positive credit rating and the borrowing capacity for a capital improvement plan without dramatically affecting the overall bottom-line of the City's operating budget.

"We are working to diligently on our debt, looking for ways to refinance, finding ways to keep our bond rating positive, and recognizing that a cautious, conservative approach will allow us to move forward without creating a tremendous additional burden on our bottom line," Koch said.

Outside Fires

The other day we were getting a rash of outside fires. I'm not talking about fires taking place within acres of trees, grass or brush; I'm referring to fires in smaller areas containing mulch and vegetation. Many of these areas lie along roadways, while more exist adjacent to structures, stores, homes, etc.

An extended rainless period adds to the potential hazard at these sites, while typically, carelessly disposed of matches and smoking materials are all that's required to ignite the vegetation during a dry spell.

That's what we had the other day when in one instance, a fire in mulch extended into shrubbery while the flames reached to the second floor of a high rise residential occupancy. Within that week, this same scenario occurred twice at different locations, while the frequency of calls for mulch fires along roadways increased substantially as well.

While dry weather will significantly increase the occurrence of these incidents, high winds exacerbate the hazard where added air fuels the flame with atmospheric oxygen. A brush fire can quickly take off and easily extend to a structure under those conditions.

Very frequently as well, smokers are not allowed to do so within their home or apartment. So often in these instances, individuals will leave the building and smoke adjacent to a house, or on a porch. Too frequently over the last 32 years, I have witnessed casually discarded cigarettes ignite vegetation adjacent to a home or the cigarette stub will find it's was against the building, often up against a wooden sill while a fire will extend into the building or along the combustible facade. This happens quite frequently.

The point of these comments being, "carelessly discarded" suggests little fore thought for the potential consequences when it comes to smoking material, while the resulting consequences can be severe. *In 2006 alone, there were 4, 661 outside fires within the State of Massachusetts that caused one civilian death, six civilian injuries, 22 fire fighter injuries and a dollar loss estimated at $310,790.

Kindly consider the consequences of casually discarded cigarettes, and dispose of them with mindful consideration. Particularly if frequently smoking on a porch or adjacent to a home, consider disposing of cigarettes within a metal container used specifically for that purpose. Keep in mind, trash and discarded cigarettes to not match.

While driving, especially during hotter dry spells, think twice about throwing a lit cigarette out of a vehicle. During those conditions especially, mulch, and vegetation are too easily ignited. Meanwhile there's no telling what ill effect can come from the practice. Thank you.

Another Strong Year In City Tourism Seen

lough book and the HBO series are still bringing them in."

Mark Carey, the executive director of Discover Quincy and co-director of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, believes the popularity of McCullough's novel and the miniseries will benefit the city's tourism for several seasons to come. "We're in a very unique position because we're doing better than the rest of the country," Carey said. "The numbers are equal or ahead of what they were last year."

Carey said the phenom of McCullough's novel and the miniseries is "the gift that keeps giving." The tourism numbers are up 5 percent from last year with the big months of July and August coming up. The hotels are busier than last year as well.

"I've talked to professors and historians," said Carey. "He was really accurate on everything he did. One professor thought he was historically accurate through and through."

The miniseries has been on HBO and DVD already, but has yet to be on network television. And once it is released overseas on DVD, Quincy can expect another "massive jump" in its tourism industry surrounding the Adamses. "When it's on television for everyone, it's going to be another event," said Carey.

McCullough, who Carey has spoken with many times, is a big supporter of Quincy's tourism. "He's the biggest part of all things Quincy," Carey said.

Discover Quincy spends the majority of its $180,000 budget on advertising and employee overhead costs. Carey said much of the marketing is focused on countries that historically have the most tourists. Brochures in various languages on the Quincy tourism sites have been sent to Germany, the U.K., Canada and Japan. "We've targeted those markets we know will have people coming and we say why not come to Quincy," said Carey.

Quincy is also part of the group Mass Cultural Coast with Plymouth and Cape Cod. The city, Carey said, benefits from tourists who visit that also spend time in Plymouth and locations on the Cape.

"We're all over the place because of this," he said. "We're always tweaking. We don't have the money like Plymouth and Cape Cod."

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead attracts between 500-1,000 visitors per season and is on pace to surpass that amount. Built in 1686, the house was considered the most grand of the estates in the city. During the Revolutionary War era it was a meeting place for such figures as Josiah Quincy, John Adams and John Hancock. The homestead was the childhood home of John Hancock's wife, Dorothy Quincy Hancock.

Quincy Homestead Chairman Karen Melican said the number of visitors has hovered in the 500 range a few years back, but the historic landmark has seen a surge in attendance the past couple of years with garden clubs and school groups taking advantage of the spacious yard.

"That's been true the last couple of years," Melican said. "We're very open to trying to meet groups on an appointment basis."

Abigail Adams Book Topic Monday

Award-winning historian Woody Holten will discuss his insightful book "Abigail Adams" Monday, July 12 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Adams Carriage House, Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The program is free and open to the public. There will be light refreshments.

Holten, a 2007 National Book Award finalist, reveals an Abigail Adams that not only wrote about the rights and liberties denied to 18th century women, she championed them – "in the public eye and in her own home."

Abigail's charming and literate letters to her often absent husband, John Adams, are impassioned pleas for justice and fairness for all in the new emerging nation. "Remember the Ladies," Abigail entreated, and her words are remembered and celebrated to this day.

Holten offers a "surprising new perspective" on the sometimes heartbreaking and often inspirational events that shaped the life of this truly American woman.

Louisa Catherine Adams Talk July 15 At Adams National Park

Prize-winning historian Michael O'Brien will talk about First Lady Louisa Catherine Adams Thursday, July 15 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Adams Carriage House, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The program and free and open to the public.

In the winter of 1815, Louisa Catherine, with her young son Charles Francis, made a 40-day journey by Russian carriage from Saint Petersburg to Paris to reunite with her diplomat husband, John Quincy Adams. There was plenty of danger along the way as Napoleon had escaped from exile in Elba and was also on his way to Paris.

O'Brien reconstructs this dramatic tale in Mrs. Adams in Winter: A Journey in the Last Days of Napoleon. In his compelling and insightful book, O'Brien explores the life of Louisa Catherine Adams – the only foreign-born First Lady who spent her life crossing borders, both literally and figuratively. She was born in England, lived in France, and married and American diplomat who became the 6th President of the United States.

As she grew older, Louisa viewed her remarkable journey as an extraordinary accomplishment. Louisa Catherine Adams was, like her grandson Henry Adams, a family historian whose observations and insights provide a unique window into the world of one of America's most intriguing political families.

JJ Insurance STRATEGIES

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?
Whether you own one business site or several, you need coverage that protects you against any possible hazard. At JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY, we will provide you with a unified, cost-effective package that meets your needs. Our policies include property insurance, machinery insurance, professional liability insurance, and general liability insurance. In the event of a loss, our claim processing staff works efficiently to help your operations resume as soon as possible. Please call us at 617-328-8600. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.
When the offices and/or warehouses of a small business are destroyed by fire, property insurance may cover the physical damage, but the associated business losses could potentially far exceed the cost of repairing or replacing the damaged property. Businesses are usually unable to function until a new location can be found and inventory can be rebuilt. Oft-overlooked "business interruption insurance" can spell the difference between a business' successful rebound and a severe setback. This coverage is designed to cover lost income during the "period of restoration"—while the property is being repaired, rebuilt, or replaced. Business interruption insurance is a good idea for businesses that could not be up and running 30 days after experiencing a fire or other peril.
NOTE: Business interruption insurance also pays the cost of renting temporary housing for the business.

should be underway in September, according to Davidow who hopes to provide daily live streams to the public from two Quincy courtrooms and publicize the daily docket and proceedings.

In the past, traditional news sources kept court proceedings in public view, according to Davidow who said, "The mainstream media had been the bridge to the courts."

Now, the media landscape is changing, budgets are in disarray and regular court reporting has been abandoned. However, the need still exists, according to Davidow who said, "Justice should be done in public."

Judge Mark Coven, the presiding justice at Quincy District Court, echoed Davidow's support of open proceedings, "We've always supported making the courts more accessible so that people can understand what happens in judicial proceedings."

Judge Coven noted that Quincy Court offered programs in the past welcoming students from local schools to observe proceedings in an effort to help people understand judicial proceedings and has volunteered to partner the project.

"What I anticipate is online video streaming of one or two courtrooms," said Judge Coven.

While the welcome mat is out, court officials will be meeting with Davidow and his committee throughout the summer to iron out the details of the project and to address a wide range of issues.

"I'm more concerned with privacy rights," said Judge Coven who cited such areas as protecting juveniles, victims and jurors.

"This is a pilot program," said Davidow, adding the committee is working on developing safeguards between 1st Amendment and 6th Amendment rights, between individual privacy and the public's right to know.

"We'll be working very closely with the judges, clerks, lawyers...," said Davidow.

The $250,000 grant was one of 12 grants awarded through the Knight News Challenge from over 2,000 applicants from all over the country and the world.

Davidow said the idea arose through his work on the Judiciary-Media Committee of the Supreme Judicial Court.

The 24-member committee which includes media, judges and court officers, voted unanimously to support the project.

For those close to Quincy District Court, it's no surprise that Quincy Court was chosen as it is the second busiest court in the state and is known statewide for innovate programs, according to John Dalton, First Assistant Jury Clerk of Quincy District Court.

Dalton pointed out that Quincy already pioneered the mediation project (AMD), drug court and fosters innovative measures for the public.

Representing a large community doesn't hurt either, according to Dalton who called Quincy, "the second busiest court in the Commonwealth" and offered some rough estimates such as 6000 small claims cases, 5000 civil cases, 6000 motor vehicle hearings and significant numbers of criminal cases.

The new project has widespread support in the state's judicial branch as noted in an e-mail from Joan Kenney, Public Information Officer, Supreme Judicial Court.

"We are looking forward to the collaboration for the benefit of the public," wrote Kenney.

Entities partnering with WBUR and the courts in the project include the following: the National Conference of Court Public Information Officers, the Boston University College of Communication and the Citizen Media Law Project at Harvard's Berkman Center for Internet and Society.

City Solicitor: Law Prohibits Such Disclosure

Library 'Name & Shame' List Won't Be Posted For Public Viewing

By LAURA GRIFFIN

It's been called the 'Name and Shame' list, the 'Peep and Weep' list and the 'Shame Fame' list, but the list of porn fans using Quincy's public library computers won't be published anytime soon, according to City Solicitor James Timmins.

Timmins Tuesday outlined numerous legal mine fields ahead if the city enforced a resolution publicizing the names of library patrons accessing pornography.

"There's a state statute that prohibits such disclosure, protects the identity of library users and what they borrow," said Timmins who said he believes the statute would apply to Internet sites.

"I don't think the city will release the names," said Timmins.

Timmins researched the issue at the request of Mayor Thomas Koch after City Council unanimously approved a resolution calling for the publication of the names.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi sponsored the resolution after councillors met with Library Director Ann McLaughlin who said that incidents of patrons' viewing pornography do occur.

However, McLaughlin outlined a strict policy of warnings issued to repeat offenders which eventually lead to banishment from library facilities. She also said that police respond and act quickly after all requests from the library.

Attorney Sarah Wunsch of the ALCU (American Civil Liberties Union) quoted the same statutes and reached the same conclusion as Timmins when asked for an opinion.

"We have a lot of concerns when the reading material of adults is provided to anyone," said Wunsch, adding, "There are several laws that make that illegal."

Under Raymondi's resolution, any person caught viewing porn on library facilities for the third time would be outed. He had hoped to target "the worst of the worst" who use taxpayer-funded facilities for their porn addiction.

Asked why pornography can't be blocked at the library, Timmins said the issue is complicated by a number of issues.

"We are on a library network, Old Colony Network," noted Timmins, describing one of the complex issues.

Even more significant is that filters cannot distinguish between an addict's desire for thrills and a patron's research.

As an example, Timmins said the word 'breast' might be a keyword for a porn surfer or for a patron researching breast cancer,

"That's why there's a general hesitancy about using filters. Computers are supposed to be about assembling information."

Neither McLaughlin nor Raymondi could be reached for comment on Timmins' research.

the legal and financial framework for the public-private development partnership between the City and Street-Works. Under the general premise of the agreement, Street-Works will pay the up-front costs of more than $250 million in infrastructure improvements and be paid back by the City when the fully developed project is producing enough revenue to cover those costs.

Exactly how that process will work is at the center of negotiations.

"We are moving full-steam ahead with a great team at the table, and we are making tremendous progress at this point," said Koch. "We are talking about the most substantial job creator and growth engine in our City's history, and we are going to have a deal that works for all stakeholders."

The development plan, which includes more than $1 billion in private investment, calls for roughly 1.3 million square feet of new office and retails space, more than 1,000 new housing units and is expected to create more than 4,000 construction jobs over the course of the project.

Police Seize $25K In Drugs, Paraphernalia

By LAURA GRIFFIN

A 35-year-old West Quincy resident accused of dealing heroin, Oxycodone, and Ecstasy is being held on $25,000 bail at Norfolk County House of Correction, Dedham, after being arraigned in Quincy District Court late last week.

The Quincy Drug Unit arrested Robert Carroll June 30 after a month-long investigation into drug dealing from his residence, Apt. 1 at 30 Copeland St. which he shared with his girlfriend. Carroll pleaded innocent at his arraignment.

At the time of the raid, police valued the drugs and drug paraphernalia found in his apartment and storage area at approximately $25,000.

QUINCY POLICE seized drugs and drug paraphernalia valued at $25,000 in a raid at 30 Copeland St., West Quincy.

Prior to the raid, the six-member squad led by Lt. Patrick Glynn observed the residence before announcing their presence and attempting entry by announcing that they had search warrant. When that was unsuccessful, they broke through the door.

While officers waited for Carroll to open the door, officers waiting on Copeland Street observed a man throwing prescription drug bottles, loose pills and brown powder out a building window. Those officers collected and labeled the materials later identified as drugs and the brown powder as heroin.

In addition to the drugs, police seized $710 and three cell phones pending civil forfeiture.

All contraband has been forwarded to Mass Health laboratories for further testing.

Immediately after the arrest, officers requested a field distance determination from the Department of Public Works and determined that the residence was within 1,000 feet of Sterling Middle School. As a result, Carroll was charged with Drug Violation in a school zone.

No Plans For Serving Alcohol Sunday Mornings

Quincy residents won't be having margaritas with their bacon and eggs on Sunday mornings anytime soon.

The city has no immediate plans to vote to accept or deny Governor Deval Patrick's law signed last Wednesday, which allows eating establishments to serve alcohol on Sundays beginning at 10 a.m.

The motion must come at a city council meeting. The next regular meeting is scheduled Monday, Sept. 7. Even then, the issue does not have to be raised.

"Each city and town has to decide whether they're going to adopt that law," said Quincy City Clerk and Chairman of the Board of Licensing Commissioners Joe Shea. "I'm a little disappointed personally. Enough's enough."

Under the previous law, alcohol wasn't allowed to be sold on Sundays until 12 noon. The law, part of the $27.6 billion budget, will enable restaurants to do better business. The city council must first approve the law before restaurant owners seek out a license, a process that could prove to be time consuming.

The bill was cosponsored by two Democrats and two Republicans in the Senate and has the backing of the GOP lieutenant governor candidate Richard Tisei. It passed unanimously in both chambers.

Police Rule No Homicide In Parking Lot Death

There was no foul play in the death of a 57-year-old Braintree woman whose body was found last week in a Stop & Shop parking lot, according to Quincy police.

"It is not a homicide," Capt. John Dougan said Tuesday stating that death was sudden for the woman found dead in the front seat of her car on July 3 at the Newport Avenue Super Stop & Shop.

"She was dead a couple of weeks," said Capt. Dougan of Linda Louis-Jeune who lay dead for weeks, possibly over a month, in the front seat of her Toyota RAV4 in the parking lot.

Louis-Jeune's car was parked at the far end of the supermarket's parking lot. The area is divided by a four-lane roadway and posted for shoppers only. The supermarket is open 24-hours weekdays.

Neither Capt. Dougan nor representatives from the Stop and Shop provided any additional details on the incident nor on the length of time the body went undetected.

"It is not Stop & Shop policy to comment on police matters," said Faith Weiner, spokesperson for Stop & Shop Companies.

ALEXANDRA GAGNE, a kindergarten student at the Beechwood Knoll School was the Second Place winner in MWRA's annual poster contest, grades K-2 category. She is congratulated by John J. Walsh, a Quincy resident and member of the MWRA Board.

'Sharing Cookies - Making Friends' Raises $10,000

For G.I. Ginger Betty Foundation

-By JOE REARDON

Twelve-year-olds Mary Keenan and Casey Cosgrove were busy laying out paints and brushes on their work table an hour before the start of Saturday's 4th Annual Family Fun Day – "Sharing Cookies" – "Making Friends" G.I. Ginger Betty's Foundation Fundraiser at Marina Bay.

The talented Hingham girls were anticipating lots of young children flocking to their table at The Summer House to have their faces painted with colorful designs, such as butterflies and flowers. The girls were participating in the popular fundraiser for the first time and were very aware that the cause behind the busy day was an important one.

"It's a good cause," said Casey, who has done face painting at numerous birthday parties. "It's a fun way to remember how much the troops do for us."

The day had a family feel to it with a moonwalk, beanbag toss and cookie decorating for the kids and more than $10,000 was raised for the G.I. Ginger Betty's Foundation Fundraiser. More than 300 people took part, buying T-shirts, dog tags and Ginger Betty cookies.

"I was pretty happy with the turnout we did get," said Ginger Betty's owner, Beth Veneto, who founded the foundation and came up with the idea for the fundraiser. "It was a great venue. A totally different ball game."

Gingerbread treats are sent to the troops oversees and the foundation ensures the soldiers and their families benefit. Saturday marked the first year the event was held in a public location after Veneto hosted it at her home the previous three years.

Festive red, white and blue balloons formed a colorful arc over the entrance to the enormous tent where the various tables were packed with T-shirts and raffle items. Volunteers manned the cotton candy, snow cone, popcorn and slush machines. In the second tent, people helped themselves to free hot dogs, hamburgers, chips and soda.

PATRIOTIC CAKE BY 'Ginger Betty' for the event.

Raffle items included the book of the New England Patriots' Super Bowl quests "Total Patriots," a framed sketch of John Quincy Adams' birthplace, bicycles, gift, wine and beauty baskets and camouflaged National Guard backpacks.

The gingerbread table was probably the most popular of the bunch. Huge gingerbread men with the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine and Coast Guard symbols decorated with thick frosting, were on sale. Boston Red Sox and Celtics gingerbread men were on the tables, as well as packages of homemade molasses cookies, all made by the employees of the popular Ginger Betty store.

Irene Bouchin, the marketing consultant for Ginger Betty, expected more people than the 125-150 that crowded Veneto's home the past three years for the event.

"This is the first time we've had a more public venue," Bouchin said. "It had been done in front of Beth's house for the last three years.

"We want to acknowledge the incredible work by the servicemen and their families. There's been a stronger sense of awareness."

One of the volunteers, Terry Connor of Quincy, predicted a big turnout before the event started. "This is going to be a great fundraiser," she said. "This is the first year it's gone public. We're trying to grow a little more awareness."

Mayor Thomas Koch and Ward 6 City Councillor Brian McNamee were on hand for the festivities and commended Veneto and all the volunteers who brought the fundraiser to life. "Beth's a great business lady and she's very creative," said Koch. "We want to help out."

Koch, who has attended all four of the fundraisers, liked the move to Marina Bay. "They needed the room," he said.

McNamee said that fundraising for the troops are important and a great cause. "It's all good stuff," he said. "Any time you have an opportunity to recognize the troops it's good to take the time out and thank them for their sacrifices."

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, June 24 at approximately 5:41 p.m., Officer Timothy Simmons, assigned to the Quincy Square beat, observed three people known to him from past incidents, in the area of McIntyre Mall in front of Quincy City Hall.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officer was drawn to the attention of the male, who had his shorts and underwear falling off his waistline, to the halfway point on his buttocks, exposing his hind parts. This was lower than the trend for today's youths. The suspect (#1) also appeared to be under the influence of alcohol/drugs, unsteady on his feet, his body swaying back and forth. For safety purposes, the male suspect was placed on the park bench and the Officer then notified dispatch for assistance. Officer Simmons questioned the two friends, who also had dilated pupils and spoke in a lethargic manner.

Through his training and experience, Officer Simmons believed this was a sign of heroin use. Suspect #1 began to fall asleep on the bench and stated that he was tired because "I smoked pot all day." The Officer examined the suspect's arms and noticed fresh track marks on the inner area of his left arm consistent with heroin use. Suspect #1 then admitted to using heroin yesterday. A warrant check was conducted on suspect #1 and showed an outstanding straight Warrant from Quincy Court. Suspect #1 was placed under arrest.

At this point, Detective Cleary and Officer Simmons interviewed the remaining friends about their drug use. Detective Cleary learned from suspect #2 that she used heroin earlier in the day. He then received permission from female suspect #2 to look through her purse for drugs and found a small glassine baggie that contained a brownish powder believed to be heroin. In addition, the Detective also found a pill bottle with no label on it, containing 13 Class C Controlled pills, along with 7 hypodermic needles. She too was placed under arrest. The third suspect was sent on his way.

Once at the police station, suspect #1 admitted to ownership of the heroin and the pills, acetaminophen hydrocodone, that were in suspect #2's purse. At this time, suspect #1's condition worsened. He said that he took "heroin, perc's and benzo's earlier that day. Suspect #1 was transported to Quincy Medical Center for an overdose. Suspect #1, a 23 year old Weymouth resident, was charged with Possession Class A -Subsequent Offence, Possession Class C and the arrest Warrant. Suspect #2 was charged with "Possession Class A and Possession Class C drugs.

Four Ways To Improve A home's Beauty, Resale Value

(ARA) - In a tough housing market, homeowners want to improve their home's beauty and functionality, while adding resale value. This may include choosing products that reduce maintenance, save energy, improve appearance and offer protection from the damaging forces of nature. Here are some tips for problem areas that could benefit from the latest home solutions:

Timeless decks with natural looks

In the past decade, alternatives to wood decking products have made many claims of low-maintenance. However, if your deck has stains and is in an environment that breeds mold and mildew, maybe it's time to look at some new options on the market. If your decking product contains wood fibers, it may be absorbing stains and getting scratched in everyday use.

"There are low-maintenance products that give homeowners a rich selection of deeper deck shades, tropical hardwood looks and durable, sturdy railings that complement these colors," says Mike Gori, deck expert for AZEK Building Products, maker of AZEK Deck. He says the secret is cellular PVC technology, which resists food stains - even red wine - and stands up to the most high energy kids, dogs or neighborhood deck parties. Low-maintenance decks also increase your home's value because they economically add living space and are easy to clean.

Lattice entertain you

If you think your outdoor planters and window boxes cannot have detailed lattice work and scrolled designs because of a high moisture environment, think again. There are natural looking materials that support plant life and won't rot, split or warp, even with continuous watering and sunlight. For example, Walpole Woodworkers features the Freeport Collection of low-maintenance cellular vinyl boxes and planters that look like the real thing and have classic detail and lattice designs.

These durable items do not need liners and come with pre-drilled drainage holes. Beautifully crafted window boxes are charming accents to your home and bring color right outside your window. Adding architectural details also makes your home stand out in the neighborhood.

Stay pumped, go green

Following one of the wettest winters on record in many areas of the country, keeping your home safe from damaging flood waters is critical. Now, there are sump pumps that offer maximum protection, save energy and are very easy to install. They also feature backup battery pumps and alarms for extra protection in case of power outages. This increases peace of mind for homeowners and could be a make or break selling point.

The experts at WAYNE Pumps advise that if your sump pump is more than 10 years old, it may need to be replaced with new technology. "Our sump pump hydraulic expertise has evolved to where we can offer pumps that move more water faster using up to 50 percent less energy," says President Joe Mauro. "We've also developed features like quieter operation and the new iSwitch that uses a microprocessor to sense rising water levels before they could become a problem." He points out that investment in a reliable sump pump and battery backup system is minor compared to the damage water can do to valuables, family heirlooms and your home's resale value. Self-testing features to keep backup pumps in top shape and wireless alarms offer even more layers of protection for your home. For more information, visit www.waynepumps.com.

Repair cracks to prevent future damage

A small crack in your driveway or cement steps can become a crater, due to harsh weather and temperature changes. Crumbling concrete or cracked driveways can detract from curb appeal and reduce resale value. However, if properly sealed with the right caulk product, your outdoor masonry or blacktop areas can be repaired without continuing to deteriorate. You can also seal off energy leaks and keep out damaging moisture, indoors and out, such as around windows, receptacles and under the door step.

"We've been developing new caulks, such as our new RD 3000 advanced sealant line formulated to move and remain flexible once cured, allowing more stability through climate changes or pressure," says Jason Ringling, marketing director at Red Devil, Inc.

He noted that driveways, concrete steps and walkways can experience movement from car and foot traffic and endure the freeze/thaw cycles of the seasons. "You need a durable sealant that stands up to the elements to prevent the damage from spreading," he says. Always look for products specifically for concrete, blacktop, gutters and windows and doors. A simple caulk job reportedly can save you up to 20 percent in energy bills and big bucks in outdoor repairs.

SPOTLIGHT on HEALTH and FITNESS

Milton Hospital's Community Health Walk Funds Local Organizations

Milton Hospital, a clinical affiliate of Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center providing community-based health care announces more than 100 walkers recently participated in its Community Health Walk.

The event raised money for six different local organizations to promote good health initiatives throughout the surrounding communities.

Following the 3.1-mile-walk, crowds of people enjoyed a complimentary BBQ-style lunch, and took behind-the-scenes tours of Milton Hospital's operating room, endoscopy unit and several areas of the lab. Many visitors had an opportunity to personally test out the hospital's da Vinci surgical robot in the operating room.

The following is a list of grant recipients and their causes:

• Milton High School "Wellness Intervention for Milton High School Students" Incoming MHS sophomores will receive a health screening and ongoing support to improve wellness and encourage long-term health.

• Randolph Public Schools "Eat Healthy; Get Active" Three after-school health education/physical activity courses for implementation in the Randolph Public Schools; includes Zumba classes and Healthy Eating and Cooking.

• Canton Public Schools "Adventure Programming: Adventure Fitness and Fun for Everyone" The schools will build an innovative Adventure Challenge Low-Element Course to increase cardiovascular levels, social/emotional skills and self-esteem concepts through experiential education.

• Milton Early Childhood Alliance "Dealing with Children's Health Issues" This three-part professional development series for early education and care professionals will provide information on important health issues such as communicable diseases, trends in immunizations, asthma and allergies, and early warning signs of health problems.

• Kit Clark Senior Services, Inc., Dorchester "Fit-4-Life" Kit Clark will add fitness options for low-income seniors participating in the Fit-4-Life Program in Dorchester: classes in yoga, Zumba Gold and Viet Tai Chi, to promote healthy aging.

• Town of Milton Youth Office "Walk and Talk with Your Elected Officials" This organization will develop a forum to exercise, ask questions/impart health related information and have a heart-healthy lunch with elected officials from Milton at Curry College.

American Cancer Society Says 'Slip, Slop, Slap And Wrap'

Stay Sun-Safe Each And Every Day

(ARA) - Everyone loves the sunshine, but too much of a good thing now could create major health problems for you later on. Because of the risk of skin cancer, you need to adopt sun-safe behaviors year-round, and avoid intentional exposure to natural sunlight and its harmful ultraviolet (UV) radiation.

UV light, even if it comes from an artificial source, is a carcinogen. More than 1 million new cases of skin cancer are diagnosed in the U.S. each year, outnumbering all other cancers combined, according to the National Council on Skin Cancer Prevention.

While the use of sunscreen is standard practice, your clothing also protects you from harmful UV rays, regardless of the season.

"You should wear tightly woven clothing to block out the sun," says Dr. Carl Wurster, chair of the Allied Health Department at Brown Mackie College - Boise. "Khaki-type materials work well. You can look to the military to see the textures worn by the British in India, the French Foreign Legion in Africa and even our troops in Afghanistan. They all usually wear tightly woven materials."

Before there was sunscreen, cowboys knew that even though it gets pretty hot on the Chisholm Trail, wide-brimmed hats, long-sleeved shirts, leather vests, long pants and bandanas could protect them from the sun.

"It all has to do with coverage. The more skin you cover, the better off you are. It was not about the heat, but all about skin protection," Wurster says.

If you look at the wardrobes for those who live in equatorial countries, you'll find that their traditional dress includes sombreros and long sleeves. European aristocrats also knew how to prevent sun overexposure. "If you look at the nobility of 17th- and 18th-century England, they were called bluebloods because they were so pale you could see the veins in their arms.

The peasants who worked in the fields were called rednecks because of the tans they received on their necks from working in the hot sun," Wurster says. "The wealthy landowners never went outside without wearing a big floppy hat."

"If you think about the movie, 'Gone With the Wind,' the women wore big bonnets and carried parasols, regardless of the heat because they were trying to block out the sun," he adds.

Concerns over skin protection from the sun took a back seat when the Industrial Revolution began. "People who used to work in the fields moved into the factories and became bluebloods - physically. The aristocrats stayed on their farming estates. So, there was a complete turnaround in their clothing."

Whether you wear clothes made out of tightly woven material, or not - sunscreen is a must.

"You should use one with 50 SPF (sun protection factor)," he said. The Council also recommends seeking the shade between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., generously applying sunscreen with a SPF of 15 or higher, and wearing sun-protective clothing, including wide brimmed hats and UV-protective sunglasses.

If you're doing yard work, walking around or swimming you need to do frequent re-applications.

"Re-apply the sunscreen one hour later because with perspiration you may lose some of it," adds Wurster. Pay particular attention to children and teenagers because early exposure to the sun can be hazardous to their health over time.

Wurster also recommends teaching children to wear wide-brimmed hats - just like you teach them to wear bike helmets.

While some people mainly think about sunscreen at the beach, you can also experience sunburns in mountain areas anytime of the year. "You can put zinc oxide cream on your nose before you go skiing on snow or even water skiing," Wurster says. Sun exposure should be a concern every day you go outside. That's why the American Cancer Society promotes "Slip! Slop! Slap ... and Wrap" as a catch phrase to help you remember the four ways to protect yourself from UV radiation:

* Slip on a shirt.
* Slop on sunscreen.
* Slap on a hat.
* Wrap on sunglasses to protect the eyes and sensitive skin around them.

When used simultaneously, these health conscious steps can provide year-round sun protection. Allied Health students who want to work with skin cancer patients can get most of their training from a dermatologist, once they graduate.

Popular Asthma Drugs Carry Dire Warning

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I started treatment for asthma for the first time at age 80. At first I took prednisone and albuterol. Then I had a Pulmicort inhaler. Now I am on Symbicort. The material that comes with this medicine advises that this LABA (long-acting beta agonist) may increase the chance of death from asthma. Exactly what is this telling me? – E.S.

ANSWER: With asthma, there is a sudden constriction of the breathing tubes (bronchi), along with the production of thick mucus. Both block the flow of air into the lungs, and both cause asthma symptoms -- shortness of breath, wheezing and coughing. Asthma changes are reversible.

Asthma medications come in three major categories. One is quick-action medicines, the kind that get to work fast to open the breathing tubes. Many of these medicines are SABAs, short-acting beta agonists. Albuterol is one example. Beta agonists dilate bronchi. Too-frequent use of the short-acting beta agonists indicates poor asthma control. They should be used only for an acute attack, and attacks should be infrequent.

The second category is cortisone drugs, the potent suppressors of inflammation. They calm airways and prevent their constriction. They also decrease mucus production. Taken by mouth, cortisone drugs have unpleasant side effects when used for long periods in high doses. Taken by inhaler, the side effects are few. Pulmicort is a cortisone-inhaler drug.

The third category of drug is long-acting drugs, drugs that keep the airways less twitchy for prolonged periods. Long-acting beta agonists, LABAs, belong in this category. LABA drugs have been noted to increase the risk of serious asthma attacks, which ended in fatalities for a few. That was in the days when they were used alone. Now they have been incorporated into preparations combined with cortisone drugs. Since these dual preparations have come to the market, no drug-related asthma fatalities have been reported. The warning still exists because a LABA is part of the drug. You don't need to worry about your medicine, Symbicort. It's a dual medicine.

The asthma booklet explains in detail this common malady. To order a copy, write to: Dr. Donohue -- No. 602W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A while back, you had information in your column about ear trouble while on a plane. This spring, we went on an airplane for my grandson's graduation. On the flight back, my granddaughter got a terrible earache. I had the same trouble a year previously. She was crying, and we didn't know what to do. What causes this, and what can be done for it? – B.L.

ANSWER: The earache comes from an imbalance of pressure on the outside and inside of the eardrum. It happens on ascent and descent, but it's more common on descent. The pressure imbalance pushes the eardrum inward. That is painful.

Hundreds of readers wrote to me about EarPlanes Ear Plugs, found in many drugstores. These earplugs lessen pressure on the eardrum. I'm convinced they work well.

Other tricks to equalize pressure include repeated yawning, gum-chewing and plugging the nose between thumb and index finger while forcing air out of the nose.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

OVERDOING IT!

Overuse injuries occur gradually as a result of wear-and-tear from repetitive activity. Unlike an acute injury, which has an obvious cause, the source of an overuse injury may not be so apparent. For instance, a dull pain may follow a workout of unusual intensity or duration. The pain may then recur intermittently, but not be bad enough to force a stop of exercise. If the damage to muscle tissue is ignored, the weakened tissue may suffer an acute injury. Thus, it is important to listen to one's body and know when to stop the activity that is causing a problem. Longer term chiropractic treatment may help better prepare the body to endure the stresses activity and work place upon it.

Overuse injuries make up the majority of injuries sustained during walking, jogging, and running activities. Our goal is to provide each individual with a loving, caring attitude, with honesty and integrity as we would treat our own family and friends. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, you'll find an experienced and helpful staff of health care professionals dedicated to serving your health care needs. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. An overuse injury can be described as having pushed the body beyond its ability to absorb the force of exercise effectively.

Graeber, Davis & Cantwell Tops In QYB International League

Graeber, Davis & Cantwell defeated First Class Construction, 10-6, the weekend of June 26-27, to capture the Quincy Youth Baseball International championship.

The seven-inning championship game, played at the Pond Street Field, featured great pitching by both teams with Chris Lamont of GDC throwing a complete-game eight-strikeout gem to earn the win on the mound. Dylan Brodeur and Mikie Boretti pitched well for First Class Construction, keeping the championship game close for the runners up.

John Schwartz, Kevin Mullin and Colin Hales led a potent offensive attack for GDC. The big blow, a two-run double by Hales in the fourth inning, not only increased the lead to four runs, but also, switched the momentum of the game. Andrew Leone and Robert and Mark DeLuca made several defensive plays in the field for GDC. Dillon Darcy finished the game with two hits.

First Class Construction, a team that led the International League in every offensive category during the regular season, was baffled all game long by the off-speed pitching of Lamont, but the team did have some stars on offense. Peter Cedrone finished with two hits and Tim McDonald had two hits and three RBI. Catcher Richie Turpin, shortstop Michelle Connolly, and outfielders Chuck Phelan, Nathan Quinlan, Aaron Brodeur and Justin Rogers played strong games defensively for FCC.

The final out of the championship game ended up being one of the more dramatic plays of the entire season as Peter Cedrone hot a bomb some 300 feet to centerfield only to watch as Colin Hales raced over to make an outstanding catch to secure the title for GDC.

"As league director of the International League for the past 10 seasons, I thought these past four months were my most rewarding of all as all 100 players in the program performed as gentlemen (and lady) and although some of the games resembled lacrosse or rugby scrums, the kids all had the same outlook on the season: to compete and have fun, which they all did," said Mike Saville, league director of the International League. "There was never a problem with the playing fields of Quincy, which were kept up and improved by the Parks Department (thanks to Tom and Kristen). The aforementioned sponsors, Graeber, Davis & Cantwell (Jay Davis) and First Class Construction (Kevin McDonald) have to be thanked along with the rest of the sponsors, Atlantic Power & Light (Mark Poli), Quincy Sox (Daryl Andrews), Feenan Financial (Tom Feenan) and Kip Orlando Hairstyles (Kip Orlando.

"With all the distractions a 13-16-year old might encounter today, it is encouraging to me that thirty boys can come down to the field every couple of nights and play some ball. Thanks kids."

Burke Club Wins Cal Ripken Major Title

The Burke Club recently captured the 2010 Cal Ripken Majors championship with a 3-2 victory over Colonial Federal.

The road to the title started for the Burke Club with an opening round playoff victory over the Kiwanis Club in the double-elimination tournament. Quinlan Evans and Kevin Fitzgerald both finished the game 4-for-4 at the plate.

Burke Club, in its next playoff game, lost a one-run slugfest to the Quincy Elks, 16-15; Austin Lee finished the game with two hits and AJ Currie hit a homerun for Burke Club.

With a 1-1 playoff record, the Burke Club now needed to win five games in a row in order to capture the Cal Ripken Major championship.

The Burke Club got the title-run started with a victory over the Lions Club. Zach Latini pitched Burke to victory and also finished with three hits; his brother, Jack, also finished the game with three hits. Jack Loughnane chipped in with a homerun.

The Rotary Club was next up, and behind three hits apiece from Jake Latini and Mike Soricelli, the Burke Club's championship hopes continued on. Scott Mele (homerun) and Nathan Campbell (hit) also contributed to the win.

In the semifinals, Burke Club faced off against the Quincy Elks, once again. This time Burke Club prevailed. Quinlan Evans earned the W on the mound and Zach Latini (three hits), Christian Connors (hit) and Brendan O'Brien played well; the semifinal victory set up a championship series with Colonial Federal.

Needing to win two games to earn the title, the Burke Club, in Game One, exploded offensively. Jack Loughnane belted three homeruns, including a grand slam, Kevin Fitzgerald hit a two-run homerun, and Mike Nazzaro had a two-run double.

In the final game of the Cal Ripken season, Scott Mele came up big, pitching his finest game of the season as the Burke Club won 3-2. AJ Currie also played well for Burke Club.

Brendan McDonald, John Campbell, and Chris Mass played well for Colonial Fed-

America FC To Host 'Summer Street Soccer Night'

America FC will be sponsoring "Summer Street Soccer Night," every Friday night from 6-8 p.m., beginning July 16 at the Quarry Hills Soccer Field.

Street Soccer is simply a pick up soccer game; you just show up at the start of the activity, teams are picked, and soccer is played – the activity is free. It is open to any youth soccer player from Under-8 to high school age and small fields will be erected at the site to accommodate the number of teams that are formed.

"There is no better teacher than the game itself," said AFC club president James Abundis. "If you want to be good in the sport, it is not one you can just pick on a seasonal basis. You have to play it all of the time to keep your skills sharp or improve them.

"More kids are playing soccer locally at a more intense and frequent level than ever before but compared to other communities we surprisingly still don't play as much as them."

The only structure that is provided by organizers is helping set up the teams and setting up small fields once the teams are picked. Players will then simply be allowed to play without any coaching. Street soccer, or pick up soccer, is the norm is most soccer loving countries; players usually just play on the streets as they are growing up and later get involved with a structured youth soccer organization once they have acquired considerable skills learned by just playing the game constantly.

"Soccer is simply a game," added Abundis. "Playing any game, whether soccer or baseball, should be fun. That is why kids play them. Kids don't need adults to teach them how to do something that comes naturally to them. Just let them play."

For safety reasons, interested players must wear soccer shorts, shin guards, soccer socks, and a cool t-shirt; they should also bring a bottle of water.

For additional information, contact Abundis at 617-472-1278.

Hancock Strikers FC U9 Girls Wrap-Up Successful Inaugural Season

The Hancock Strikers FC Under-9 team completed their successful inaugural season by finishing with a record of 3-1 in the Under-10 Division at the 2010 Cape Cod Challenge held over the Memorial Day weekend.

The Strikers Under-9 team was made up of players who had recently graduated from the Strikers Foundation Program.

The team, which was led by Derek McCleary and Don Martin, is designed to maximize soccer skills development in a fun and supportive environment.

"It is obvious that the skills the girls learned working with Derek and Don over the course of the spring have put them well ahead of their peers," said Chuck Stravin, a member of the Strikers Board of Directors and proud Under-9 parent. "This was more than evident in the Cape Cod Challenge as the girls played against older Under-10 teams.

"The skills and determination our girls showed down the Cape was incredible for girls at this age group. Keep an eye on this team over the next few years because the Strikers are building something very special."

Hancock Strikers FC is a nonprofit premier soccer club based in Quincy; the Strikers goal is to inspire young soccer players and increase their love of the game of soccer by providing them with an opportunity to improve as players, athletes, teammates, friends and leaders by promoting a pursuit of excellence through hard work and perseverance. The Strikers vision is to help players reach their full potential on the soccer field and their lives.

Tournament To Be Held July 10-11 in Woburn

Wollaston Blue Qualifies for Senior Babe Ruth Tourney

The Wollaston Blue Senior Babe Ruth baseball team recently qualified for the Eastern Massachusetts Senior Babe Ruth Tournament (16-18-year old Division) to be held this weekend (July 10-11) in Woburn.

Wollaston clinched a tournament berth by winning its last seven games to lead the Northwest Division of the South Shore Babe Ruth League with a 9-3 record (as of June 30); Wollaston edged Dedham out by a half a game and Norwood by a game and a half.

The team's improbable streak to the tournament was the result of timely hitting, veteran leadership, solid defense, and key pitching. The team batting average is .336. Paul Gould is pacing the offensive attack with a .621 batting average and Nick Milone (.545), Kevin Jackson (.407), Ricky Long (.375), Andrew Fonte (.375), Eric Kelly (.368), Danny Higgins (.333), and Torey Gustin (.308) are also contributing at the plate.

Kevin McDonough and Ned Gould, Wollaston's two three-year veterans, have played error free ball while sharing left field responsibilities. Both have the same on base percentage of .385 and lead the club in sacrifice bunts. Fonte, Kelly and Higgins share the catcher and shortstop positions; Jackson, Paul Gould, Gustin and Milone share the center field and right field positions; Terrance Rooney, who knocked in the winning run in the season opener against Westwood, anchors third base, and Colin Edgerly, is the most versatile player as he has played shortstop, second base, first base and catcher. Rob Lawton and Tyler Braun are solid second basemen; Long and Andrew Fonte share the first base position, and Conor and Ryan Dougherty play right field and third base, respectively.

The two aces of the staff have been left-handers Andrew Fonte and Nick Milone; Fonte won three of seven games during the winning streak, beating the top-three contending teams in Dedham, Norwood and Westwood. Milone has pitched the most innings and leads the team in strikeouts; he has two wins.

Fonte also pitched a complete game in Wollaston's victory over Weymouth and Paul Gould was the winning pitcher in the season opener.

Longtime coaches Bob Griffin and Wendall Cosgrove coach Wollaston Blue.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Of all the blessings we receive in our lifetime, the gift of patience is one of the greatest...

PATIENCE is love at work. Patience is a mother who loves her small child even after he has spilled a glass of milk on the tablecloth and himself.

PATIENCE is a father teaching his teenage son how to drive an automobile without getting angry at him for his every wrong move.

PATIENCE is the man in his wheelchair and the woman in her walker thanking God for their blessings and bearing their hardships with a smile.

PATIENCE keeps our tongues from uttering unkind words, keeps our hands from doing angry deeds, keeps our feet from hasty acts.

PATIENCE is God's restraining hand. Surely it is what God must have in dealing with us every day.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A perplexing situation needs to be dealt with in order to avoid problems later on. Rely on both your own sense of what's right and the advice of someone you trust to help work it out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Let your sharp Taurean business insight guide you when considering a "dream deal." Without all the facts, it could turn into a nightmare. Remember: Investigate before investing.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Sharing so much of your time and your gifts with others is what you do so well, and this week, don't be surprised if others want to share with you. Enjoy the experience. You've earned it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A difficult personal situation seems to defy efforts to resolve it. Perhaps you're too close to it. Take some time to reassess what went wrong, and then see where things can be set right.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leonine pride could be piqued a bit when someone else appears to be standing in your light. Be patient and resist the urge to growl at the interloper. You'll soon be the "mane" attraction again.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A professional situation benefits from your clear assessment of the circumstances involved. On the personal side, that new relationship looks as if it will continue to grow.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) More good news about a loved one helps reassure others who could not share your more-optimistic view before. Continue to help everyone in need of your comforting presence.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creating new friendships could turn out to be the unexpected but welcome result of reconnecting with old friends. The weekend is a good time for fun and games. Enjoy!

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The more you learn about what you plan to do, the more likely you are to consider making some changes in your plans. This is good; don't resist it. Instead, go with it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A career change is still in your aspect, but a potential workplace change could be what you've been looking for. See what develops before making any drastic moves.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your energy levels are high this week, which should help you get all your workaday tasks done and still leave you with enough breath to handle some domestic challenges.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An unexpected fluke could cause problems with your travel plans. If so, use the time to troll for other available options, and you might be pleasantly surprised at what turns up.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy the company of lots of people, but you also can treasure the moments shared with just one special person.

Demolition crews struck the first blow to the exterior of Quincy Fair Mall in predawn hours Tuesday when a Happy Nappy crane removed the overhead walkway between the Ross Parking Garage and the rear of the building.

"They're going to start Thursday at the Registry," Planning Director Dennis Harrington said Monday, noting the Mall demolition project is on schedule and should be completed by the 15th of August. The property is located at 1563-1597 Hancock St.

Harrington said the demolition began at night so as not to disrupt commerce in Quincy Center where traffic should not be affected too

Plan Includes Efficient Traffic Lights, Larger Recycling Bins

Goal: Reduce Energy Consumption

By JOE REARDON

Monies for a full-time city energy manager, an energy-efficient traffic light system and the distribution of large recycling bins to residents are just part of the ambitious $881,000 program that was spelled out Monday at City Hall.

The program is aimed at dramatically reducing energy consumption by the city over several years.

"Energy Smart Quincy" is aimed at public assets and city residents by combining a series of local state initiatives using the grant awarded to the city by federal Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block.

"Energy Smart Quincy is going to be an invaluable tool to help us act locally to reduce our fossil fuel usage, create green jobs and get our community actively involved," said Mayor Thomas Koch.

Cong. William Delahunt and state Sen. Michael Morrissey who were instrumental in working to moving ahead with the plan, were present at the announcement at City Hall Plaza.

"This welcome federal funding will make improvements in municipal buildings that will help keep energy costs down," said Delahunt. "These enhancements will move Quincy toward better overall energy efficiency, create green jobs, reduce our environmental impact, and under Mayor Koch's leadership, demonstrate that Quincy can be a leader in energy innovation."

Highlights of the program include:

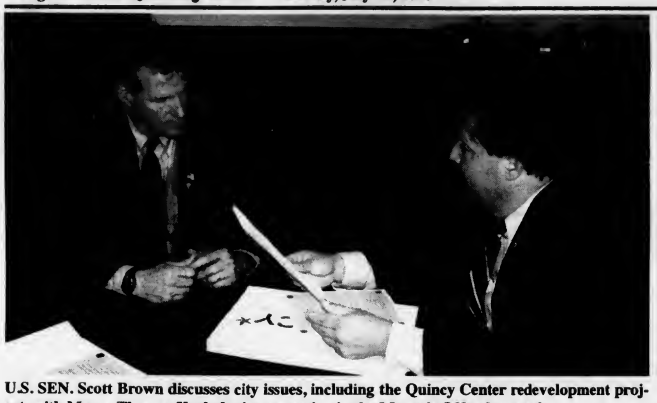
Wollaston Walk-About Highlights Safety Gaps

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy ranked 16th among the worst cities for pedestrian and bicycle accidents in the state, according to a six-year study cited Monday by Cathy Buckley of the Boston Region Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO).

However, Buckley was quick to point out that the study highlights the significant number of pedestrians and bikers in Quincy as well as the need for upgrades that could improve not only the city's safety, but, also, its appeal and economy.

Buckley addressed some 30 officials, business owners and residents attending an afternoon workshop focusing on safe walking and biking in Wollaston, the Wollaston Business District and the city.



The Planning Department, the Chamber of Commerce and the MPO sponsored the program held at Wollaston Public Library. Planning Director Dennis Harrington opened Monday's session organized by

U.S. SENATOR Scott Brown helps position a White House wreath on the tomb of John Quincy Adams in the crypt of United First Parish Church after a ceremony July 9 marked the 243rd birthday anniversary of the 6th President of the United States. Also attending the wreath laying were Rev. Sheldon Bennett (third from right), minister of United First Parish; and Navy Commander David Hagen, (next to Brown), representing President Barack Obama. Brown – who holds the same U.S. Senate seat that Adams served – was the first sitting Senator to attend a wreath laying ceremony at the church since the tradition began more than 40 years ago. Sen. Brown, Koch Discuss Downtown Plans

Mayor Thomas Koch held what he a called a "very positive and very productive" meeting with U.S. Senator Scott Brown at City Hall on Friday in which the Mayor detailed the City's plans for redeveloping Quincy Center.

"A project of this magnitude is going to require a partnership at every level of government," Mayor Koch said. "I appreciate the time Senator Brown spent listening to our plans, and we are looking forward to continuing to work together on a project that is going to be the economic and jobs engine for Quincy for years to come. It was a very positive and productive meeting."

Mayor Koch said he discussed the details of the $1 billion, including the unique financing mechanism that will ensure that an expected $250 million investment in public infrastructure is paid for by revenue generated by the private development.

The City has been working with state and federal leaders to help secure additional backing for the public portions of the project, which is expected to create more than 4,000 constructions and 7,000 permanent jobs.

"As we've said from Day One, this is a true public-private partnership where the private investment spurs the local investment – not the reverse," said Koch. "We are making progress every day, and it was a valuable opportunity to keep the Senator updated on our progress."

Creating a safer and attractive pedestrian destination is part of a long-range effort to overhaul Wollaston Center which ranks second only to Quincy Center as a major business center.

Planners offered a preliminary vision of a revived Wollaston Center last July when they offered a possible overhaul including such options as housing, business and traffic enhancements aimed at modernizing the area.

Monday's three-part workshop focused on developing a more "walkable community."

"It's not that we try to make a place good for walking and put the cars out," said Buckley, stressing that traffic and parking are essential to the economic health of an area. However, improving pedestrian safety, aesthetics and access can go hand-in-hand with a thriving community, she said, citing the emergence of outdoor cafes and sidewalk attractions.

Buckley recommended increasing the number of crosswalks and their visibility by bricking or painting, narrowing lanes and street openings, widening sidewalks, adding trees, shrubs and benches and audible pedestrian signals. She, also, stressed that "walkability" targets all pedestrian activity, including those in wheelchairs, using canes or pushing baby carriages.

"We will be incorporating some of these ideas," Planning Director Dennis Harrington said after Buckley's presentation.

Following the initial presentation, the group walked the Wollaston business area where Buckley and the residents offered recommendations for better accessibility for the handicapped, more visible markings, traffic enforcement, reduction of driveway openings, the elimination of visibility obstructions and sidewalk improvements.

Buckley's presentation is available on the city website or by contacting the Planning Department which, also, welcomes comments on the program.

On hand for the workshop were Harrington, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, Traffic Engineer Jack Gillan, Dean Rizzo, Quincy Chamber of Commerce, Faye Reed, Chairperson, Quincy Disability Commission, Gregory Dicovitsky, Senior project Manager, TRA of Boston and former Planning Director Richard Meade.

Demo Begins At Fair Mall

much during the process.

For those who expected a crash and bang and concrete flying during the late night work this week, they were in for a disappointment. The walkway was dismantled quietly beginning at 9:30 p.m. Monday.

First off, the crews dispatched the protective glass enclosure and then the cement pathway floated off on the crane like a gargantuan Lego prop. It did take two tries for the first block.

The crane operators aborted the first effort as workers adjusted levels and weights. By 3 a.m., the demolition was completed and all that remained was cleanup.

All that remained Tuesday morning was one solid cement post by the garage.

On hand overseeing safety issues were MassHighway inspectors P.K. Sen, Resident Engineer and Jim Benjamin, Assistant to the Resident Engineer. Sen pointed out the project is a state operation.

Sen and Benjamin observed the project as crews from J.R. Vinagro Corp. adjusted the wiring and rubber pads gripping the horizontal blocks.

"Everything is going exactly the way it was planned," said Sen.

"I used to come here for the movies and the Registry. Now I'm watching it come down," said Benjamin who recalled bringing his son to Batman movies and Diehard 2 at the Patriot Cinemas in the Mall while locals remember watching The Sopranos in a crowded theater.

As for explosives, none will be used until demolition of the main building begins and then, observers expect only minor events.

The Registry area of the mall will be dismantled later this week when crews begin removing the red brick walls and carting off the remnants of the commercial building formerly owned by Messina Quincy Fair Properties, LLP. of Braintree.

Quincy purchased the building in 2008 for over $2 million and all but the concourse section of the land eventually reverts to the Messina company.

Once completed, the concourse will skirt Quincy Center and allow a single four-lane East-West roadway from Granite Street to Southern Artery with direct access to Burgin Parkway. The new roadway will be named the Walter J. Hannon, Jr. Parkway in honor of the city's former mayor.

CRANE REMOVES the walkway from Ross Parking Garage to the Quincy Fair Mall building around 3 a.m. Tuesday morning. The materials were loaded onto flatbed trailers and all but one cement column were removed from the site shortly thereafter. Safety inspectors from MasHighway observed the process. (Jim Benjamin Photo/Courtesy MassHighway)

So Long Sidewalk Sale

The hot, steamy weather certainly reminds us that it's July.

But for many local residents and downtown businesses, something seems missing this week.

Why?

Because for the past nearly 40 years, the third week in July has meant one thing: the annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale. For three days – Thursday, Friday and Saturday – Hancock Street between Granite and School Streets became a pedestrian mall. Thrifty shoppers could count on finding some bargains and downtown merchants could depend on doing some decent business during the dogs days of summer.

But those days are over.

Last year, the Quincy Business Association announced the 2009 festival – the 38th overall – would be the last.

However, the sidewalk sale may not be totally scrapped, but simply sidelined until some of the revitalization efforts in Quincy Square have come to fruition.

"With the massive redevelopment plans and the major construction currently taking place in the area, the Association felt it best to make Sidewalk Days 2009 the last for this format until the transformation of Quincy Center was complete," says Maralin Manning, the former director of the QBA.

In the past year, the QBA has merged with the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and Manning is now the director of New Business Development with the Quincy Chamber.

Manning, who was directly involved in the last 20 Sidewalk Sales, says it would have been challenging to orchestrate the event this year.

But the door is apparently open for an outdoor downtown promotion to return someday.

"Perhaps in the future in a new format, in a great new location, it will be re-instituted," she adds.

The event was the brainchild of a group of local businessmen who had formed the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association in the early 1970s. Shoppers from throughout the city and region flocked to Quincy Square to check out bargains under colorful tents up and down Hancock Street.

There was also entertainment and the highlight of the three-day event: the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant. The pageant was phased out years ago.

The sale was also commonly referred to as the Downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar. I recently came across a 24-page advertising supplement that was inserted in The Quincy Sun 30 years ago this week.

While the supplement offers a trip down memory lane, it's also a sad reminder that the Square has lost many businesses over the years.

Here are some of them - and some of the sales they offered:

Tempo Fashions, located at 108 Parkingway – tank tops and shorts, $2 and $3; Kincaide's, 1609 Hancock St., any complete dinette set, $197 or any sofa and chair, $397; Beacon Fabric and Furniture, 1568 Hancock St., advertised fabric for $2.49 a yard and a Queen Anne Fireside Chair for $139.

Jason's was always a magnet for shoppers. The luggage and music shop at 1514 Hancock St. offered luggage, guitars and banjos for up to 50 percent off regular prices. In the music bin at Jason's single albums like Paul McCartney "McCartney II" and Billy Joel's "Glass House" sold for $5.49 each. Pink Floyd's double album "The Wall" was $9.99.

Another mainstay merchant downtown was Barker's at 1459 Hancock St. During the Sidewalk Sale 30 years ago, you could meet the blue TV pals The Smurfs.

Also rolling out a myriad of sale items was Friendly Family Centers at 1453 Hancock St. Sale items included 18 Gillette Super Blue (shaving) Blades for 99 cents, a Faberware replacement coffee carafe for $2.99 and a can of Cutter Insect Repellent Spray for $1.99.

Other downtown merchants included Cummings at 1479 Hancock St., Harts Fine Jewelers, 1422 Hancock St., Ryder's Curtains and Drapes, 1617 Hancock St. (which would move later to 1489 Hancock St. in the former Milton's location), Clogs To Boots, 1474A Hancock St., Tags Discount Furniture and Sleep Shop, 1486 Hancock St., and Eileen's Special Sizes, 1464 Hancock St..

And there were others like Colman's Sporting Goods, 1630 Hancock St.; Woolworth's at the corner of Hancock and Cliveden Streets, Lerner Clothing Store, 1535 Hancock St.; Miller Shoes, 1546 Hancock St., Phase II Discount Jewelry, 1361 Hancock St., and Claus Gelotte Camera Stores, 1387 Hancock St.

There was also a two-page "double-truck" ad placed by Sears in the supplement. The ad noted 1980 was the last Sidewalk Sale for the Quincy Sears (since it was closing and moving to the South Shore Plaza in Braintree). Sale items included a self-cleaning copper tone electric range for $299, a built-in dishwasher for $269 and 30 pounds of laundry detergent for $10.98. Clothing was as low as 67 cents for children's summer sportswear and $7.97 for men's jeans.

Scanning the supplement, only three businesses remain. Rogers Jewelers can still be found at 1402 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Frantic Framers – which used to be at 1592 Hancock St., is now located on Franklin St. And Granite City Electric, which also advertised in the supplement, is still at 19 Quincy Ave.

For many youngsters, the Sidewalk Sale was the unofficial beginning of the end of summer vacation. Many made a bee-line to Sawyer's for "back-to-school" clothes. Once the sidewalk sale was over, you knew the hazy, crazy and mostly lazy days of summer were numbered.

In more recent years, the Sidewalk Sale was just not the same. Outside vendors were brought in to fill up street space and sell their crafts and wares. Some local merchants still reported brisk sales despite temperatures that usually were the hottest of the season. Restaurants and local eateries offering cold drinks and hot and cold food did well, too.

The Square has certainly changed over the years. And it can change again with more retail outlets and foot traffic.

For now all's that left are memories of "Shopperstown" on some sweltering July days of yesteryear.

This week won't seem the same without the "bazaar."

But maybe I'll just walk down Hancock Street anyway.

THE WREATH-LAYING CEREMONY marking the 243rd birthday anniversary of John Quincy Adams July 9 at United First Parish Church drew a larger crowd than usual, church officials said.

The Rev. Sheldon Bennett said another 100 people attended the ceremony – up from the usual 250 who normally turn out. He attributed the increase to Sen. Scott Brown, the first sitting U.S. senator to attend and speak at the ceremony since the tradition began with Lyndon Johnson in the White House.

The next wreath-laying will take place this October to mark the 275th birthday of John Adams. The second U.S. President was born Oct. 30, 1735.

One dignitary who may be invited to speak is Cong. William Delahunt who will be retiring from Congress. He's represented Quincy and the 10th District for 14 years. Another potential speaker in the future is the Bay State's other Senator, John Kerry.

A TOUCH OF HOLLYWOOD – The JQA birthday anniversary ceremony also drew a familiar face for fans of the TV series, "Northern Exposure."

Janine Turner – whose portrayal of Maggie O'Connell from 1990-1994 earned her an Emmy nomination and three Golden Globe nominations for best actress in a drama series – also attended the ceremony.

But it was not her first visit to United First Parish Church.

JANINE TURNER

Turner, who's gone blonde, visited the church about a month ago, Rev. Sheldon Bennett said. "It was quite a moving experience for her. She burst into tears when she walked into the crypt." She also rested a rose on the tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives, First Ladies Abigail Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams.

Turner apparently is a big fan of the Adamses. She also has her own foundation called "Constituting America" accessible on the Web.

"We meet people from all over the world who are interested in the Adamses for all kinds of reasons," Bennett adds.

Turner was in the crypt when the wreath from the White House was placed on the tomb on John Quincy Adams.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1953 real photo postcard showing the buildings in the center and right, most recently known as the Quincy Fair Mall, that are scheduled for demolition for the new Walter Hannon Roadway. The old Touraine building on the left will remain. That building was last used as a Brazilian Church and is now for rent. Touraine closed in 1980, the same year that Sears – on the right – moved to the South Shore Plaza. Sears had a store in Quincy Square for 50 years first opening in 1930. At the time of this photo Sears was just planning to expand into the old theater building in the center of the picture. The theater – first known as the Quincy Theatre – opened around 1915 and become known as the Capitol after World War II; it closed just about the time of this picture. Sears had just built the low garage building in the foreground where they sold tires, batteries and automotive accessories. According to the sign you could buy motor oil for only 16 cents a quart if you brought your own container. Many people changed their own motor oil in those days. The Flagg Photo Service produced the picture for this postcard. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

West Squantum Street Bridge Ramp Restricted Until October

MassDOT has closed off access to the Newport Avenue Northbound On Ramp from West Squantum Street Eastbound in Quincy.

The restriction will be in effect through mid-October.

. The onramp will remain open for drivers travelling on West Squantum Street Westbound.

The Newport Avenue Northbound offramp to West Squantum Street, which was closed in April, will remain closed and the section of West Squantum Street between Holmes Street and Arlington Street will continue to be reduced to a single lane in each direction to allow for bridge reconstruction work.

Drivers traveling Eastbound on West Squantum Street destined to Newport Avenue Northbound will be detoured via a right turn onto Fayette Street and a left turn onto Holbrook Road, connecting to Newport Avenue via a signalized intersection.

This project is part of MassDOT's Accelerated Bridge Program. The work is entering the second of three phases.

Further changes to the detours and traffic set ups will be announced in advance.

The overall project is expected to be completed in October.

MassDOT encourages drivers to allow extra time for their trips and to reduce speed and use caution when traveling through the work zone.

For more information contact Stephanie Boundy, Public Outreach Coordinator, Massachusetts Department of Transportation, Accelerated Bridge Program office: (617) 973-8049.

$200M Development Seen For North Quincy

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
41 Years Ago

A potential $200 million plus development is seen for the Montclair Marshes area of North Quincy, if a planned computer center office building complex gets a final green light.

It would mean the area alone would surpass the city's current total property valuation of $194.5 million.

"This would have the greatest favorable impact on the city's real estate tax structure in history," informed sources told the Quincy Sun.

They said the development would occur in the next seven years, providing the computer complex planned by a nationally known financial institution materializes. The complex is expected to cost an estimated $25 to $40 million, and, when completed, have about 2,000 employees with an annual payroll of $20 million.

33 HATS NOW IN THE RING

Two more candidates, including an incumbent, have taken out nomination papers for the Oct. 7 preliminary election. This brings to 33 the total number of candidates with papers in circulation.

Latest to take out papers and the seats they seek: Councillor Clifford H. Marshall, Ward 2 councillor and Robert W. Page also for Ward 2 councillor.

GOOD NEIGHBOR BALLOTING BEGINS IN HN

It's election time in Houghs Neck. There is a ballot box at Pages Pharmacy and nominations will be cast through Aug. 15.

Residents are voting, as they have since 1957, for "Good Neighbors" to be honored at the annual October Awards Banquet of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Qualifications require five years residency or activity in Houghs Neck. Persons may be nominated for a single act of heroism, continued acts of good neighborliness or civic achievements.

Louisa Catherine Adams Talk At Adams National Park Tonight

Prize-winning historian Michael O'Brien will talk about First Lady Louisa Catherine Adams tonight (Thursday) from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Adams Carriage House, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The program and free and open to the public.

LOUISA CATHERINE ADAMS

In the winter of 1815, Louisa Catherine, with her young son Charles Francis, made a 40-day journey by Russian carriage from Saint Petersburg to Paris to reunite with her diplomat husband, John Quincy Adams. There was plenty of danger along the way as Napoleon had escaped from exile in Elba and was also on his way to Paris.

O'Brien reconstructs this dramatic tale in Mrs. Adams in Winter: A Journey in the Last Days of Napoleon. In his compelling and insightful book, O'Brien explores the life of Louisa Catherine Adams – the only foreign-born First Lady who spent her life crossing borders, both literally and figuratively. She was born in England, lived in France, and married and American diplomat who became the 6th President of the United States.

As she grew older, Louisa viewed her remarkable journey as an extraordinary accomplishment. Louisa Catherine Adams was, like her grandson Henry Adams, a family historian whose observations and insights provide a unique window into the world of one of America's most intriguing political families.

Ann's Meatloaf Medley

One of my family's favorite foods is meatloaf. Even when we are in a restaurant, and the special is meatloaf, most all of us order it.

Through the years, I have been making a meatloaf stuffed roll with either spinach or a favorite vegetable.

But my niece Ann made her version of a meatloaf roll like preparing lasagna. It's easy to make and to serve, and very delicious. The following amounts of ingredients is for a family of 4 to 6, but you can make it according to how many will be served. Either make a favorite meatloaf recipe or use the following.

ANN'S MEATLOAF MEDLEY

3 pounds ground turkey (or beef if preferred)
3 eggs
1 1/4 ounce bag of frozen spinach (do not thaw)
½ cup grated cheese
½ cup seasoned breadcrumbs
Salt and pepper to taste
Any favorite herbs
1 large bag shredded cheese (any favorite)

Prepare the meatloaf mixture except for the spinach and shredded cheese. In a large slightly greased baking pan, place a layer of the meatloaf mixture. On top of that add the spinach. Then add the shredded cheese and then top it with another layer of the meatloaf mixture and shredded cheese

Bake in a 350-degree oven for 35 minutes until cheese is melted. Cut in squares.

Quincy Farmers' Market To Accept SNAP/EBT Cards This Summer

The Quincy Farmers' Market will accept SNAP EBT Card this summer, announce Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director Dennis Harrington – in partnership with the and Quincy Community Action Program and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

This effort is made possible by a Community Development Block Grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Effective July 1st, recipients of the USDA's Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP, formerly called Food Stamps) can purchase farm-fresh fruits and vegetables using their EBT cards at the Quincy Farmer's Market. The market operates each Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. from late June until mid-November.

The market is located at the John Hancock Municipal Parking Lot (across from the Quincy courthouse) in Quincy Center.

Market vendors feature fresh, in-season food that is locally-grown including vegetables, fruits, bread, goat cheese and many other items.

The SNAP project was developed as a collaborative effort among the Quincy Farmer's Market, the City of Quincy, Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and the MA Department of Transitional Assistance to expand the accessibility of fresh, locally-grown produce to low/moderate-income individuals and families in Quincy.

"I'm pleased that we are leveraging our HUD dollars to help promote increased access to fresh, locally-grown fruits and vegetables. Not only will this help boost family health, it will boost the local and regional economy," Koch said.

For more information on the market, visit the Quincy Farmer's Market Website at www.quincyfarmersmarket.com, or the Quincy Community Action Program website at www.qcap.org.

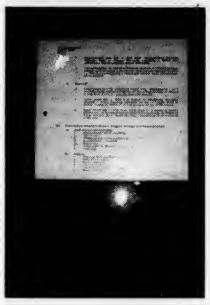
Electronic Board At City Hall Up, Running With Notices

State Law Prohibits 'Postcard Posting' Of Open Meetings, Agendas

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City Clerk Joseph Shea said Monday the era of 'postcard posting' is over for city commissions and committees who skirted the state's Open Meeting Law by sending skimpy notice of meeting agendas.



Beginning this month, the Attorney General's office will enforce the state's regulations requiring full public disclosure of agendas 48 hours before the meeting of every public body, as well as detailed minutes of every meeting.

Not only that but all meeting notices must be posted for public viewing 24/7 under the new rules.

Shea said Quincy's already implementing the law and, thanks to Chuck Phelan, Director of Information Technology, technology is already in place for a 'midnight messenger' at City Hall.

The messenger, an electronic screen enclosed in a wooden cabinet beams notices of meetings and full agendas, and is now operating at City Hall. The screen is located at the left of the main entrance near the entrance for handicapped persons.

The screen currently reflects sunlight, but Shea and Phelan said that all notices will still be posted on the bulletin in Old City Hall and the reflections disappear once the sun dims.

THIS ELECTRONIC SCREEN which provides 48-hour notice of all public meetings in the city is located to the left of the ATM machine at City Hall. The notices must be posted in detail 48-hours before every meeting.

In addition, Phelan posts all meetings and the agendas on the city's website so residents have 48-hour notice.

None of the regulations are new, but the state's attorney general's office has tightened up interpretations, such as requiring that all correspondence be listed on the agendas and all items that will discussed. Meeting minutes must also reflect this.

"All this has been ongoing for years,' said Shea who did add that the goal is better accessibility. He noted that the City Council, the Conservation Commission and the Zoning Board of Appeals have always provided full disclosure of upcoming meetings.

However, other committees have not been as conscientious. Those secretaries and chairpersons sent over postcards describing simply the date and time of a meeting with no clue as to planned action.

"What this does away with is 'postcard posting," said Shea, adding, "We're in full conformance."

Phelan said the video screen cost $200 and city carpenter Frank DeVito built the wooden case.

ROUND-THE-CLOCK notice to the public of official actions and discussion is now available through an electronic device installed at City Hall. Chuck Phelan (left), director of Information Technology, and City Clerk Joseph Shea stand in front of the monitor viewed through a glass panel near the side entrance at City Hall. Shea said the monitor will also help people attending night meetings determine the proper floor or meeting room at City Hall. Meetings will still be posted on the bulletin board in the first-floor hallway old City Hall and, thanks to Phelan, on the city's website. Quincy Sun Photos/Laura Griffin and unmetered access over the last two years, all of which have helped us hold down rate increases charged by the MWRA. This project will continue that progress in a very substantial way."

City Replacing Water Meters

The new Automated Meter Reading System will allow for actual measurements without requiring a Water Department employee to be dispatched to every house in Quincy. The system will use fixed radio transmitters that will send readings directly to a computer network with the server located at the Department of Public Works, officials said. When the project complete, every water meter in the City will be able to be read in a single day.

The project will be paid for through Federal Stimulus grants and discounted loans, and the debt will be financed by savings earned through previous reforms in the Water and Sewer Department, Koch said. No money from the City's general operating budget will be used for the project, and is not tied to any rate increase for Water and Sewer customers, he said.

Department of Public Works Commissioner Lawrence Prendeville said the new meter system will be a major boost to the department's efforts to ensure that the City's water bills reflect the "water that the community uses."

The project is expected to begin this fall, and the City will be a launching a major public outreach campaign as it moves forward, including a extensive security process.

Replacing meters will require contractors to enter residential homes, and workers, who will be in pairs, will be wearing identification badges and will travel in clearly marked vehicles. Photos of authorized personnel will be available on the City's website when the project starts, all contractors will undergo background checks, and the Quincy Police will be notified when contractors are in specific neighborhoods.

Residents will receive multiple notices of the replacement schedule for specific neighborhoods as the project moves forward, and the City is planning to hold informational meetings and public service announcements on Quincy Access Television. The work will not begin until the fall.

A total of 21,000 new meters and 24,000 transmitters will be installed in homes and businesses as part of the project, which officials hope will be complete by the end of 2012.

Goal: Reducing Energy Consumption

mer St. John's School for Quincy Community Action Program's new Headstart location with energy efficient windows, insulation, HVAC systems, lighting and controls.

• $250,000 for a full-time city energy manager. The funds would cover a three-year contract. His/Her job will be targeting a 20-percent reduction in municipal energy output over the course of the contract. The job will encompass oversight, repair and monitoring of all energy systems, developing strategies and implementing energy-saving measures.

• $216,000 for a traffic signal system as part of an economic redevelopment plan for Brewer's Corner.

• $61,000 to create more efficient traffic flow at the intersections on Washington Street, Southern Artery and Willard Street through interconnected and synchronized traffic signals. The hope is to limit vehicular idling and reduce both noise and air pollution.

• $71,000 to distribute large recycle bins to residents as part of the city's "Single-Stream Recycling" program. The larger bins, roughly the size of a trash barrel, will facilitate increased recycling by providing residents with once receptacle capable of handling a mix of paper, glass, metal and plastics. Recycling has been identified by the Department of Energy as a way to reduce greenhouse gases and save money at the same time.

Delahunt said the $881,000 was a "pretty good chunk" for the program, but was also impressed by the expected $880,000 in aggregate savings. "This is not just about reducing carbon emissions," said Delahunt. "If you're a resident of the city, this is going to save you dollars.

"It's going to provide every member of this community the chance to have his or her energy bill reduced. This is about saving dollars."

Morrissey said it was "great to see the plan come together" and point out the upsides including reduced costs a greener city. "Energy Smart Quincy will be a beacon to all our towns in the commonwealth," he said. "Reducing our dependence on fossil fuels makes sense for the environment and it makes sense economically, an that's been at the heart of our work on these issues in the legislature. I am proud that we are working together in Quincy to be a leader on energy efficiency."

Christina Halfpenny of National Grid said she was thrilled to have a partnership with Mass Energy and the city. "It's very exciting to see so much support from the leaders of Quincy," she said.

Quincy residents Carmen Donohue and Karen Smith both had their homes energy audited by Next Step Living and a game plan is set up to cut down on electric bills with a more efficient energy output.

Donohue, a resident of North Payne Street, found that there was no insulation in the home and was impressed to learn there are interest free loans to get the necessary work done. "It's very exciting," said Donohue. "They want everyone in town to eventually do this."

PREPARING FOR PODIATRY
Podiatrists provide their clients with a full range of treatments relating to the health and function of the foot, ankle, and lower leg. The first two years of podiatric medicine study is comparable to many other medical schools. Podiatric studies include anatomy, psychology, chemistry, pharmacology, and pathology. In addition, students receive specialized surgical training for a wide variety of foot procedures. The third and fourth years are mostly devoted to clinical rotations that train students in taking podiatric histories, performing examinations, interpreting test results, and making correct diagnosis. In many states, obtaining a Doctor of Podiatric Medicine degree requires a two-year postdoctoral residency. Continuing education is usually required for a podiatrist to meet state licensed renewal requirements.
Podiatrists are medical professionals who are specially trained to use a wide range of therapies and surgeries to treat conditions relating to foot structure and function. For instance, I am one of only two podiatrists in this state who has completed the advanced training necessary to offer patients relief from pronation through the use of the HyProCure™ procedure, a titanium implant that prevents the abnormal motion of the ankle caused by this condition. We're located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. You can reach us at 781-986-3668.

Insurance STRATEGIES

by Jim Sullivan
ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?
At JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY, we offer comprehensive insurance coverage for homes, garages, and property. During our initial meeting with clients, we review the features and location of their property and whether they own pets. As an independent insurance agency, we are able to offer you the best coverage at the most competitive price. Please call us at 617-328-8600 to arrange an insurance consultation. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.
If you have a dog for a pet, its breed could have an impact on your ability to purchase a homeowners insurance policy that includes liability for your dog. According to the Insurance Information Institute, dog-bite claims account for roughly one-third of all homeowner's liability claims. Thus, if you are among the estimated 39% of American households with a canine family member, you may want to check with your insurance agent. Some insurance companies are wary of insuring households with certain breeds of dogs that they consider to be potentially more prone to biting. Other companies will insure households with any breed of dog. At the very least, insurance companies want to know if a dog has a history of biting.
NOTE: Some insurance companies may attach an "exclusion" for a dog to the homeowners policy if the dog in the household has a record of biting, indicating that the insurance policy would not cover any liability claims caused by the dog.

QCU: 73 Years Of Commitment To Its Members

Seventy three years ago, a visionary group of Quincy Firefighters formed The Quincy Firemen's Credit Union, now known as the Quincy Credit Union, to help its Members meet their financial needs.

Since then, QCU's field of membership expanded to include City of Quincy workers and their families to its present charter consisting of residents or employees in Norfolk and Plymouth Counties, the Community of Dorchester and all their family members. QCU now serves over 26,000 Members. This large membership is due in part to the loyalty and satisfaction of Members who also refer their family and friends to Quincy Credit Union for their first mortgage, auto loan, or savings plan.

Much has changed in 73 years, but much has also stayed the same. The name, location and operating charter of QCU changed, but its core belief in people helping people is still the cornerstone of the Credit Union's service philosophy. QCU built its business on a strong commitment to its Member's financial well being and to its community. It is what differentiates QCU in the marketplace today. It should be noted that QCU considers the individuals whom it serves as Members not customers.

The success of Quincy Credit Union is attributed in part by three driving factors: the dedicated volunteer board of directors and hard working staff; the ability and desire to provide excellent service to loyal Members, and the willingness, and ability to quickly adapt to industry trends. QCU prides itself on its many no fee services, competitive interest rates on a wide variety of financial products, and state of the art technology and security.

Quincy Credit Union currently operates two locations: its main office located at 100 Quincy Avenue, in Quincy, and its first branch at 519 Columbian Street, in Weymouth, right over the Braintree Town Line.

For more information on Quincy Credit Union, visit www.qcu.org or call 617-479-5558.

Fire Safety Topics And QATV

For those of you looking for a quick summer update on grill safety without the need to read each detail, check out QATV's Channel 8.

Frequently during the day they are airing a public service announcement highliting grill safety through an animated video. If your TV is out for repair, enter onto the QATV website and click on the icon. It's the same minute and a half segment focusing exclusively on the safety aspects of grill use, while doing so in a less typical manner.

We'll do anything to promote our message, including a little self deprecating humor. Mark Crosby at QATV has been great at assisting me at both.

And while I'm on the subject, check out their viewing schedule on the same website, QATV. You will find a listing there titled QATV-10 Government Access Programming. Look for the QFD: Fire Prevention and You listings shown at designated times each day.

They highlight various fire safety subjects, typically focusing on those concerns within our own homes and the neighborhood as well.

Here are a few examples: smoke detectors, summer safety topics, senior fire safety, oxygen therapy safety, gas stations, assembly occupancies and much, much more. Roughly 40 in all, running since 2008.

I want to thank Mark and the rest of the staff at QATV for their efforts in assisting us in conveying our message. We'll shake that message up in an effort to keep it fresh and agreeable, while making our point as well.

Fire safety education can't be emphasized enough while we're quite fortunate within Quincy having THE QUINCY SUN and QATV fully on board with our efforts.

I'm quite indebted to them both, while grateful as well for the connection they've afforded me.

Paint Shortage Stymies Summer Crosswalk Project

By LAURA GRIFFIN

No one knows better than Traffic Engineer Jack Gillan that the city's crosswalks need new paint and the project was his department's major priority this summer.

"It looks like we're going to get a lot of the crosswalks done," Gillan told the Finance Committee in May, noting last year's successful project at all the city's school crossings.

But now Gillan has the money in his budget, but no paint. The crosswalk paint needed for the job is not available.

Gillan said he has ordered and re-ordered the paint from three manufacturers, but can't get it delivered. The problem is that the manufacturers do not have the resin that resists the weather wear and traffic on roadways.

When discussing the importance of the resin, Gillan said that any other paint would just wash away with winter storms and spring rains.

Safe crosswalks were a major focus this week when officials, local residents and business owners reviewed safety issues in the Wollaston business area and photos on display revealed fading and, often, barely visible markings.

A quick survey across the city offers a similar view of barely visible crosswalks at some of the most treacherous intersections in every ward but Ward 1. Even there, road markings are fading.

Crosswalks in residential areas in Wollaston, all over North Quincy, along Hancock Street at St. Ann's Church, on Southern Artery, on Washington Street, and the only clear markings in West Quincy are at schools.

The situation's no better in Quincy Center along Hancock Street where tourists have an easier time finding the Adams crypt or John Hancock's birthplace than a clear-cut crossing.

On Monday, Wollaston residents attended a workshop on safe walking and many described cars that won't stop, difficult intersections and the faded markings.

One local resident described crossing Hancock Street in a crosswalk with his five-year-old son at the T entrance. After almost being hit, he was then left stranded in the middle of Hancock Street as cars – oblivious to the law and the potential for a $100 fines – whizzed by.

Gillan said his department will prioritize intersections when the paint becomes available but he welcomed information from the public on problem crossings. Residents may leave a message with the Traffic Department at 617-376-1962 or via the city's website.

During a special workshop Monday, Cathy Buckley described a survey which found Quincy ranked as the 16th most dangerous city for walkers and bikers in Massachusetts.

The survey used statistics covering 2002 to 2008 when neither Gillan nor Chief Paul Keenan held their current positions.

Chief Keenan said Tuesday that his department used grant money for a special project last year targeting drivers violating crosswalks. From January to July 1, the department issued 67 tickets to drivers ignoring pedestrians in crosswalks.

City Planners Attend National Conference

Nancy Callanan and Sean Glennon from the city's Department of Planning and Community Development recently attended the Annual Meeting of the National Community Development Association (NCDA), held in Seattle, WA.

The mission of NCDA is to assist local governments to achieve high-quality, locally responsive programs for making communities better places to live and work, particularly for low and moderate income people.

Callanan is Quincy's community development director and serves on the Board of Directors of NCDA. She assisted in planning the annual meeting, and has both moderated and presented at previous national and regional NCDA meetings.

Glennon is a principal planner in the city and serves on the Technology Subcommittee of NCDA.

Major topics at the annual meeting included updates from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), an overview of the U.S. Census Bureau's Local Employment Dynamics Tool, fair housing training, and working with Community Housing Development Organizations.

Glennon was on a panel for a plenary session entitled, "Effective Program Management."

Quincy was one of only three communities nationwide that were selected to be on the panel. For his portion of the presentation, Glennon demonstrated a computer module he developed in Microsoft Excel to assist his department in administering the city's Homelessness Prevention and Rapid Re-Housing program.

Since the demonstration, both NCDA and HUD headquarters in Washington, D.C., have asked Glennon to make the module available for communities to use both regionally and nationwide.

WHITE HOUSE WREATH is placed on the granite tomb of John Quincy Adams, the 6th President of the United States, in the United First Parish Church crypt. From left are: Peter Boylston Adams, treasurer of the Adams National Historical Park and a direct descendant of JQA; Navy Petty Officer Katherine Zoller, Arthur Ducharme, director of the Visitors Program, United First Parish Church; the Rev. U.S. Senator Says The Nation's 6th President 'Established Himself As An Independent Thinker'

'Humbled' Brown Hails Principles Of John Quincy Adams

By JOE REARDON

Local and state dignitaries were on hand last Friday at the United First Parish Church as the presidential wreath was laid on John Quincy Adams' tomb, honoring the 243rd birthday anniversary of the sixth president of the United States.

Senator Scott Brown, making his first public appearance in Quincy since being elected to fill the void left by Ted Kennedy's passing, told the nearly 400 people who packed the pews of the sweltering Church of the Presidents that he was "humbled" to be elected to the same position that Adams held before becoming president in 1825. Brown said he found Adams' 50 years of public service amazing.

"His career did not end after four years as president," Brown said, pointing out that Adams went on to spend 17 years in the House of Representatives after his term ended in 1829. "It puts humility and dedication in public service into true perspective. He established himself as an independent thinker."

Brown, who helped position the wreath on Adams' tomb in the cool crypt of the church, said he tries to follow Adams' belief in the importance of voting for principle, even though it may not be the most popular stand.

"During these challenging times the American people are demanding we follow the example of the two people behind me," he said, pointing to the busts of both John and John Quincy Adams on the wall behind the podium he was speaking from.

The U.S. Navy Woodwind Quintet out of Newport, R.I., played the sweet sounding "Irish Air" as the church filled before the ceremony. Michael Cook, the president of the United First Parish, greeted the spectators and told them how proud the church officials were in sharing the history of the Adamses with thousands of visitors every year.

Silk-voiced Dorothy Adams gave rousing renditions of "The Star Spangled Banner" and other patriotic selections during the ceremony.

The Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church, gave the opening prayer and spoke of Adams' devotion and love for the country. "We honor his lifelong service to this country," he said. "The church was important to John Quincy Adams as it was for his parents and grandparents before him."

Echoing Brown's comments of putting principle over popularity, Bennett spoke of Adams' stand in Congress against slavery and his defense of the slaves who overtook the Amistad schooner in 1839.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the day was to honor the Adamses and in particular, John Quincy. "John Quincy Adams was a remarkable American," said Koch. "His public service was unparalleled as a president."

The importance of education was instilled in him as a young boy by his parents and it stayed with him his entire life. Both John and Abigail Adams believed international exposure was critical in shaping his education. When he arrived in Paris as an 11-year-old student, there was a letter waiting there from Abigail. In it she wrote, "These are the times in which a genius would wish to live."

Caroline Keinath, the Deputy Superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park, told those in the church pews that Adams took on obstacles head on and was not intimidated by the serious issues of the times.

"John Quincy Adams was a hero and statesman who didn't lay dormant to the challenges of the time," said Keinath. "Everyone should read the Declaration of Independence to understand what the military today is fighting for."

Peter Boylston Adams, the treasurer of the Adams Memorial Foundation, and a descendant of Adams, said the enemy in Afghanistan and Iraq is similar to the enemy back in colonial times. "Today we are in a ground war with a country that doesn't know democracy," said Boylston Adams.

He went to Gent to work on the treaty to end the War of 1812, which was one of his major accomplishments as president.

The church's Visitors Program Director Arthur Ducharme urged the audience to cherish the legacy of Adams and to follow his leadership qualities. "If your actions inspire others to dream more, do more or become more, you are a leader," Ducharme said.

"Liberty. Cherish it. Remember where you have been today."

Among those in attendance were former Mayor James Sheets, Cong. William Delahunt and state Sen. Michael Morrissey, Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating and Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Connell.

A Job Well Done

On Friday, June 25, at approximately 6:17 p.m., Officer M.J. O'Brien was flagged down at the intersection of Franklin and Water Streets by a female motorist, who yelled to him that there was a female sitting in a grey Chevy in the parking lot of the 7/11 convenience store (75 Franklin St.) "Shooting up." The term, "Shooting up" is a slang term for the injection of heroin into one's body.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer O'Brien entered the 7/11 parking lot and observed the suspect vehicle occupied by a male operator and a female passenger. When the male operator saw the officer, he immediately became alarmed, said something to the female passenger, then put his vehicle in reverse and quickly exited the parking lot.

As the suspect vehicle passed by the Officer's cruiser, he observed the female passenger frantically moving about in the passenger seat. The suspect vehicle drove through the parking lot of the adjacent gas station and then made a right turn onto Water Street towards Quincy Avenue.

Officer O'Brien quickly turned his cruiser around and activated his overhead blue lights and siren to stop the suspect vehicle. The female passenger looked back at the Officer as the driver, stuck in traffic attempted to drive into the opposite lane. The suspect vehicle had to abruptly stop due to on-coming traffic, so the Officer exited his cruiser and ran up to the driver's side window.

As the officer ordered the driver to put the vehicle in park, he observed the driver to look all around and act extremely hyper. The driver did not put the car in park, so the Officer, at great risk, opened the driver's door, reached in, placed the vehicle in park.

Officer O'Brien then pulled the driver from the vehicle and placed him in handcuffs. The officer then contacted dispatch and requested a back up unit. Once the driver was placed in the cruiser, Officer O'Brien approached the female passenger and observed her to be shaking and sweating. She appeared extremely nervous and her pupils were pin-pointed, which is consistent with the use of opiates.

The female then attempted to hand over a small piece of plastic sandwich bag and said, "Here - This is all I've got on me." The substance appeared to be heroin. A search of the vehicle was conducted by Detectives' Coen and Keenan, revealing four silver spoons containing heroin in the female's make-up bag. They also found seven used hypodermic syringes and a crack pipe.

The female admitted to buying a "sixty" bag of heroin and injected herself with the heroin in the 7/11 parking lot. She said that the male driver was present in the motor vehicle while she injected the heroin but he did not inject heroin.

The female passenger, a 29 year-old Braintree resident, was placed under arrest and charged with "Possession of Class A (Heroin) Subsequent Offense."

The male driver, a 43 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Knowingly Being Present Where Heroin Is Kept."

Lead-safe Renovation: What Homeowners Need To Know

(ARA) - Renovating your home can be daunting. The last thing you want to worry about is the possible lead-related health risk of some common renovation tasks. Sanding, demolition and siding and window replacement can all disturb lead-based paint, placing you and your family at risk of lead poisoning.

Because of these risks, the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) developed the Lead-Based Paint Renovation, Repair and Painting Program to help protect homeowners. As of April 22, the legislation requires that workers, including contractors, painters and maintenance personnel, be trained to use lead-safe work practices. Additionally, renovation firms must be EPA-certified.

What does the legislation entail?

Under the EPA, the legislation:

- Applies to all remodeling/renovation projects on homes, childcare facilities and schools built before 1978 that contain lead paint.
- Is related to on-site work practices.
- Renovation workers must take an eight-hour training course to become certified on lead-safe practices.

Exemptions include:

- Housing built in 1978 or after. If you are not sure what year your home was built and whether or not it contains lead-based paint, it is the contractor's responsibility to confirm that information.
- Housing for the elderly or disabled, unless a child under the age of 6 lives or is planning to live in the home.
- Homes with no bedrooms, including studio apartments and dormitories.
- Homes declared lead-free by a certified inspector or risk assessor.
- Minor repair work using 6 square feet or less of paint per room inside, or 20 square feet or less of exterior space.

Questions all homeowners should ask

When meeting with a home improvement company or renovation firm, the representative should bring up the issue and provide a government-issued certificate from the EPA showing that their firm has installers who are certified in lead-safe renovation practices. If they do not provide this documentation, homeowners should question if the company is certified.

Also, beware that this legislation may increase the cost of some renovation projects, so homeowners should be careful not to fall for a lower bid from a non-certified contractor.

What the EPA-certification entails

"Before hiring a contractor or renovation firm, it's important to understand the basics of the legislation and what you should expect from your home improvement company," says Keith Pigues, chief marketing officer of Ply Gem.

By law, at least one certified installer needs to be on the job site, with a valid certificate, if it was built before 1978 and contains lead-based paint. To become certified, the contractor must attend an eight-hour course that includes education on the dangers of lead-based paint, hands-on learning of safe demolition, installation and disposal of the debris, as well as a final examination. Those who have taken the course can then provide on-the-job training to his or her helpers, who must also be able to provide a certificate to the homeowner.

Stone Care Products For Home Provide Peace Of Mind Against Stains And Spills

(NAPSA)-Protecting and cleaning stone countertops with everyday products may be doing more harm than good.

The wrong cleaning products can seriously damage or potentially ruin all types of natural stone surfaces found around the house.

"Although they seem like extremely hard surfaces, granite, marble, travertine, slate and other types of natural stone commonly used in homes are extremely porous," said Steve Wolf, DuPont(tm) Stone Care General Manager.

"A stone's polished shine doesn't mean it is sealed, allowing substances like juice, wine, ink and perfume to seep in, causing irreparable damage."

To thwart the many stain threats faced by natural stone every day, DuPont(tm) Stone Care offers a family of products to protect, clean and enhance the significant investment of having stone in the home.

With the following simple steps and regular cleaning using the correct products, countertops and floors can look new for a lifetime.

Protect: The best way to prevent stains on natural stone and grout lines is to treat its surface with a sealer to offer protection and to keep it looking new. While many stones are pre-sealed or sealed during installation, these sealers often wear away from everyday use and certain all-purpose cleaners. Depending on the amount of use, a countertop or floor can become susceptible to stain penetration within one year, with most sealers fading away after five years. Products like DuPont(tm) Granite & Marble Countertop Sealer will keep countertops protected.

Clean: Many homeowners use general all-purpose cleaners, disinfecting wipes or glass cleaners on their natural stone, which can degrade the stone's sealer and dull or erode the surface. Instead, specially formulated cleaners are necessary to remove residue from cooking oils, food spills, hair spray and other offenders. If a spill does occur, experts recommend removing as much of the material as possible without allowing it to spread by using a nonabrasive sponge; then simply spray the area with a cleaner such as DuPont(tm) Granite & Marble Countertop Cleaner + Protector.

Enhance: Whether daily use has dulled the stone or a shinier "wet" look is desired, the use of an enhancer can restore the luster to polished stone and tile or bring out the surface's color, depth and beauty. DuPont(™) Stone Care has many enhancing products to treat most natural stone and tile surfaces, with or without shine, including DuPont(tm) Granite & Marble Countertop Polish.

The products are available in a variety of sizes at Lowe's, Floor & Decor, Kroger and other fine retailers across the country.

Children's Trust Fund, Registry of Motor Vehicles Warn Public

Risks Of Leaving Children Alone In Cars – Especially During Hot Weather

With the recent heat wave, the Children's Trust Fund (CTF) of Massachusetts and the Registry of Motor Vehicles are reminding parents and the public that children unattended in hot cars during the summer months are at risk of dehydration, hyperthermia, heat stroke and even death.

Heat builds up rapidly in a vehicle, even with windows slightly rolled down. On a 90-degree day, the temperature inside a closed car can reach 120 degrees in 10 minutes and 110 degrees even if windows are open slightly, according to a University of San Francisco report.

A child's body heats up three to five times as quickly as an adult's. If a child's body temperature exceeds 104 degrees, heat stroke can cause delirium, convulsions, coma and death, according to a study published in Pediatrics magazine.

"Adults should never leave a child unattended in a car," said CTF Executive Director Suzin Bartley. "There are always risks of injury, abduction or setting the vehicle in motion. In the summer heat, the potential for health related issues is especially high."

Bartley said the public can help by calling 911 when they see a child left in a car or by contacting security officials at a mall or other location.

Each year 37 children typically die nationwide from heat exhaustion in vehicles. Thus far in 2010 there have been 20 hyperthermia deaths of children left in cars, the highest half year total since data of this kind was first collected in the 1990s. Eight of these deaths occurred in the last two weeks of June alone, the University of San Francisco reports.

CTF recommends that parents follow these tips to prevent children from experience heat-related illness while alone in a car:

• Never leave infants or children in a parked car, even for a quick errand and even if the windows are cracked open.

• Remember that a child is in the car. One helpful method is to keep a stuffed animal in the car seat. When the child is buckled in, the stuffed animal should be moved to the front with the driver to remind him or her that the child seat is occupied.

• When leaving a vehicle, check to be sure everyone is out of the car. Do not overlook any children who have fallen asleep in the car.

• Always lock a car, even at home, and remind friends and neighbors to do the same. Always put keys in a safe place, out of the reach of young children.

Save Money By Hydrating Responsibly

(NAPSA)-Whether you are planning a sunny seaside vacation or working to get back in shape for seasonal fashions, drinking water should be part of your daily regimen.

However, before you reach for that bottled water, be sure to consider the benefits of fresh filtered water, which is a cost-effective and convenient alternative.

A refrigerator system that uses two 200-gallon water filters per year can filter the equivalent of 3,000 bottles of water, saving more than $600 a year versus purchasing a leading brand of bottled water. In addition to cost savings, drinking filtered water is also environmentally responsible, as Back-2Tap.com estimates that 38 billion water bottles are thrown in the trash each year.

By opting for filtered water over bottled water, it's easier to drink with confidence, knowing that the refrigerator water filter serves as a last line of defense against possible unseen contaminants in your water, such as lead and mercury.

Properly maintaining your water filter is crucial, as tap water travels through miles and miles of infrastructure before making its way into your home, and may pick up contaminants along the way.

To ensure proper contaminant reduction from the filtered tap water at home, many appliance manufacturers recommend changing the water filter every six months (you may need to change your filter more often, depending on usage).

To make changing the filter quick and easy, many refrigerators have an easy-access system, located conveniently at the bottom in the grill or just inside the refrigerator.

Changing your refrigerator water filter every six months is the most cost-effective way to ensure clean and refreshing drinking water.

DURING THE WARMER months, consider the benefits of fresh filtered water, which is a cost-effective and convenient alternative to bottled water.

Whirlpool Corporation provides an automatic water filter replacement program that sends filters right to consumers' homes, with no cost for shipping.

What Is Prickly Heat?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Exactly what is prickly heat? Do adults get it? If they do, I think I have it. – M.K.

ANSWER: Adults do get prickly heat. It looks like red dots or tiny blisters on the skin. The rash itches or feels "prickly." Sweat ducts have become plugged.

Prevention comes with dressing as coolly as possible in light cotton clothes. Air-conditioning is the ultimate answer. Second best is having a fan blowing on you. If you have a breakout, cool-water compresses take away the itch or prickliness, as do cortisone creams, which are found in all drugstores.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has some kind of sleep disorder. He doesn't believe he has a problem. I know about restless leg syndrome, but he has something beyond that. About four nights a week, his legs kick all over, and he throws his body in every direction. The bed bounces like a trampoline. In one month, he made large holes in two quality flannel sheets. Several times, he has hit me across the face. What is this problem? – M.L.

ANSWER: You describe periodic limb movements of sleep, PLMS, which used to be called nocturnal myoclonus. Most of the time, only the legs are involved. The toes, ankles, knees and hips involuntarily bend and straighten during sleep. The movements happen every 20 to 40 seconds, and each episode lasts from a few minutes to hours.

Restless leg syndrome is a crawling sensation beneath the skin of the legs. The person has to get up and walk around to put an end to the annoying sensations. Sometimes it is associated with iron deficiency, and sometimes restless leg patients also experience periodic limb movements. Pramipexole or ropinirole treat both conditions. Your husband should see a doctor.

The booklet on restless leg syndrome and nighttime leg cramps explains these conditions and their treatments. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue -- No. 306W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I play softball for my company. Last week, while rounding second, I felt like I stubbed my toe. It hurt, and it still does. People tell me it is turf toe. What is that, and how long does it go on? – M.L.

ANSWER: Turf toe happens when the big toe is forcefully bent upward. That motion sprains ligaments at the base of the toe.

Every time you take a step, your big toe propels the body forward. Limit your walking to give the toe a rest. Splinting the toe with tape is helpful. Shoes with a sturdy sole also protect the toe.

If the ligaments have only been stretched, your toe ought to feel fine in two weeks. If the ligaments are torn, it will take six weeks.

You and I are going on "people's" diagnosis. If there isn't a major turnabout shortly in how the toe feels, have a doctor confirm the diagnosis.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

A PAIN IN THE SACROILIAC

Located just above the hip, the sacroiliac joint connects the fused vertebrae known as the "sacrum" to the two large bones of the pelvis (the "ilia"). This joint is particularly vulnerable to injury and strain. Rather than being held together by muscles, the sacroiliac's integrity is maintained by strong ligaments. Thus, it has a relatively limited range of motion. Despite these limitations, the sacroiliac joint's position leads it to function as a shock absorber for the other tissues of the back. Problems arising from postural abnormalities, muscle tension, abnormal leg length, or damaging repetitive movements cause the sacroiliac joint to further lose mobility and experience pain. It is the chiropractor's goal to relieve this pain by addressing the underlying cause.

At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we specialize in the treatment of sport-, work-, and accident-related injuries. For patients with lower back pain that arises from the sacroiliac joint, a variety of chiropractic procedures can be applied. We are currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. Understanding, compassion, and the traditional American "Family Doctor" approach can be expected when care is obtained from a doctor of chiropractic. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. The sacroiliac joints support the entire weight of the upper body when we stand.

COSMETIC BENEFIT OF DENTAL IMPLANTS

Aside from restoring biting and chewing capability to the mouth, dental implants also serve a cosmetic function. The most obvious benefit to an implant patient's appearance is that the replacement tooth fills in the gap left by the lost tooth with a natural-looking substitute. On a deeper level, dental implants help patients avert bone loss. Without implants, missing teeth and associated bone loss cause the lower third of the face to collapse and shrink inward. As the anchoring portion of a dental implant forms a strong bond with the jaw, it stimulates the surrounding bone and preserves it. As a result, the bone loss that would otherwise be inevitable with missing teeth is avoided.

If you have any questions about your chances for replacing lost teeth through the latest techniques call us at 617-479-6220. We can provide you with implants, dentures, bridges and crowns, as well as general dental treatment for the entire family. We offer complete dental health services for the whole family. We want you to look and feel your best. For a happy, healthy, and good-looking smile, we urge you to have a check-up soon. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. One of the factors that is used to assess a patient's suitability for a dental implant is the amount and density of underlying bone in the jaw.

District 6 Series Started Tuesday; Game Three (If Necessary) To Be Played Tonight In Westwood

Morrisette Legion Vs. Westwood Legion In Best-of-Three Series

By SEAN BRENNAN

Now, the real season begins.

Morrisette Legion, which wrapped up the District 6 East American Legion regular season with a 12-6 overall record, and a third-place finish in their district bracket, began post-season action on Tuesday night in a best-of-three series against Westwood Legion – the third-place finisher in District 6 West.

Game Two of the series was held Wednesday night at Adams Field (7:30 p.m.) and Game Three, if necessary, will be back in Westwood tonight (Thursday). Westwood earned the right in this series to be the home team as the result of winning a coin toss.

The first phase of the American Legion playoffs, for this area, pits the top-five teams from District 6 East and West against each other in best-of-three formats, with the top team from each district playing the lowest seed.

The winner of the Morrisette/Westwood series will advance into the American Legion South Sectionals – a three-bracket, 12-team, double-elimination tournament. Last season, Morrisette advanced into the South Sectionals following a series win over Norwood Legion before being eliminated by New Bedford Legion.

The team's road to the District 6 playoffs was helped by a strong end of the year showing. Morrisette upended Quincy Legion, 14-5, on July 8, lost to Cohasset Legion, 17-14, on July 8, and finished the regular season with a 12-7 victory over Hyde Park Legion.

"We had a good regular season," said Morrisette manager Steve Maze on Monday. "The only concern I have heading into the playoffs is that we haven't been playing good defense lately. How well we play defense in the playoffs is going to be the biggest factor in how far we advance.

"Offensively we have been pounding the ball all year. We have gotten production from the entire lineup and our pitching, despite some late season injuries, has been solid as well.

"I preach to the kids all the time that it is in the playoffs that the real players show up. The regular season is a means to get you to the postseason. It is up to us to show up once the playoffs start."

Luckily for Maze and his staff, this year's Morrisette team returned all but three players off last year's playoff participant so a factor such as postseason experience should not be an issue.

"I have seven out of nine players who played major roles on last year's team back again this season," added Maze. "So, the hope is that they can draw on last year's experience. They all know that it is going to take hard work to do well."

Morrisette/Westwood Series Preview

For a team that has produced offensively all summer and has pitched well enough to earn the third seed in District 6 East, Morrisette will be challenged against a veteran Westwood Legion squad.

"(Westwood) is a well-coached team and they have a lot of older players (19-year-olds) on their roster," said Maze. "They also hit the ball well.

"I took a trip over to their field the other day and it can be called a bandbox. It is a small field compared to Adams. We are a line-drive, gap-hitting team, so I am not sure that we will benefit, but when they come to Adams it may help our cause."

Morrisette can hit. The team's entire lineup has the ability to get on base, but players who ended the regular season hot include Ryan Louis (two doubles, single, and homerun against Hyde Park), Matt Rodriguez (three homeruns over the final two games), Colin Ryan, Greg Nelson, and John Ainsley.

"We have guys who have been hot recently," said Maze. "But in the playoffs everyone has to be ready to contribute. I can guarantee you that at some point in this series, in a crucial spot or big situation, some one is going to have to step up to knock in a run or keep an inning alive. There isn't one player I am looking at. It could be anyone in the lineup."

On the mound Morrisette is going with a three-man rotation. An injury to starter Joe Alibrandi forced Maze and his staff to shift around the rotation, but the remaining three starters are solid.

Morrisette pitched Ryan Louis in Game One, Tim Liuzzo in Game Two, and, if necessary, will throw Josue Ordonez in a deciding Game Three.

"Ryan will get the ball in Game One and Tim Liuzzo will pitch Game Two," said Maze on Monday. "If we get to a Game Three then Josue Ordonez will get the call. The injury to Alibrandi forced us to move Liuzzo and Ordonez up a game, but we are confident in all three starters. Josue has made a huge impression on the staff this season and he deserves the shot to start a Game Three."

American Legion District 6 Playoffs

The following are the series matchups for the American Legion District 6 Playoffs: Jamaica Plain (14-4 record, #1 District 6 East) vs. Foxboro (9-7-2, #5 District 6 West); Milton (13-3-2, #2 District 6 East) vs. Norwood (10-8, #4 District 6 West); Morrisette (12-6, #3 District 6 East) vs. Westwood (11-7, #3 District 6 West; Braintree (11-7, #4 District 6 East) vs. Franklin (11-6-1, #2 District 6 West), and Weymouth (10-7-1, #5 District 6 East) vs. Walpole (12-6, #1 District 6

Defeats Granite State Knights 29-0; Next Game At Randolph Sat.

Quincy Militia Rebound Nicely

By JOE REARDON

One thing that is already apparent about the Quincy Militia, two games into the season, is that Vaughn Driscoll's squad isn't one to ruminate over a loss, no matter how ugly.

Quincy had a boatload of mistakes in its season-opening 28-7 loss at the hands of the Western Mass Blitzin Bears, but the Militia put together quality practices during the week that translated into a 29-0 drubbing of the Granite State Knights Saturday night at Veterans Stadium.

"We had a great couple of practices this week," said Driscoll. "We had a lot of turnovers and mental mistakes (against Western Mass). We picked up another 30 players from last year. You have to have them feel their way out and see who makes plays. We're a lot deeper than we were last year. We have some size that we didn't have last year."

The Militia was dominant on both sides of the ball. Offensively, Quincy rushed for more than 200 yards behind an offensive line that is beginning to gel. The defensive line suffocated the Blitzin Bears' offense with an intimidating 13 quarterback sacks. The line did the job all evening by forcing two fumbles. D.J. Andrews and Nick Chase led the defense with three sacks apiece. Quincy's depth was apparent as Driscoll used all 16 linemen and got every one of the team's 60 players into the game.

Joe Hobbs broke a 23-yard run for a first-quarter score and Matt Boyle connected with James Shuler for a 35-yard TD pass to lead the offense.

Driscoll put the gauntlet down before the game, challenging the defense to step up its play and dominate the trenches. "I told them I wanted three sacks by halftime," said Driscoll. "I think we wound up with six and seven more in the second. We hadn't put any pressure on a quarterback like that this season.

"We have to take a stand and show the league the real Militia team."

Quincy's special teams were aggressive but not overly so. After a down game against Western Mass, the special teams were more than ready for the Granite State. Two extra-point kicks were blocked but Militia holder Chris Dolbec, a North Quincy alum, bolted to both of them and ran them in for two-point conversions.

"The special teams should improve with the added players," said Driscoll. "We have a lot of team depth."

The Militia improved itself immediately with the acquisition of defensive tackle/noseguard Dennis Granz, defensive/offensive lineman Jason DePina and defensive end Ricky Odom.

"Odom gives us extra speed off the end," Driscoll said. "They give us depth and experience in those positions."

The Militia is a team on a mission this year after falling to Clinton in last season's title game. Trailing 14-0 heading into the fourth quarter, Quincy rallied for a pair of scores to tie things at 14. The Militia continued to move the ball efficiently and lined up a 40-yard field goal into the wind with the clock ticking down. The kick was good, but a phantom call against the Militia negated the score and Clinton ultimately came away with the win.

Driscoll fully believes this year's roster is superior to the team Quincy put on the field last season. "Commitment, unity and hard-nosed play will take us all the way," Driscoll said. "We have to expand our passing game and not be so predictable. We want to be flexible."

Driscoll looks to Saturday's contest against a tough Randolph Oilers team as, arguably, the biggest test of the season. The Blitzin Bears are an expansion team so the lopsided win wasn't totally unexpected. Randolph presents a different challenge altogether.

"We can't be complacent moving forward," said Driscoll. "The Randolph Oilers are an established powerhouse."

To Driscoll, there's no big mystery as to what the Militia needs to do to slow the Oilers. Randolph's success begins and ends with quarterback Ryan Meyers. The talented signal caller had his way with Quincy last year, completing passes at will. This time, he'll have his work cut out for him against a strong Militia defensive backfield.

"We have to get to him and stop their passing game," Driscoll said. "You give him time and he'll pick anyone apart."

Star Of Sea Friends Mark 5 Years As Chapel

Sean Glennon and Maureen Mazrimas, co-Chairs of the Friends of Star of the Sea, remind members of their faith community that it was five years ago on July 17 that Star of the Sea Church in Squantum was reopened as a Chapel of Sacred Heart Parish in North Quincy.

Star of the Sea also marks another important anniversary -- Sixty-five years since it was was designated a parish (in 1945) by the late Cardinal Cushing. (Note: tthe first Mass in Squantum was said in 1916, organized and sponsored by the Squantum Catholic Club, and the first church was built in 1924). Glennon and Mazrimas encourage Friends to attend the noon Mass on July 18 to celebrate these milestones.

Star of the Sea parish, which was suppressed in October 2004 as part of a major downsizing of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, was reopened as Star of the Sea chapel by Cardinal Sean O'Malley in July 2005. After meeting with representatives of the Friends group in the Spring of 2005, the Meade-Eisner Reconfiguration Review Committee established by Cardinal O'Malley to examine the suppression of certain parishes, recommended that Star of the Sea reopen.

"Today we celebrate the five year anniversary of that reopening, and we rejoice upon the resurrection of our faith community," said Glennon. "However, our work is far from over. We believe the intent of the Meade-Eisner Committee was for Star of the Sea to be restored to full 'parish' status, so our mission will continue in order to reach that goal."

For the past five years, Star of the Sea has been open only for the celebration of Mass on Sundays at noon. Glennon and Mazrimas agree that Star of the Sea "chapel" is better than nothing, but they contend that there are crucial components missing from the liturgies celebrated at the church – namely baptisms, weddings, and funerals, which have not been permitted at Star of the Sea for over five years.

The five-year saga of the Friends of Star of the Sea has included a candlelight vigil in November 2004; Easter Sunday Mass at Squantum Elementary School in 2005 following a tense dialogue with Archdiocesan officials leading up to Easter; an appeal to Cardinal O'Malley; three appeals to the Vatican; attendance at monthly meetings of the Council of Parishes; meetings with archdiocesan representatives; and participation in a national proposal to the Vatican for "mediation" on behalf of thirty-one parishioner groups.

"Over the last five years, I've felt as though I have been tilting at windmills," said Mazrimas. "The difference between me and Don Quixote is that my dream is not Impossible. It is possible to rebuild the church; it is possible to grow the church. It needs to start from the youngest member on up. By involving children in ministry as altar servers, youth lectors and in music ministry, they learn the value of service and have a deeper understanding of their faith. By conducting religious education classes within the community, you send a message that this is such an important facet of a child's development, that it needs to be convenient in order to ease the burdens on busy families who must constantly juggle priorities. This has been sadly lacking in the last five years."

Glennon and Mazrimas say they their membership has given them a mandate to exercise every possible option to restore their faith community to full "parish" status.

Options currently before them include civil litigation and two canonical alternatives suggested to them by their Canonical Advocate in Rome. The co-chairs have decided their next course of action, but are keeping the details confidential as a courtesy to their colleagues in the Council of Parishes. They expect to begin the next course of action within a matter of weeks, as soon as they receive the official decree from their most recent appeal to the Vatican.

But for Glennon and Mazrimas, this Sunday is not about litigation. It's about celebration. The co-chairs also anticipate organizing a social/fundraiser in late Summer or early Fall to further commemorate and celebrate the vibrancy of their faith community.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Mother Nature is providential. She gives us 12 years to develop a love for our children before turning them into teenagers." – William A. Galvin

We all know that the "teen-age" years can be a hectic time for both the teens and their parents. The following poem may help those who are going through this time and those who are about to enter this "era"!

"What is a teen-ager? I was asked one day.
I knew what he was, but what should I say?
He is noise and confusion. He is silence that's deep.
He is sunshine and laughter, or a cloud that will weep.
He is swift as an arrow, he's a waster of time.
He wants to be rich, but can't save a dime.
He is rude and nasty. He is polite as can be.
He wants Parental guidance, but fights to be free.
He is aggressive and bossy. He is timid and shy.
He knows all the answers, but still will ask "why?"
He is awkward and clumsy, he is graceful and poised.
He is ever changing, but don't be annoyed.
"What is a teen-ager?" I was asked one day.
He is the future unfolding; don't stand in his way.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Starting something new is always exciting for the adventurous Aries. And here's the good news: This time you might be able to get some assistance in helping you finish what you've started.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Put your daydreaming penchant on hold for now, and face the facts as they are, not as you'd like them to be. Your customary hardheaded approach to "deals," etc., would be called for.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Problems beyond your control might delay some of your plans. But things should start to get back to normal by midweek. The weekend could bring an unexpected (but welcome) visitor.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a good time to buckle down and tackle those unfinished tasks so you'll be ready to take on other projects. The week's end could bring an invitation from a most surprising source.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Mixed signals could create a few stressful moments for the Lion. But by midweek, explanations should help ease the tension. The weekend is party time! Share it with someone special.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good "catching up" week for finishing tasks, calling old friends and maybe reading that book you haven't opened yet or renting that movie you wanted to see again.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters should be worked out, even if it takes time away from a more romantic situation. Better to settle things before feelings turn hard and angry on all sides.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A job-related problem could turn out to be less troublesome than it seemed at first. Just a few moments of talk 'twixt the parties resolves everything to everyone's satisfaction.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The Sagittarian Archer takes aim at health and fitness issues this week. Watch your diet, and try to put more exercise time into your typically busy schedule.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As you continue to focus on a career or job change, it's a good time to look over some of your rarely used skills and see where they can fit into your future workplace plans.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A loved one's health might be worrisome, but there's good news by midweek. Expect people who share your ideas and your goals to try to contact you by the week's end.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A colleague's request that makes the typically perceptive Pisces feel uncomfortable is a request you probably will want to turn down. The weekend favors family get-togethers.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for making others feel warm and wanted. Even newcomers feel like old friends.

OBITUARIES

Catherine N. Dewey, 101

Lawyer; Pioneer

CATHERINE N. DEWEY

A funeral Mass for Catherine N. (Murdock) Dewey, 101, of Marina Bay, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Matthias Church, Marlborough.

Mrs. Dewey died July 10.

Raised in Everett, she graduated from Notre Dame Academy (Roxbury) in 1926. A maverick in her day, she later graduated from the Portia School of Law (now New England Law Boston) in 1930 – Portia School of Law was one of only two schools that offered women a legal education. After graduation she deferred taking the bar exam until 1931 so that she could travel to Europe with two of her sisters and some family friends; travel would become one of her lifelong passions.

She was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1932 – a year in which only 220 of 697 people who took it passed; she was one of just 14 women to be admitted. No law firms were hiring female lawyers in 1932, so Mrs. Dewey and two classmates founded the first all-female law firm in Boston, Curry, Mowles & Murdock. Their practice included contracts, real estate and probate matters, primarily in Suffolk Superior Court.

In 1935, she ran for school committee in Everett as the only woman on the ballot – and she won. She married Judge George E. Dewey in 1939 and they moved to Marlborough and had seven children between 1940 and 1954 and she continued to practice law.

Mrs. Dewey and her husband traveled extensively, and after his death in 1986, she continued to explore the world, visiting every continent but Antarctica and Australia. She moved to Marina Bay in 1990 and only then did she stop practicing law.

One of her proudest moments was when she was honored by New England Law Boston on its 100th anniversary; she shared the stage with Supreme Judicial Court Chief Justice Margaret Marshall and Supreme Court Justice, Sandra Day O'Connor. She also received an Honorary Degree.

Wife of the late Judge George E. Dewey; mother of Atty. Susan Anderson and her husband Dr. Jerome Anderson of Framingham, Daniel Dewey and his wife Kathy of Quincy, Frank Dewey and his wife Suzie of NJ, Cathy Treveloni and her husband Ron of NJ, Paul Dewey and his wife Patsy of NJ, John Dewey of Marlborough and the late George E. Dewey, Jr.; sister of Charlotte Hogan of NJ.

Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery, Marlborough.

ENC Seeks Input For Accreditation Process

Eastern Nazarene College is currently undergoing its accreditation review and as part of the process, the college is seeking input and feedback from the wider community.

Completed once every 10 years, the accreditation process includes a review by the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education, a subsidiary of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. ENC also must submit a written self-study report, and hopes to include input from its Quincy and South Shore neighbors.

"Accreditation is a crucial component toward maintaining academic excellence, and the self-study process is an opportunity for ENC to reflect on our strengths and potential areas of improvement," College President Corlis McGee said. "By reviewing our self-study report and offering feedback, local residents can help us ensure that the report is not only an accurate reflection of the college, but also of the community which we have called home for nearly 100 years."

To review ENC's self-study report, go to www.enc.edu/neasc and click on the "ENC Self Study- Report" link. After reviewing the report, comments may be submitted by clicking on the "Feedback Form" link.

FATHER, SON TEAM – Gerry Barker, standing, and his father Bob, pause and reminisce about the typewriter business this week before packing up and leaving the Quincy Center location which has been home to Quincy Typewriter Service and Barker shops for 78 years. Bob, Gerry Barker Closing Maple Street Store

Quincy Typewriter Leaving But Service, Sales Available

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Bob and Gerry Barker are packing up the hundreds of antique, manual and electric typewriters lining the shelves, in their Maple Street store as they prepare to close Quincy Typewriter Service after 78 years in Quincy Center.

In the next two weeks, the father and son team will box ink typewriter ribbons of all brands and adding machine ribbons, assemble the tools of their trade, and clear the landmark store by Aug. 1st.

The boom years are long gone and, for many in recent generations, typewriters are considered quaint, historic items along with ice cube trays, vinyl records and dial telephones.

But Gerry Barker said this week that typewriter users are not extinct; so don't write them off and save the obituary. There is a niche group of users, from writers to some office workers, still happily using typewriters.

Beginning in August, Gerry Barker will continue selling and servicing typewriters and parts from Weymouth for those clients. He'll be at the same telephone number (617-472-3656) and eventually be accessible through a website.

At the same time, these final

'First Steps' Taken For Commuter Transit, Tourist Ferry Service

Squantum Point Ferry Project Ground Broken

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Congressman Bill Delahunt called this week's ground-breaking at Squantum Point Pier the first "baby step" toward the vision of commuter transit and tourist ferry service from that pier along the Cultural Coast to and from Boston, Salem and Provincetown.

"There's a long way to go, but all the dots are connected," said Delahunt who, also, described the pier's potential to help Americans enjoy the region's history all along the coastline as well as the cash benefits to the region. "It's going to mean something in terms of our pocketbooks."

"I can envision this being a marine highway for all the historical assets that represent us as a nation," said Delahunt, the keynote speaker at Monday's ceremony which kicked off plans to erect a windshield at the base of the pier.

GROUND BREAKING – Cong. Bill Delahunt (third from left) joined state and local leaders Monday as they prepared the pier area at Squantum Point Park for a weather shield formerly used in the North End. The ceremony marked the official kick-off for Point Squantum Park where a new pier will be constructed for ferries to transport tourists and commuters. From left are Rep. Stephen Tobin, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Delahunt, Lt. Gov. Tim Murray, Rick Sullivan, director of Department of Conservation and Recreation, Rep. TV, Electronics Drop-Off Day At Morrisette Post Sept. 18

The Quincy Veterans Services will host a TV and electronics drop-off day Saturday, Sept. 18 at the Morrisette American Legion Post, 81-83 Liberty St., Quincy.

In Quincy, unlike many surrounding towns, TVs and monitors are picked-up curbside and disposed at no additional cost to the taxpayer. However, new disposal regulations have bred a preponderance of discarded TVs that have pushed disposal costs over $5,000 per month—money the City doesn't have, said John Sullivan, the city's Waste and Recycing manager.

Quincy Veterans Services has teamed-up with the DPW, Office Recycling Solutions and Electronic Manufacturers Recycling Management Company to help save the city thousands in disposal costs and support our local veterans.

To show support, hold onto any TVs and electronics until the next drop-off day scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 18, from 8 a.m. to noon.

The collection is free to Quincy residents and lots of give-a-ways are planned.

128,000 Visitors, 13,000 Bills Paid On City Website

One year after its launch, the City of Quincy's new website, www.quincyma.gov, has generated more than 128,000 unique visitors, more than 7 million total page views, and processed 13,000 transactions, Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday.

"These remarkable numbers for our first year are a true testament to the efforts of a lot people to create the most user-friendly, accessible and interactive government website in the Commonwealth," said Mayor Koch. "The site is still very

A NEW PIER will be constructed at this location, according to Lt. Governor Tim Murray who chaired the groundbreaking ceremony Monday. The pier will allow commuter and tourist access by ferry to Boston and historic sites along the Cultural Coast.

develop a substantial new pier at the site, and bring in ferry service, possibly by next spring.

Delahunt said the Point Squantum pier "has the potential to become the hub of the marine highway" along the Cultural Coast and, also, provide commuters an alternative to driving the Southeast Expressway.

While Delahunt has long been an advocate for Squantum Point Park and Pier, he credited the late Kathy Melia, his Congressional aide and South Shore Field Representative, and P.J. Foley of Houghs Neck for their foresight many years ago in originating the concept first detailed in 2008,

"This is truly the culmination of so much work by so many," said Delahunt who praised Governor Deval Patrick, Lt. Governor Timothy Murray, Mayor Thomas Koch, state legislators and members of the Seaport Advisory Committee for their leadership.

Delahunt and Murray, along with Senator Michael Morrissey, Reps. Steve Tobin and Bruce Ayers and Michele Pecoraro, Vice President of the Seaport Advisory Council, outlined the project's next steps.

Murray who hosted the event said the pier project highlights "the strong partnership between the Patrick-Murray administration, the Massachusetts Cultural Coast and the federal government that will connect residents and tourist to some of the Commonwealth's historical and cultural resources."

A message from Governor Patrick states he is also on board for the project, "This is what it's all about, putting shovels in the ground and people to work immediately. This project is an excellent example of the critical collaboration and investment that leads to both construction and jobs as well as support for the long-term investment in our communities..."

"It's a great project," said Morrissey who detailed the park's history as a Naval Air Base in World War II, and now preserved as open space due to the efforts of many in Quincy, environmental groups and historical commissions.

Over the years, the historic area dodged a number of bullets that could have ravaged its beauty and wasted its history, according to Morrissey who described past proposals for a nuclear power plant at Squantum Point Park and, then, a 20-30 story high-rise apartment buildings.

The officials spoke at the

Squantum Point Park: History, Rare Views

Squantum Point Park, the site of the former Squantum Naval Air Base, offers visitors open space for birding, walking and biking trails with markings of historic events throughout its 50-acres.

In addition, clam diggers and fishing enthusiasts enjoy the easy access to Dorchester Bay from Squantum Point Park.

Visitors learn that the locale was once Dennison Airport during the development of the first airplanes and that Wilbur Wright demonstrated the flying machine on site.

Not only that but women pioneer pilots, Amelia Earhart and Harriet Quimby, piloted planes from Dennison Airport. Quimby was killed after a fall from her plane into Quincy Bay.

Some 2000 Navy pilots trained at the airbase in the late 1930's and during wartime in the 1940's.

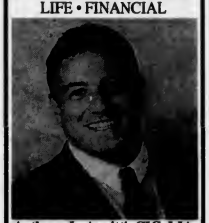
One such pilot was Joseph Kennedy, brother of President John F. Kennedy and Senators Ted and Robert Kennedy.

During World War II, Joseph Kennedy died in a plane crash over the English Channel.

Some minor remnants of the runways remain for history buffs to view or photograph.

The pier now planned for construction will be the base for short ferry trips across the bay to Kennedy Museum which is just over a stone's throw away by water, as well as commuter and tourist trips to Boston and points north to Salem and south to Provincetown along the Cultural Coast.

Cong. William Delahunt and his staff first developed a concept for the area which will include ferry service, trolley access from the 1000 space parking lot and could include a boardwalk around the perimeter of the bay.



The Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) oversees the park which can be accessed by the official route from Commander Shea Blvd, North Quincy. A secondary access is through Marina Bay from East Squantum Street, North Quincy.

Ask the GEMOLOGIST®
BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN
GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

THE ENVIABLE "EVENING EMERALD"
Those without budgets to match their taste for emeralds can still make their friends green with envy by purchasing the next best thing. The green gemstone known as peridot, the birthstone for August, has been popular since ancient times. Romans referred to the gemstone as the "evening emerald" on the basis of its ability to assume the deep-green color of emeralds when observed by lamplight. By any light, this is a beautiful gemstone, with transparency that equals its lovely color. In fact, peridot is one of the few gemstones that comes in only one color, a rich green with slight tinges of gold caused by traces of iron. It is an ideal gemstone to reflect the verdancy of summer.

Streamline Rules, Regulations For Special Permit Granting Authority

Council Sub-Committee To Review SPGA Tuesday

By LAURA GRIFFIN

A special City Council sub-committee will meet Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. to review proposed rules for the Council in its capacity as Special Permit Granting Authority (SPGA).

Councillors act as the SPGA in considering and voting projects that do not meet the city's proscribed permitting rules, such as oversized apartment complexes.

In the spring, Councillor John Keenan proposed clarifying rules for the SPGA after citing several occasions when projects had to be cleared because of timing snafus on the council's part.

Keenan said Tuesday the proposal, under discussion, is an attempt "to make sure we have rules in place" and put all proposed projects on an automatic track with specific recording of when, where and what type of special permit is required.

JOHN KEENAN

"We need to put in place rules and regulations that will guide the applicants and will assist the body itself," City Council President Kevin Coughlin said Tuesday, calling Keenan's proposal "long overdue."

Coughlin believes the changes will "protect the interest of the city" and stated that the timing of the meeting had no connection to any current applications, "There's no individual project that's driving this."

As one example of the issue, the council lost some ground in dealing with the application for B.J.'s Warehouse at Crown Colony when they failed to convene and act as SPGA in a timely manner. Developers claimed they had automatic approval. In that case, the court sent the issue back to the council.

The Planning Board has reviewed the proposal and their recommendations will be considered at Tuesday's meeting.

Coughlin appointed the three-member sub-committee which includes Councillors Joseph Finn, Michael McFarland and Daniel Raymondi, Ward 2.

Keenan Challenges Tobin To Series Of Debates

John Keenan, a candidate for State Senate, has challenged his opponent in the Democratic primary, Arthur "Stephen" Tobin, to a series of debates to be held in each of the five communities that comprise the Norfolk-Plymouth District Senate seat.

"With all the challenges facing the Commonwealth in the coming years, voters have an important decision to make this fall," Keenan stated in a letter delivered to Tobin's campaign office Monday. "Therefore, I request that you join me in participating in a free and open debate in each of the five communities that make up the Norfolk and Plymouth District between now and the Sept. 14 primary."

Keenan proposes open and free debates in Abington, Braintree, Holbrook, Quincy and Rockland. Braintree Community Access Media has invited the two candidates to participate in a televised debate on a date to be determined in August. Keenan has accepted the invitation.

"By bringing our cases directly to the voters, we can provide them with the knowledge they need to make an informed decision," said Keenan, a Quincy city councillor at-large.

Tobin is currently a state representative.

Quincy – The 10th's Biggest Prize

Here's a political analogy question:

California is to the Electoral College as Quincy is to the?

The answer: "10th Congressional District."

Just as The Golden State is the largest number of electoral votes when electing the president, the City of Presidents is tops in terms of registered voters in the 10th Congressional District that spans the South Shore and crosses the Cape Cod Canal all the way to Provincetown.

Quincy, in short, will be the biggest election prize in the race to replace Cong. William Delahunt who is retiring after representing the 10th District in Congress since 1996.

There are roughly 40 municipalities that comprise the 10th District and Quincy is first in the number of registered voters with approximately 55,380. (The city is also first with the number of residents – 91,000.) The number of registered voters in Quincy represents nearly 12 percent of all registered voters in the 10th District that totals approximately 465,991.

Quincy easily outdistances second-place Plymouth's 36,443 registered voters – a margin of 18,937; and third-place Weymouth with 35,108 registered voters (20,275 fewer voters).

Municipalities rounding out the top 10 in registered voters (in descending order) are:

Barnstable, 34,100 registered voters; Falmouth (25,692); Marshfield (24,890); Yarmouth (18,592); Sandwich (15,168); Hingham (15,050); and Bourne (13,450).

The remaining towns in the 10th and the number of registered voters (in alphabetically order):

Abington (10,085); Aquinnah, Martha's Vineyard (200); Brewster (8,450); Carver (8,208); Chatham (6,321); Chilmark, Martha's Vineyard (859); Cohasset (5,331); Dennis (12,113); Duxbury (10,909); Eastham (4,314); Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard (3.037); Gosnold, Martha's Vineyard (118); Hanover (8,940); Hanson (6,650); Harwich (10,636); Hull (8,245); Kingston (8,269); Mashpee (10,163); Nantucket (7,883); Norwell (7,277); Oak Bluffs, Martha's Vineyard (3,216); Orleans (5,579); Pembroke (11,437); Plympton (1,987); Provincetown (3,392); Rockland (11,645); Scituate (14,323); Tisbury, Martha's Vineyard (2,918); Truro (1,725); Wellfleet (2,528); and West Tisbury, Martha's Vineyard (2,120).

The major contenders to replace Delahunt are Democrats Robert O'Leary, a state senator from Barnstable and Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating who recently moved to Quincy; Republicans Joseph Malone, former state treasurer from Scituate and Jeff Perry, a state representative from Sandwich; and former Mayor James Sheets who has launched an Independent bid.

Quincy is on every radar screen of every candidate campaigning for Congress. The major contenders have all recently visited the city in one fashion or another and expect much more of the same as the Sept. 14 preliminary election approaches. And the Republican and Democratic nominees along with Sheets will clearly have Quincy in their sites when they take aim at the final election Nov. 2.

But winning Quincy doesn't necessarily mean a trip to the Capitol as a freshly minted U.S. representative.

Exhibit A:

State preliminary election, 1992. State Sen. Paul D. Harold challenged incumbent Cong. Gerry Studds for Congress in the newly redistricted 10th District. Instead of running for an open seat in the 11th District (vacated by former Cong. Brian Donnelly), the state lost a Congressional seat and Quincy was put in the new 10th District represented by Studds.

Harold defeated Studds overwhelming in Quincy in the preliminary by nearly 7,700 votes (12,951 to 5,256). But Harold's big Quincy vote could not offset Studds's pluralities in the other municipalities. Studds went on to win the November election and represented Quincy until he stepped down from his seat in 1996.

HAROLD

But there's one big difference comparing 1992 to 2010. There is no incumbent Congressman in this year's race.

And if you look at the last time the Congressional seat was open – like it is this year – you can see why Quincy is a coveted political prize.

Which brings us to Exhibit B: the 1996 Congressional race.

Fourteen years ago, Delahunt, a Quincy Democrat and longtime Norfolk County district attorney, and Republican Ed Teague, a state representative from Cape Cod, squared off to replace the retiring Studds. Delahunt defeated Teague comfortably by 37,224 votes. Delahunt polled 160,747 votes to Teague's 123,523. (There was also a Green Party candidate, A. Charles Laws of West Tisbury, who collected 10,916 votes.) Another 13,517 votes were left blank.

DELAHUNT

Delahunt's victory march was impressive, winning 31 out of 40 towns scattered throughout the district from Provincetown and Nantucket to Weymouth and Quincy.

Here, Delahunt amassed a 13,036-vote cushion. With such a large Quincy base, Delahunt was well on his way to winning the overall election. In Weymouth he won by 4,884 votes; Falmouth by 1,885 votes and Plymouth by 976.

In total, Teague carried only nine towns – and only two non-Cape towns. They were: Bourne, Chatham, Dennis, Harwich, Orleans, Sandwich, Yarmouth, Norwell and Duxbury.

Fast-forward to 2010 and this year is shaping up to be a doozy in the 10th District. There are five major contenders; they all have name recognition in their particular strongholds and they should all be able to raise campaign funds while enlisting significant numbers of volunteers and supporters.

The next Congressman representing Quincy may not actually win the city on Election Day.

But in a wide-open race, a candidate's chances rise considerably if Quincy is in their win column.

THE MAKE-UP of the 10th Congressional was tweaked after the federal census in 2000. Towns no longer part of the district are: Avon, Brockton, Holbrook and Whitman; new towns are Carver, Hanson and Pembroke.

TABLE FOR TWO – Sen. Scott Brown and his wife, former television news reporter Gail Huff, visited Gunther Tooties on Hancock Street before and after the senator spoke at the John Quincy Adams birthday anniversary wreath-laying ceremony at United First Parish Church July 9.

BROWN

The senator and his wife grabbed a quick bite to eat while sitting at one of the tables inside the restaurant. Brown dined on a turkey and brie on a multigrain bagel sandwich while his wife had a cranberry-orange muffin.

Brown also stopped to shake hands and greet well-wishers outside the church before speaking at the wreath-laying ceremony. The affable junior senator paused from his busy schedule to have his picture taken with some of his political admirers.

Scenes From Yesterday

City Square and Drinking Fountain, Quincy, Mass. Oct 2 11 4 1908. C.T.H.

THIS IS A 1908 postcard looking north on Hancock Street from in front of the First Parish Church in Quincy Square. The three-story building on the right was home to the H.G. Shaw furniture store and later became the home of the Bargain Center. It is now the site of President's Place. The building with the pitched roof on the left was on the site of today's Munroe building. In the center of what was known then as City Square was a drinking fountain for horses. It was donated to the city in 1891 by a group of citizens known as the Quincy Village Improvement Society. Their objective was to make Quincy more beautiful and attractive. A Quincy granite company, McKenzie and Patterson made the fountain for $5,900. After 25 years the fountain was discontinued during the great influenza epidemic when it was determined that horses were dying from passing the disease to each other there. In 1917 it was moved to the Sea Street entrance of Mount Wollaston Cemetery where it remains today. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Cause Sought As Fireman Incapacitated

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
70 Years Ago

Inspectors from the State Fire Marshall's office are expected to come to Quincy to assist Quincy firemen in an investigation of the $3,000 fire at the Presidents Press, 7 Bigelow St., at which almost a score of Quincy firemen were incapacitated by fumes from burning film. The fire is not of suspicious origin and the investigation is merely a routine matter for the purpose of determining the cause.

One fireman, Private William Carroll of Engine Three, remained at Quincy City Hospital while 18 others are gradually throwing off the effects which they suffered as the result of breathing cellulose fumes from film.

Most of the firemen wore masks but these proved ineffective against the fumes.

The fire was discovered at 10:30 a.m. by Mrs. Edward Skinner, an occupant of an apartment over the printing shop.

HOT REPUBLICAN CONTESTS LOOMING – LARGE NUMBER OF CANDIDATES FILE FOR OFFICE

Some of the most wide-open Republican contests of state representative in recent political history on the South Shore loomed as large numbers of candidates filed nomination papers in advance of the deadline.

The main contest in Quincy will be in the First Norfolk District (Wards Three, Four, Five and Six) where there will be at least seven prominent candidates in the Republican field. Incumbents Arthur I. Burgess, Charles W. Hedges and Eddie D. Carson are seeking re-election while challengers included City Councillors Myron N. Lane and Christian Burkhard along with School Committee Members John H. Taylor and Gustav Bergfors.

Mrs. Edna B. Austin, former president of the Quincy Women's Republican Club, planned to challenge incumbent Joseph L. Whiton in the Second Norfolk District (Ward One, Quincy).

Lombardo Family Hosts Event Raising $45,000 for Three Charities

The Lombardo family recently hosted the Vincent's Nightclub 24th Anniversary Gala at the combined Vincent's Nightclub and Lombardo's Function Facility in Randolph.

The Lombardo family hosted three charities as recipients of proceeds for this gala ball. The family picks up 100% of the expense for the entertainment, food and liquor. In return, guests are asked to donate a minimum of $65 per person to one of the three featured charities.

This year's highlighted charities included the East Boston Harborside Community Center, Randolph Youth Softball/Baseball Association, and The South Shore YMCA. The event pulled more than 500 people and raised $45,000 for the three charities.

This years' event featured entertainment by Stayin' Alive – One Night of the Bee Gees, the quintessential tribute and vocal match to the Bee Gee's.

"We are proud to host this annual event at the combined Vincent's Nightclub and Lombardo's Function Facility and we sincerely appreciate the charitable donations made by all of our guests," said Vincent Lombardo, Chief Executive Officer, The Lombardo Companies.

The South Shore YMCA is a not-for-profit association of individuals dedicated to improving the quality of life through programs that promote healthy spirit, mind and body.

Each year, the South Shore YMCA relies on annual gifts to help people improve their lives and reach their greatest potential. They help thousands of children, seniors, adults and families.

Donations collected at this event will support the YMCA's Food Pantry and Children's Programs based at their Germantown Neighborhood Center, all aimed at breaking the cycle of generational poverty and abuse.

JJ Insurance STRATEGIES

by Jim Sullivan

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?

If you're a small business owner, you are probably busy managing a budgets, inventories, employees, and customers. Spend time managing your business, and leave the insurance analysis to JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY. We can identify the insurance policies you need, from liability insurance to theft and fire insurance. As an independent insurance agency, we represent a carefully selected group of financially sound, reputable insurance companies so we are able to offer you the best coverage at the most competitive price. Please call us at 617-328-8600 to schedule an appointment. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.

You may be the owner of a small business, but that does not necessarily mean that your liability coverage should be limited. If you want to extend your coverage over the maximum limits of your policy, you may add excess limits (at extra cost) to the underlying package policy in $500,000 or $1 million increments, sometimes up to $5 million. Otherwise, you can do what many individuals do and purchase "umbrella" coverage. As its name implies, a "commercial umbrella" policy typically provides excess coverage over and above most underlying package policies, including the business policy, business auto, and workers' compensation. This extended liability coverage can provide the protection even small businesses might someday need.

NOTE: Excess liability coverage makes a great deal of sense in today's litigious environment.

base of the pier which will be redesigned and rebuilt to meet ADA (American Disability Act) standards but the speeches were cut short by driving winds and threats of thunder and rain that never materialized.

In the 1990's the pier and parking lot were built and used by the 1000 MWRA workers who were ferried, day and night, to and from underwater worksites and Harbor Island destinations while the regional water agency constructed a tunnel for sewage beneath Boston Harbor.

It is that pier and the 1000 plus empty parking lot that Murray, Delahunt, Morrissey, Ayers, Tobin believe make Quincy a magnet for tourists and commuters traveling the coastline.

And they are not alone in such optimism. On hand for the ceremony were Mark Carey and Maralin Manning of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce who offered enthusiastic support of the project as did Marianne Peak, Superintendent. Adams National Historical Park.

"Our short term and long-term plan is to connect with Boston and the Cultural Coast," said Peak who attended the ceremony in uniform as did several National Park Rangers.

"We have a trolley transportation system. We hope to have the opportunity to welcome (tourists) dockside," said Peak who said the pier project reinforces the importance of the ocean to the country's founding. "It is a validation of the importance that water played in this country's history."

In the best-case scenario, the pier will be ready for ferry service next spring, according to several officials.

Carlos Pena, PE, of CLE Engineering, said he expected to begin reviewing the site and drawing up engineering plans beginning Tuesday, the day after the ceremony. The plans should be completed by the Fall.

Pena said the existing pier will be dismantled, lowered and the ramp lengthened.

In the meantime, visitors will have access to a weather shield at the base of the pier and a solid promise of things to come from federal officials, the governor, state legislators and city leaders.

At the conclusion of Monday's ceremony, officials broke ground for the shield formerly located at Lovejoy Wharf, North End.

It should be fully installed by the end of the month.

Cahill Welcomes Back Army Reservist Brian Turnbull To State Treasury

Treasurer Tim Cahill welcomed back Sergeant First Class Brian Turnbull of the U.S. Army Reserve and Treasury employee Tuesday after two years of active duty assigned to the US European Command (EUCOM) in Stuttgart, Germany.

Turnbull, a Mansfield native who lives with his wife Virginia in Quincy, first enlisted with the Army Reserve in 1972 serving until 1978, and reenlisted in 1989 to the present date.

"It is an honor to welcome back a Treasury employee with such a courageous spirit and determination," said Treasurer Cahill. "Sergeant Turnbull has made tremendous sacrifices for our country, we are all appreciative of his service and grateful to have him back in Boston."

Sgt. Turnbull is currently assigned to the EUCOM ARE stationed in Ft Devens. He has previously served in Ft Knox, KY and Reykjavik, Iceland and has been awarded the Joint Service Achievement Medal and the Meritorious Service Medal.

"It was a great opportunity to work with active duty men and women who serve every day and sacrifice so much for our Nation and the American way of life," Sgt. Turnbull said.

Sgt. Turnbull started his employment at the Treasury in the Administration and Finance Department as the Finance Manager in April of 1999. He has 34 years of state service working at such agencies as Department of Education, Office of the State Comptroller, the Trial Court, and Department of Mental Retardation before being employed at the Office of the State Treasurer.

He is currently the Treasury's Director of Finance and Business Operations.

In January of this year Sergeant Turnbull nominated Treasurer Cahill for the Patriotic Employer award from the Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (ESGR). The ESGR is a Department of Defense organization that seeks to promote a culture in which all American Employers support and value the military service of their employees. Employers qualify for the Patriotic Employer award when they practice leadership and personnel policies that support employee participation in the Guard and Reserve.

The award was presented to Treasurer Cahill in January as well as signing a statement of support for the ESGR.

much a work a progress, and we are going to continue to find new and creative ways for our residents to interact with their government."

In the first year, more than 1,000 people have signed up for the e-mail and text-messaging alert system that provides real-time information to residents on construction projects, snow emergencies, and other information on City services. The CityLink system also sends out a weekly e-mail update on news and events in Quincy.

The Koch administration, under the guidance of Information Technology Director Charles Phelan, undertook the total overhaul of the City's website soon after taking office, and planning included asking residents about what they would like to see and creating a new platform and management system for the site, which was spearheaded by Blue Note Technology of Cambridge.

The new site for the first time allowed residents to pay bills online and request any kind of service through a new streamlined constituent request system and download virtually every form required for doing business with the City. The most visited page over the first year is the calendar, where residents can view upcoming public meetings and community events.

"Our goal was to make the most user-friendly government site in Massachusetts, and I think the numbers show we are well on our way to getting there," said Phelan. "We are continually adding features based on the feedback from the community, and we expect to doing more of the same this year."

Andre Realty Trust: A Tradition of Success

Almost one hundred years ago, a two year old boy, John Einer Andre, sailed with his family from Sweden to a new country full of promise. His father was a bricklayer, and in Sweden once a bricklayer always a bricklayer. Things have probably changed since then, but back then...

His mother was told her son would die before they reached their new country. He didn't.

Before any of the children in the family could enter school, they had to be able to read the local newspaper from front to back in English without an accent, or so the story goes. He would wear his sister's hand me down shoes and go with his mother while she cleaned the homes of "rich" people, while his father earned a living as a bricklayer.

This young boy would grow up to build not only chimneys and houses, but gas stations and post offices. Starting with his father, Carl Andre, John would learn his trade well enough to be able to very closely estimate the number of bricks needed for a job, something he was very proud of.

In 1941, father and son had a contest as to who could build a building faster and better than the other. Not just building the buildings was a feat because they were building two apartment houses, but, as one banker told Mr. Andre, he would never have any success renting them. One night, Mr. Andre went to check on the buildings and found a gentleman "inspecting" his buildings. This gentleman would go on to build very similar buildings. Can't beat success!! The two buildings survive today and both are very well built and solid buildings.

Carl Andre and Son would continue for a number of years when, eventually, it would become the John Andre Building Company. In 1953, Andre Realty Trust was created. Mr. Andre would continue to build buildings until 1972. For many years, he and his son, John M. Andre, could be seen together traveling to, and inspecting, the properties. Today, Andre Realty Trust owns and manages its remaining property in Quincy and Norwell.

CGIT Opens New Quincy Office To Assist With Medical Device Sales Into China

Mayor Thomas Koch, Ward 4 City Councilor Brian Palmucci, and representatives from the Quincy Chamber of Commerce recently welcomed Crystal Global Info Tech (CGIT) to Quincy.

CGIT is an information carrier and marketing solutions company whose mission is to expand clients' sales by developing and enhancing their recognition and profile in China.

At CGIT's U.S. offices, located at 300 Congress St. in Crown Colony, the team provides multi level services which include marketing information, product and legal support, media services, consultant training and localization. This includes the use of four media tools published in China such as a digital and hard copy magazine, industrial website, and cell-phone website. With their expert assistance, clients are provided with these services that are designed to lower the cost of doing business and to stimulate sales in the Chinese market.

The company's CEO, Jian Zhang, said his company can provide all inclusive marketing solution packages, including media support and an internet sales channel which until this time have not be available in this specific area. The company, already well known in China, aims to be a leader in the medical device industry.

Zhang chose to focus on this specific industry when China's State Council in March 2009 announced an allocation of $123 billion toward health-care reform. Construction of 30,000 hospitals, clinics, and care centers across the country has already begun. Zhang said he realizes that for foreign medical device companies, China's reforms could prove to be a boon by offsetting lagging demand in developed markets.

"CGIT is perfectly poised to help such companies sell their premium brand-name products to magnet hospitals in cities like Beijing, Shanghai, and Guangzhou where the government is focused on showcasing world-class care and where patients are demanding international products," Zhang added.

For additional information about CGIT, visit their website at www.cgitus.com or call 1-877-323-CGIT (2448).

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Open Flames, Outdoor Burning

There are subject matters that must be reviewed seasonally, especially those involving open flame such as grills and outdoor burning. As a society, as our familiarity with open flame declines, educational efforts become even more important. Vigilance does as well, while embracing sound prevention practices and making them your own. No where is this more important than with candle use, grills, and outside burning.

The fact is, open burning of leaves, vegetation, wood, paper products and any combustible for that matter is not allowed. Considering the close proximity of houses to each other, the nuisance factor of smoke and the perceived threat of fire to abutters, it is in my opinion, a sound policy.

Fire prevention must at times draw a line between what is reasonable behavior and what behavior can be threatening to the community overall. That line is not always the easiest to define. The decision long ago to prohibit outside burning within this city has been one of those decisions, and over years, the prohibition has served this community well.

Meanwhile, there are those devices that don't really fit under the umbrella of open burning, and yet involve flame and the outdoors, for instance tiki torch use. Although not prohibited, they must be used with care and safety in mind. Their use on a combustible deck is not recommended by this department while doing so 10' away from a building, securely placed within the ground while not left unattended is. Care must be taken to make certain that they are a safe distance from dry, combustible vegetation, while not posing a threat to any combustible exposure.

Portable outdoor fireplaces and chimeneas are surfacing while we clearly place them within the open burning category and therefore their use is prohibited. We will receive an occasional call asking for our opinion while it is conveyed that they have been used on combustible decks.

We in turn inform the caller that not only is it inadvisable to use them on a combustible deck; we prohibit their use entirely.

It has become an automated age while most of us have little exposure to open flame in our daily lives. Stoves are automatically ignited, natural gas stoves with continuously lit pilots for instance, can no longer be sold for residential use in this State. Range oil is no longer stored on porches and heating systems are self-contained. Candle and oil lamp use within a home can be found as contributions for atmosphere only, while even their use during an emergency is infrequent. Is anyone still stoking the flames of a furnace or sifting ashes from a night's worth of fire?

It is no wonder then, that with such little exposure to fire, restriction on its use increases. Some will dispute that while I for one see the need and must err on the side of caution. Kindly adhere to both our prohibitions and recommendations while you are always welcome to contact us for any further clarification.

Meanwhile enjoy this warmer weather and be safe while doing so.

Thank you.

Records Reign, Seasons Change At Quincy DPW

DPW COLUMN

By JOHN SULLIVAN
Manager Of Waste And Recycling

It's been a busy spring at the DPW and the summer shows no sign of letting up.

March came down in a torrent of record rain fall that flooded hundreds of basements in Quincy and far beyond. Crews from the Water and Sewer, Highway, Engineering Departments as well as Inspectional Services worked 24/7 to bail out residents and shore up those in harm's way. Even the Waste and Recycling Department was taxed into service above and beyond the normal collection parameters as Mayor Koch ordered all construction and demolition debris to be collected curbside and that flood contaminated hazardous waste be accepted at the DPW. While things are apparently back to normal much review and planning continues at the DPW to prepare for the next one.

The Quincy Veterans Services will host a TV and electronics drop-off day on September 18 at the Morrisette Post. In Quincy, unlike many surrounding towns, TVs and monitors are picked-up curbside and disposed at no additional cost to the taxpayer. However, new disposal regulations have bred a preponderance of discarded TVs pushing disposal costs over $5000 per month—money the City doesn't have.

Quincy Veterans Services has team-up with the DPW, Office Recycling Solutions and Electronic Manufacturers Recycling Management Company to help save the city thousands in disposal costs and support our local veterans. To show your support, simply hold onto your TVs and electronics until the next event on Saturday, September 18, from 8 AM to 12 PM. The collection is free to Quincy residents and lots of give-a-ways are planned. Stay tuned for more information.

Five elementary schools took part in the first ever Textile Fundraising competition. With donation trailers placed in their school parking lots the Bernazzani, Beechwood, Merrymount, Montclair and Squantum elementary schools generated over 57,000 lbs of clothing, shoes and small toys earning over $2,400 dollars for their PTO. The $500 grand prize went to the Bernazzani School with a whopping 13,550 lbs. collected in just five months.

In addition, students learned that our trash is weighed and a bill is paid for its disposal. By diverting nearly 58,000 lbs from the waste disposal stream participants saved taxpayers over $2,600. Textile recycling is big business. The material collected is sold to brokers who resell the material to third world retailers. Unusable material is broken down and reconstituted into generic fabric and material. The trailers will remain in the school yards for at least the summer and new proceeds will benefit the Thomas Crane Public Libraries.

As we head into the sweltering heat of record-breaking temperatures yardwaste collection was changed to a bi-weekly schedule all season. By reducing the amount of collection weeks the City of Quincy will save $50,000. The change also eliminates the confusion that occurs when the collection schedule changes back and forth from weekly to bi-weekly over the course of the season. The DPW yard is open M-F from 7:30 to 3 pm and on Saturdays from 7:30 to 2:30 to receive yardwaste from Quincy residents.

YARDWASTE STICKERS are mandatory on all barrels containing yardwaste. Free yardwaste stickers are available at the DPW, 55 Sea St., the City Hall Information desk, 1305 Hancock St., Danny's Hardware, 53 Billings Rd., and at Curry Hardware, 370 Copeland St. You can also have stickers and a composting brochure mailed to you by calling 617-376-1953 or e-mailing recylequincy@quincyma.gov.

The Earth Machine composter is available at the DPW rear yard year-round. Easy to install, the Earth Machine can provide tons of fertile compost in your own backyard. Available through a grant from the MA DEP for $45, the composter can be purchased M-F 7:30 to 3 pm and Saturday 7:30 to 2:30. Personal checks are accepted.

The perfect barrel for trash and recycling in Quincy is the 32-gallon barrel available at Curry Hardware, 370 Copeland St and Danny's Hardware, 53 Billings Rd.. Larger barrels with wheels and lift bars are designed for automated collection and can hold too much waste for the manual system of curbside collection. Recycling stickers as well as $5 coupons for the purchase of the perfect recycling barrel are available at the DPW, 55 Sea St. and at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St. The coupons are good at Curry Hardware and at Danny's Hardware You can also have stickers and coupons mailed to you by calling 617-376-1953 or e-mailing recylequincy@quincyma.gov.

Hundreds of rain barrels have been distributed from the DPW in the past year. They are easy to install and help save money by using rainwater for gardening. They are available through a grant from the MA DEP at a significant discount. Call New England Rainbarrel at 877-977-3135 to order.

Household Hazardous Waste Drop-off Day was combined with Prescription Drug Drop-off Day this June to save money and generate more participation. Both goals were realized as a record 400+ plus cars were relieved of their hazardous contents in just a few short hours.

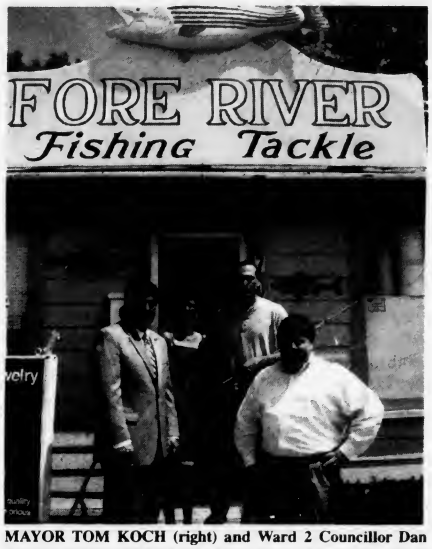
In addition, volunteers from the Mayor's Task Force on Drug Abuse and Impact Quincy joined with EDAN members (End Drug Abuse Now) at the Prescription Drug Drop-off table. Over 3,000 doses of extremely addictive prescription drugs were collected for destruction.

Many experts agree that a lifetime of addiction can begin simply by opening the medicine cabinet at home. There is also concern about medications in the water supply not being adequately cleared by water treatment plants. Event organizers noted, "Never dump any kind of medicine or chemical down the drain." A special "thank you" to CVS pharmacist Susan Barret of Quincy, for donating her time at the event.

All the senior towers operated by the Quincy Housing Authority were equipped with brand new 96-gallon recycling toters. A special presentation was made along with coffee and prizes to dozens of participating residents. Prior to this collaborative effort, all recyclable material from the towers went into the trash. Thanks to the efforts of Assistant Director Bob Quinn, Maintenance Director Dave Ferris and a host of dedicated custodians it is expected that trash tonnage will be reduced in the towers by a whopping 25%.

Bait And Tackle Shop Refurbished After Flooding

Grand Reopening For Fore River Fishing



Mayor Tom Koch and Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi attended the recent grand opening ceremony at Fore River Fishing, a landmark bait and tackle shop located at 708 Washington St., Quincy.

In February, water pipes burst and flooded the retail outlet, forcing the owner to close and refurbish the store. After months of reconstruction Fore River Fishing is now fully operational.

The unusual and unique fishing landmark has a long 35-year history in Quincy. Originally started by Patricia Newcomb, the outlet was taken over by her son, Rick, about 17 years ago.

"What makes this shop so special amongst the few remaining bait shops dotting the South Shore is that not only does Fore River sell fresh and salt-water fishing supplies, but when you walk into the shop and look to the right you will see an incredible selection of ruby, sapphire and emerald jewelry as well as silks, statuary and native craft all coming from Cambodia, Thailand and Southeast Asia," Rick Newcomb said. Once newspaper article featuring the store with the headline "The place to go for rubies and squid."

Rick Newcomb's background is in the mining industry. He's mined everything from quartz to rubies in Arkansas, Colorado, Montana, Washington and Idaho.

MAYOR TOM KOCH (right) and Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi help celebrate the recent grand re-opening of Fore River Fishing, a bait and tackle shop located at 708 Washington St. with owner Rick Newcomb. Also with them is Maria Dean.

"The fishing industry is strictly a seasonal business," Rick says. "We scramble to make 12 months work of money in five to six months."

Every year the seasons seem to be shorter and shorter. The economy and other factors have also taken their toll on the fishing industry.

As a result, Rick decided to revamp his knowledge of mining and worked for years to develop a secondary income that would support the bait shop and keep his family business going.

"Twenty years ago there were over 40 bait shops within a 50-mile radius of Quincy. Now there are only six of us left here on the South Shore," he says.

Combining a love of Southeast Asian and mining, Rick now mines in Pailin, Cambodia, works with a family of jewelers in Phnom Phen, Cambodia, and brings back his ruby and sapphire jewelry to the bait shop. There's also emeralds, silk products from Thailand, silver jewelry from Cambodia and native craft from Southeast Asia.

Quincy Typewriter Leaving But Service, Sales Available

weeks in Quincy will mark the end of Bob Barker's career as he is retiring. "I will miss it," said the elder Barker.

Bob Barker learned the business from his father as a teenager, used those skills as a soldier during the years of the Korean Conflict and for 63 of his 78 years adapted to the changing landscape from the earliest typewriters to electric models, to word processors and, finally, computers.

Edward Barker, Bob's father, opened the business in the Depression in 1932, "the year I was born," Bob Barker said Monday as he outlined the history of the company that's been an anchor in Quincy Center for over three-quarters of a century.

The original business not only sold and serviced typewriters and office equipment but was equally dedicated to stationary and office supplies. The double Barker operation filled more than half of the retail space of the first floor of the building located at the corner of Maple and Chestnut Street.

"I started working here when I was 15," Bob Barker said, recalling his father's example of persistence and hard work. His father, the company founder, lost one leg at the age of 47, but continued working on crutches until he was 87.

In his early years, Bob Barker learned service, "I was mechanically inclined."

Servicing typewriters involved cleaning, lubricating and replacing parts and repairing damaged keys and for years, there was plenty of work to go around for three full-time mechanics, one salesman and a bookkeeper as 50 to 75 customers called or visited the store. Today, there are 10 to 15 in a week.

In 1949, Bob Barker signed up for the Army and served through 1953, the years of the Korean War. What was his assignment?

"I was fixing typewriters in Germany and Austria," said Bob Barker, noting that the typewriters were needed in the field for reports. When troops moved from assignment to assignment, they'd drop the typewriters off the trucks along with their other equipment, unintentionally smashing them up a bit and they'd land in Barker's repair area.

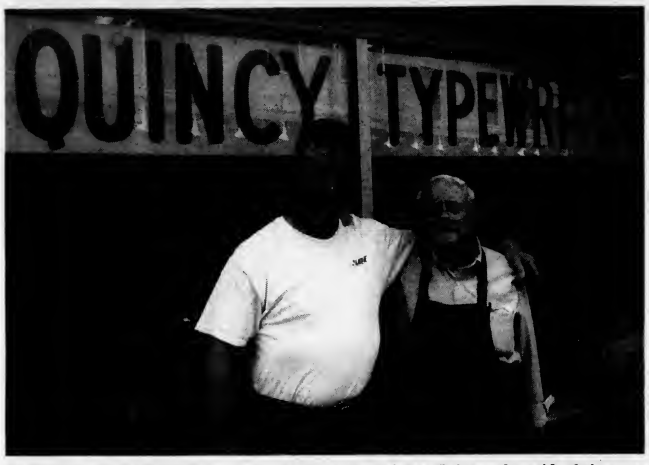
Bob Barker said the typewriters were boxed in cartons. "The guys didn't know what was in them and they'd throw them off the truck."

Once he was home, he married his wife Marilyn and together they raised two sons, both of whom tried out the family business. Gerry will own the business as of Aug. 1.

Over the past 50 years, Bob Barker and his company adapted as electric typewriters advanced, and word processors, and then computers came along.

"I remember buying 100 (electric typewriters) from Smith Corona...." Bob Barker said, citing a former Quincy client. When computers first arrived, Bob Barker was ready.

"We repaired a few computers. The old ones had tubes inside them like a television," said Bob Barker, adding that the computer repair business was short-lived. "You could buy a new one for less than it cost to fix one."



While the numbers dwindled, typewriter enthusiasts remained. The telephone rang several times during Monday's interviews as longtime clients called to check on their typewriter repairs or supplies.

One of Bob Barker's favorite customers was the late Henry Bosworth, founder and longtime publisher of The Quincy Sun.

Barker recalled that Bosworth typed two-finger style on his manual Royal typewriter right up through his last column and he never converted to computers.

Bob Barker doesn't believe in computers either.

"I don't want to know," he said, citing some of the dangers of putting information, such as charge cards, personal information and bank account numbers out for someone to steal.

BARKERS BID FAREWELL – Gerry Barker and his father Bob stand outside their store, Quincy Typewriter Service Co. for one of the last times as they prepare to close the shop on Maple Street. The Barkers have owned and operated typewriter and stationery stores at that location for over 70 years. Gerry Barker will still offer service and sales by telephone and, eventually a website, for longtime clients. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth)

Right now, he has no specific plans for retirement but will be fixing up his lawn, pruning his trees and, likely, polishing his favorite car, a 1913 Model T, that he used to ride in the Christmas parades.

While Bob is adjusting to retirement, his son Gerry will be developing a website and serving the remaining customer base.

"The typewriter business is not gone and we buy and sell and we repair," said Gerry Barker who said lawyers, banks, funeral homes and Town Halls still use typewriters for forms and varied items.

In fact, New York City spent over $900,000 on typewriter purchases in 2008 for police use. Police are still using typewriters in many areas, according to Gerry Barker.

While Gerry was being interviewed, he answered a call regarding repairs for the writer who provides columns for the Experimental Aviation Association with his IBM Selectric typewriter.

Gerry Barker said he's not the only writer who prefers typewriters for those random thoughts that hit at odd times and deserve a sheet of paper.

"It's not huge. It's all word of mouth," Gerry Barker said of the remaining client base, but added that he may be in a very unique position. "I don't know of anybody else."

Quincy Typewriter Service is one of three tenants of the Maple and Chestnut Street building expected to leave the building owned by Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co. this summer. Their neighbor TAJ Coin and Stamp Co. is expected to close permanently and a third major tenant, Hair Place One, plans to relocate at 85 Quincy Ave. next month.

Steven Briggs, a vice president at Quincy Mutual, said the company's plans for the building and the site will be announced next month.

According to Planning Director Dennis Harrington's most recent information, the building will be demolished to provide parking and open space but company officials offered no confirmation.

Blood Drive A Bittersweet Day For Charlie Peter

Community Comes Together Annually In Memory Of Son Chris, Wife Trudy

By JOE REARDON

The Houghs Neck Community Council's annual blood drive has always been a bittersweet day for Charlie Peter.

Peter and his late wife Trudy began the drive back in 1984 in memory of their son Chris, who was killed by a drunk driver in September of that year at the age of 22. Charlie and Trudy kept the blood drive going until the Houghs Neck Community Council took over in 2004. Trudy died shortly after.

"We can always do better," said Charlie, his eyes welling up with tears. "I'm happy with the turnout. It's wonderful how the same people come back year after year to support us.

"We gave it up after 20 years because we thought we were too old to do it properly. Then the Houghs Neck Community Center asked if they could take it over and that's exactly what we wanted," Charlie said.

Inside, St. Thomas Aquinas Hall was bustling with activity. Ten members of the American Red Cross were collecting blood from donators. Nearly a dozen more were seated, waiting for their turn. Homemade cookies and juice were spread out on one of the tables and volunteers were busy bringing in bottled water.

At the check-in table, Houghs Neck Community Council Vice-President Jim McCarthy and council member Christine Toler signed in those in line to donate and registered others.

McCarthy expected about 130-135 people to donate as the day wore on. "It's going really strong," he said. "This is still one of the best attended annual blood drives. We have no plans to end it any time soon."

For Toler, it was her first year helping out at the table after baking cookies the two previous blood drives. Toler wasn't at all surprised by the large turnout.

"I think it's typical of the Houghs Neck community," said Toler. "The pull through for each other during good times and bad times."

Since 1984 more than 2,500 pints of blood have been collected at the blood drive. Charlie explained that a unit, which is just under a pint, is split into platelets, red blood cells and plasma, enough to help three people.

The donations, he said, are vital. "It has to come out of somebody's arm. You can't manufacture it."

HOUGHS NECK Community Council member Christine Toler, Vice-President Jim McCarthy and Charlie Peter greet donors at Tuesday's Houghs Neck Community Center Blood Drive at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall. Now in its 26th year, the drive has collected more than 2,000 pints of blood.

Koch To Host 4th Annual Community Cookout Aug. 12

Mayor Thomas Koch will host his Fourth Annual Community Cookout at 5 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 12 at Pageant Field.

"Every resident of our City is invited to this fun, relaxing, and free night," the mayor said.

"It is a great opportunity for us to get together in a relaxed setting in the summer, have a burger or a dog, and enjoy one of Quincy's most beautiful spots," Koch said. "Everyone is invited, and we're looking forward to sharing a great night with old friends – and many new ones."

The free event includes hamburgers, hotdogs, and ice cream, plus games and activities for kids – including a "Moonwalk," and bocce and badminton for the older kids. The cost of the event is donated privately by Mayor Koch's campaign committee.

Last year, volunteers dished more than 1,000 burgers and dogs to residents at the event, which is billed as "Good times, good food, and great people."

The Mayor said that the setting doesn't mean that City Hall business won't be discussed, adding that informal atmosphere is "a great listening tool" to residents and their questions and concerns.

Story Time Connection Bonds Troops And Children

OPERATION THANK YOU – Aimee Tinney and Cristina Tinney hold a poster that will be on display at the Border's bookstore in Braintree this Saturday and Sunday where people will be able to purchase books as part of the Operation Thank You program with the troops in Afghanistan.

Public Can Purchase Books This Weekend Or Drop Off At Quincy Fire Headquarters

By JOE REARDON

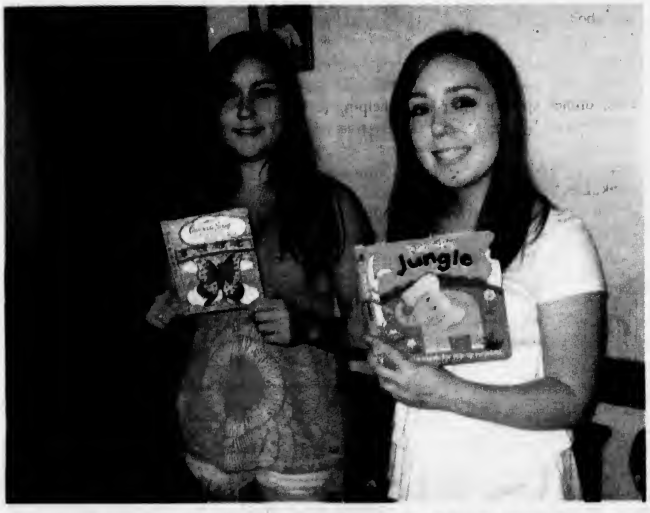
Years from now, when the fighting in Afghanistan is a distant memory and the threat of terrorism in the United States will have hopefully been suppressed once and for all, the tapes of Story Time Connection will live on, symbolizing the unconditional bond between parent and child.

Quincy resident JoAnn Tinney, the chairman of the program, has been busy buying books for elementary school-aged children that will be sent overseas to the soldiers. The troops will then be videotaped individually, reading the stories to his or her child.

"Story Time Connection connects our troops with their children back here in the states," said Tinney. "Our troops in Afghanistan can choose a book for their child and then be videotaped reading the story. This is a wonderful project. Some men are not able to be at their child's birth, see their first steps or hear their first words."

The public will get a chance to purchase books for the program on Saturday and Sunday, July 24-25 at the Border's bookstore in Braintree. The store will supply a booklist of suggested titles and Tinney will be on hand to tell people about the program and how it has helped the troops and children.

People wishing to donate books can drop them off at the drop box at the Quincy Center Fire Station on Quincy Avenue. Tinney said people should not call the fire station.



The program has been a source of comfort for mothers who are serving in the military in the mountains of Afghanistan.

"Mothers miss holding their child, comforting them and soothing them when they cry. This project enables a connection that these children will cherish forever. They can hear and see mommy or daddy whenever they want reading them what will surely become their favorite story."

Tinney said it can be an emotional experience both for the soldiers reading the stories and their children viewing the video, thousands of miles away. "It would probably be bittersweet but it is very comforting," said Tinney. "It's wonderful for the soldiers but it's really for the children. I think it's a wonderful project."

Tinney has a goal of collecting 500 books to be sent overseas to the soldiers. When she gets a book, Tinney looks through it to be sure it's age appropriate for an elementary school student and short enough so it can be read in its entirety because the soldiers only have a limited amount of time to be videotaped.

Tinney said the feedback from the soldiers has been tremendous and they take full advantage of the opportunity to read to their children. She received a letter from the 82nd Airborne thanking her for efforts. Tinney's nieces Christina and Aimee have worked with her, assisting on various duties that go with the undertaking.

Quincy Medical Center Golf Classic Raises $140,000 For Healthy Aging Center

Quincy Medical Center recently held its 21st annual Golf Classic, hosted by Granite Links Golf Club, to raise funds to support the hospital's Center for Healthy Aging.

The event raised nearly $141,000 thanks to a host of generous golfers and sponsors, including presenting sponsor Tufts Medical Center, platinum corporate sponsor Mintz, Levin, Cohn, Ferris, Glovsky and Popeo, P.C., dinner sponsor attorney George Burke, reception sponsor Valic, golden corporate sponsors Eastern Bank, Electro Switch Corp., Fallon Ambulance Service, Valic, and many more.

Golf Classic Chairman Don Uvanitte, of Eastern Insurance, thanked all of the sponsors and golfers at a dinner reception following the tournament before introducing QMC Interim CEO John N. Kastanis, FACHE, who explained how the tournament would benefit patients.

"Quincy Medical Center's mission is to provide the best care possible for all of our patients and with our Center for Healthy Aging we can ensure that seniors in our community benefit from its specialized programs and services geared especially for them, including specially trained nurses and physicians, expanded geriatrician resources, new community collaborations with area skilled nursing and assisted living facilities, a new Alzheimer's Center for evaluation, treatment and groundbreaking research, and a new private, well-designed area in the Emergency Department to provide care for seniors," he said. "On behalf of the Quincy Medical Center Board of Trustees, as well as the hospital administration and staff, thank you for helping us to bring this superlative care to our patients."

The evening culminated with an auction, raffle drawings and awards. The winning foursome was Pat Sharkey, Henry Hong, David Johnson and Larry Jenkins of Mintz Levin. Small-Scale House Serves As Model To Strengthen Homes From Natural Disasters

NQHS Carpentry Students Construct 'Dawg Haus'

NORTH QUINCY HIGH School students in Bob Burke's carpentry class work on a model house that will be used by homeowners to make improvements to their homes to better withstand hurricanes. Quincy Sun Photo/Joseph Reardon

By JOE REARDON

North Quincy High's shop department may play a significant role the next time a natural disaster strikes in the United States.

Led by Bob Burke, head of the carpentry program at North Quincy High, students were busy recently constructing a "Dawg Haus." The small-scale house exhibits details that allow homes to better withstand hurricane-strength winds from the ground to the roof. Homeowners can strengthen their homes by following the Dawg Haus models.

The Dawg Haus program that is run by FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) visits high schools around the country. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts and MEMA (Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency) will use the two structures built by Burke's students as tools during future natural disasters. They will also be displayed at Home Depot and home shows.

FEMA Operations Section Chief Dave Cavanaugh, a member of the North Quincy Class of 1980, said that the flooding that crippled much of the Bay State in March was given the number DR-1895. Other natural disasters have included hurricanes, tornadoes and seismic events.

"We touch them all," said John Synnott, the deputy director for mitigation for FEMA.

Synnott worked the Northridge, CA, earthquake in 1994, one year after floods crippled much of the Midwest. "It was a huge flooding event in multiple states," he said.

The program has helped educate people around the country and specifications are done depending on where the homes are.

"Stronger, safer and smarter," said Synnott. "That's our goal, to eliminate future dangers. It's great to see the enthusiasm the kids have. It's preparing these students for what they're working towards as carpenters."

Synnott has seen areas of the country that sustained far less disaster damage because of the construction precautions. There were 275 FEMA employees in Massachusetts during the flooding disaster.

"You go from disaster to disaster," said Synnott. "Down time is limited."

Burke said the model the students were building dealt specifically with hurricane winds and it gives them a realistic look at environmental effects on structures. "They're going to have a nice background," Burke said.

As part of the carpentry program at North Quincy, the students received OSHA training and ladder and scaffolding training. The have built a number of sheds during the school year and the program has included other disciplines interweaving together.

"It ties in with the computer drawing," said Burke. "They do the tech drawing for us. There's a sense of business here."

Sophomore John Schwartz said it's exciting to see a project move for the preliminary drawings through the final product. "It's everything that we've learned all year," said Schwartz. "We seeing what we learned and how it all comes together. It shows what we can do together as a shop.

"I'm going to be using this the rest of my life. In home maintenance, it's a good thing to know."

Thunderstorms Are A Deadly, Destructive Force

As insurers and homeowners keep a close watch on the Atlantic Basin for hurricane activity this summer, the Institute for Business & Home Safety (IBHS) cautions people across the nation not to underestimate the destructive and deadly force of thunderstorms and lightning, which occur far more often and directly affect more of the U.S. than hurricanes.

According to the National Weather Service, every thunderstorm produces lightning. On average, 300 people are injured and 80 people are killed each year in the U.S. by lightning.

"Thunderstorms are a dangerous weather event and their destructive capabilities should not be taken lightly," said Julie Rochman, IBHS president and CEO. "Property losses related to lightning strikes exceed $1 billion annually, according to insurance industry data. These losses can range from damage to expensive electronic equipment fires that destroy an entire house or business."

For lightning protection, a whole-house/building surge protector is the best starting point for reducing the risk of damage. It is important to make sure that it is either a secondary surge arrestor tested to IEEE C62.11 or a transient voltage suppressor that has been tested to UL 1449, 2nd Edition. A number of power companies have programs to provide and install the whole-building surge protection. If this is not available in your area, consult a licensed.

However, for best results, the protection should extend beyond the whole-building surge protection. IBHS strongly recommends the following:

• Install additional protection for important or expensive electronic equipment. This should include localized surge protection for power cords to the equipment and any telephone and cable/satellite TV lines connecting to the equipment. These devices are available at most home improvement and electronics stores.

• Have a licensed electrician or competent home/building inspector review the power, telephone, electrical and cable/satellite TV connections to your building. Have them check to make sure that you have adequate grounding of the power line connection and your power distribution panel. All of the utilities should enter the structure within 10 feet of the electrical service entrance ground wire and be bonded to that grounding point.

"Thunderstorms do not receive as much notoriety as hurricanes or the other perils of Mother Nature, but they are a force to be reckoned with," Rochman said. "Preparing your home or business will you give you peace of mind knowing that you will be better protected when thunderstorms strike."

IBHS is an independent, nonprofit, scientific and educational organization supported by the property insurance industry.

The organization works to reduce the social and economic effects of natural disasters and other risks to residential and commercial property by conducting research and advocating improved construction, maintenance and preparation practices.

Lead-Safe Renovation - What Homeowners Need To Know

(ARA) - Renovating your home can be daunting. The last thing you want to worry about is the possible lead-related health risk of some common renovation tasks. Sanding, demolition and siding and window replacement can all disturb lead-based paint, placing you and your family at risk of lead poisoning.

Because of these risks, the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) developed the Lead-Based Paint Renovation, Repair and Painting Program to help protect homeowners. As of April 22, the legislation requires that workers, including contractors, painters and maintenance personnel, be trained to use lead-safe work practices. Additionally, renovation firms must be EPA-certified.

Because these common remodeling practices can be dangerous to a family's health, it's important for you to learn about a contractor's lead-safe practices before delving into such projects.

What does the legislation entail?

Under the EPA, the legislation:

• Applies to all remodeling/renovation projects on homes, childcare facilities and schools built before 1978 that contain lead paint.

• Is related to on-site work practices.

• Renovation workers must take an eight-hour training course to become certified on lead-safe practices.

Exemptions include:

• Housing built in 1978 or after. If you are not sure what year your home was built and whether or not it contains lead-based paint, it is the contractor's responsibility to confirm that information.

• Housing for the elderly or disabled, unless a child under the age of 6 lives or is planning to live in the home.

• Homes with no bedrooms, including studio apartments and dormitories.

• Homes declared lead-free by a certified inspector or risk assessor.

• Minor repair work using 6 square feet or less of paint per room inside, or 20 square feet or less of exterior space.

Questions all homeowners should ask

When meeting with a home improvement company or renovation firm, the representative should bring up the issue and provide a government-issued certificate from the EPA showing that their firm has installers who are certified in lead-safe renovation practices. If they do not provide this documentation, homeowners should question if the company is certified.

Also, beware that this legislation may increase the cost of some renovation projects, so homeowners should be careful not to fall for a lower bid from a non-certified contractor.

What the EPA-certification entails

By law, at least one certified installer needs to be on the job site, with a valid certificate, if it was built before 1978 and contains lead-based paint. To become certified, the contractor must attend an eight-hour course that includes education on the dangers of lead-based paint, hands-on learning of safe demolition, installation and disposal of the debris, as well as a final examination. Those who have taken the course can then provide on-the-job training to his or her helpers, who must also be able to provide a certificate to the homeowner.

For more information on the Lead-Based Paint Renovation, Repair and Painting Program, visit www.epa.gov/lead.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, July 14, at approximately 3:55 a.m., Officers Stephen Rayne and Sean Glennon were dispatched to the area of Copeland Street on a report of a woman screaming. QPD communications reported that they received an abandoned 911 call from a Copeland Street address.

LT. DAN MINTON

Upon arrival, Officer Rayne located three females standing on the corner, all appearing to be upset. They told the officer that the male who fled their home, dated one of them until recently. The ex-girlfriend said that she allowed the male to live there until he could find another place to live. The former girlfriend stated that an argument began earlier in the evening and the male left to cool down, but returned and assaulted her.

A description of the suspect was given to additional units searching for the suspect. The female victim was having trouble breathing and speaking, complaining of dizziness due to several punches to the head. An ambulance was requested to evaluate her and she was advised to go to the hospital for additional care, however she refused. She was given an ice pack for her pains.

Officer Rayne interviewed one of the females, who witnessed the incident. She said that at approximately 3:35 a.m., she and her roommate left the house to go to a local convenience store. When they returned a few minutes later, they saw the male suspect inside the apartment. She said that she saw the suspect in the entrance hallway and he was hitting the victim.

The witness closed in and saw the male suspect punch the victim in the head and face area several times. She also witnessed the male suspect kick the woman in the stomach, knocking her back against the wall and then to the ground. She stated that while on the ground, the male suspect kicked her at least one more time. She then saw the male suspect wrap a telephone cord around the woman's neck, in an attempt to strangle her.

At this point, the victim attempted to grab the cord away from the male suspect, who turned and punched the female in the face several times, and then fled out of the apartment. The two females chased the suspect out of the apartment and call "911" for help.

The male suspect was last seen running south on Copeland Street toward Water Street. Officer Rayne also interviewed the other female, who confirmed the initial account. After speaking to the two female witnesses, Officer Rayne spoke with the victim, who said that she and the male suspect just ended a 2 ½ year relationship. She allowed him to stay with her until August because he had nowhere else to stay. She stated that at around 7 p.m., they began to argue and she told him to leave, which he did.

Later on, around 3:30 a.m., after the two female friends left the house, the male suspect appeared in the doorway. He started screaming at her and then punching her several times in the face and head, as well as in her neck and throat. She stated that he hit her several times and kicked her in the chest, knocking her to the back wall. The suspect grabbed the telephone off the table as she attempted to call the police. He then ripped the cords out of the telephone and began to strangle her with the telephone cord.

She said that the male suspect told her he was going to "black her out" (choke until passing out) and that he has done this before. She said she wound up on the floor and was kicked several more times. She stated that she was punched at least five times and does not know how many times she was kicked. She also stated that he bit her on her forearm.

When asked if this has occurred in the past, the female victim said that he has assaulted her before but she did not want to get him in trouble. The victim was provided with information on domestic violence but she refused any assistance in obtaining an emergency restraining order. Officers searched the area but were unable to locate the suspect.

Officer Rayne was informed by Dispatcher James McAvoy that the suspect had been convicted of domestic assault and battery against the same victim in May 2009. Officer Rayne filed for an arrest warrant against the suspect, a 33 year old Quincy resident, for "Assault and Battery with a dangerous weapon, to wit shod foot; Assault and Battery- felony, Assault and battery, Intimidation of a witness and Assault with intent to murder.

Best-of-Three Series Marred By Controversy

Morrisette's Dark Ending A Life Lesson Learned

By SEAN BRENNAN

Anger. Frustration. Disappointment.

Those were the feelings of every Morrisette Post American Legion player, coach, and fan last Friday evening following a controversial ending to the deciding Game Three of Morrisette's best-of-three District 6 East/West playoff series with Westwood Legion.

If you haven't heard, you haven't been paying attention.

In an ignominious conclusion to what to that point had been an entertaining and evenly played series, Morrisette was robbed of an opportunity to advance past the American Legion District playoff round and into the American Legion South Sectionals.

The following is how it all went down.

The best-of-three series began with a coin flip. Morrisette (East) and Westwood (West) were both number three seeds in their respective districts, which required, by American Legion bylaws, that a flip of a coin decide which team would hold home field advantage, and therefore which team would host Game One and a potential Game Three. This 50/50 chance ended up being the major factor in deciding the District 6 playoff.

Westwood won the coin toss (although Morrisette made the call) and hosted Game One on July 13 at Westwood High School's Downes Field – a field that was without lights. Morrisette jumped out to a 5-4 lead entering the bottom of the fifth, but Westwood stormed back to take the opening game, 15-7; an eight-run win, remember that number.

Not a problem for Morrisette. Last year in the District 6 playoffs, the team dropped a Game One to Norwood Legion only to charge back and win that series 2-to-1. Game Two was held, a day late due to a rainout, at Adams Field on July 15 and Morrisette behind solid pitching and improved team defense, shutout Westwood, 4-0. Total runs for the series after two games: Westwood 15, Morrisette, 11.

The deciding Game Three began around 6 p.m. on July 17 in Westwood. Morrisette banged out eight early runs and held a commanding 8-2 lead entering the bottom of the second. Westwood, to their credit, rallied back to tie the game at 9-9 in the fifth inning. After seven full innings, the two teams were locked in a 9-9 tie.

It was in the eighth inning when things went bad.

District 6 West, unlike District 6 East, at least during the regular season, has a rule in place that no inning can begin after 8 p.m. That rule was changed for the District 6 playoffs. Game Three's eighth inning started a few ticks past the 8 p.m. cutoff and Morrisette took advantage.

Ryan Louis and Matt Rodriguez reached base and John Ainsley doubled, with one out, off the left field fence scoring both players. Morrisette was up 11-9 but time (and daylight) was not on their side, so Manager Steve Maze got clever. He had his next batter take three swinging strikes. Two outs. He then instructed Ainsley to run into an out at third base. Four pitches, two outs, top of the eighth over.

Westwood was up next. The first batter recorded an out and the next laced a sharp single to center, one out and a runner on first. Morrisette was now two outs away from advancing to the South Sectionals, and then it happened.

Westwood Manager Dick Paster, coaching in the third base box, halted the game claiming it was too dark to continue playing safely. Confusion ensued. Paster, Maze, and the umpiring crew, along with Larry Connors, the District 6 chairman, convened. Minutes passed and finally the head umpire called the game over and inexplicably left the playing field.

Since there was no longer an umpiring crew, the game was over. What happened next will be debated for a longtime. Because the bottom of the eighth inning was not completed, the top of the eighth was negated, which meant the final score went back to the end of the seventh. Game Three ended in a 9-9 tie.

The best-of-three series would now be decided by tiebreakers. The first tiebreaker was head-to-head records and since both teams were 1-1 against each other it went to tiebreaker number two. Usually in a case like this the highest seed would advance, but, since both Morrisette and Westwood were three seeds, it came down to tiebreaker number three, which was total run differential. Do the math, folks. Westwood scored 24 runs and Morrisette scored 20. Westwood moved on and Morrisette was left wondering what just hit them.

Maze protested the outcome of the game (the official protest was denied at 10:15 a.m. the following day at a American Legion meeting).

So, why wasn't the game finished the next day, Saturday, July 17?

According to District 6 rules, all District 6 East/West best-of-three playoff series must be completed by July 16; July 17 was set as a "dead-day," which did not allow for Game Three to be rescheduled.

Maze and legendary Morrisette manager Raymond Cattaneo traveled to the Saturday American Legion meeting to state their case as to why a game of this magnitude was decided by loose rules and not by the players on the field. They received sympathy from the majority of coaches in attendance, but, ultimately, it was decided that rules (most notably the July 17 "dead-day") and result would stand and Morrisette's protest and request to finish what both teams had started (a Game Three) was denied.

The Fallout & Tough Life Lesson

The anger, frustration and disappointment was still very much present when the Morrisette team, coaching staff and parents got together for a team powwow on Monday evening at the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post #294.

It was obvious that at this point nothing could be done (Westwood had already played and lost its first game in the American Legion South Sectionals), but Maze and Cattaneo addressed the team, and did their best to explain that everything had been done in support of the players – both showed class and leadership in this capacity. They also informed those in attendance that rule changes would be made so something like this never happens again.

The players, especially those who saw their American Legion careers come to an abrupt end, listened and took in what was said. And what was said speaks highly of what Morrisette baseball means to anyone who has and will put on that jersey.

"Let it go. Something happened that never should have happened," said an impassioned Cattaneo. "You were better than them but we can not do anything about it. I had this team in the state finals; you guys were the best hitting team I have seen in a long time and you are 17 great kids.

"But the rules are the rules. The game should have been completed on the field and we will do everything in our power to make sure that this never happens again.

"Don't dwell on it. You have to move forward and bite the bullet. Life isn't fair. Take what happened and use it. Go make something of yourself.

"Winning is wonderful, losing stinks. But we didn't lose, we tied and then we lost. The players should have decided the game on the field. This is a life lesson, use it and grow from it."

First-year manager Steve Maze, who is cut from the same cloth as Cattaneo, passionate and dedicated to his team, added:

"At the meeting on Saturday I stood up to plead our case. Every coach in there was on my side. But I was informed that the rules are the rules. I just want you guys to know that Ray and I fought for you guys to the end. Things are going to change. I can promise you that.

"And despite what has happened we had a great year. You should all be proud."

And that was that. All 17 players shook hands, hugged it out, turned in their home and away jerseys and left the Post, disappointed, no doubt, but with heads held high.

What could have been (a long run through the American Legion playoffs) was lost. What should have been (the completion of Game Three) was not.

What did happen was special; that anger, that frustration, that disappointment was shelved.

Baseball is like life in many ways. You win some, you lose some, and you may even tie some. But there is always that next game. You got to be ready, be prepared, and move on.

Quincy Babe Ruth Travel Captures District 4 Title

Quincy's 13 year-old Babe Ruth League travel team earned its spot in the upcoming Eastern Massachusetts Babe Ruth Tournament, to be played, starting today (Thursday), at Adams Field, following an undefeated run through the District Four Tournament earlier this month.

With the District Four title, Quincy joins seven other district winners, with the chance to advance into the Babe Ruth Regional finals on the line. Quincy, which as the host team of Eastern MA 13 year-old tournament was already guaranteed a place in the field of eight, qualified the right way. The team will take the field at Adams tonight at 8 p.m. on the strength of an impressive run through the District 4 playoffs – not because the host field is in their city.

Quincy battled through the District Four tournament and came out undefeated. The event was held in Randolph, with 12 teams competing, including South Boston, Hingham, Marshfield, Milton, Pembroke, Hanover, Duxbury, Braintree, Tri-Town, Kingston, and Weymouth.

The 14-member team, under the coaching of Rick Beach and Dave Suslowicz, all contributed offensively and defensively to help bring the championship home. Five different starting pitchers earned wins on the mound for Quincy.

Despite already being assured of an automatic bid into the Eastern MA Tournament, Coach Beach's team wanted to do it the "old-fashion way," to earn it, and that is just what this "team oriented" team did at the District Four Tournament. Quincy's outright win in the districts opened up the eighth and final spot in Eastern MA State Tournament to Tri-Town, the runner up in District Four.

Quincy's first game will be tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. The team's first opponent was announced Tuesday night after The Quincy Sun had gone to press. The team is also scheduled to play on Saturday at 8 p.m.

QBRL, Inc. To Host 13 Year-Old Tournament

By SEAN BRENNAN

This weekend, Adams Field will be the site of yet another exciting Babe Ruth League Baseball Tournament. This time around it will be the eight-team Eastern Massachusetts 13 Year-Old Tournament.

Starting today (Thursday, July 22), Quincy, along with seven other district winners from Eastern Massachusetts, will play for a chance to advance past the state-tournament portion of the Babe Ruth playoffs and into the regional round in August.

As the host team, Quincy was guaranteed a spot in this tournament, but this year's 13 year-old entry didn't take the easy way in. Instead, Quincy, under the guidance of head coach Rick Beach, went out and won the District 4 title. Quincy earned its spot in the tournament, no free ride, and will begin play as one of the favorites to come out on top.

"This is a good team, which is very well coached by Rick Beach, and they have a good chance of winning this tournament," said Quincy Babe Ruth League President Dick Lombardi. "There will be seven other district winners, good teams, that will have the same goal as our team, so it should make for a great few days of baseball.

"Most of these teams have been playing together for a few years so you don't really know what to expect. There will be good baseball played at Adams. It is going to be a great event and we hope that people come out and support all of the teams."

Along with Quincy, the seven other teams competing this weekend include district winners Norwood, Wakefield, Taunton, Plymouth, Medford, Winchester, and Tri-Town. Tri-Town qualified as the runner-up to Quincy in the District 4 playoffs.

The official schedule for the 2010 13 Year-Old Babe Ruth Tournament was released (officially) on Tuesday evening after The Quincy Sun went to press for the week. Quincy will play its first game today (Thursday) at 8 p.m., and its second game on Saturday, July 24 at 8 p.m.

The following are the times of games to be played at Adams Field this weekend:

Thursday, July 22: 5:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. (Quincy)

Friday, July 23: 5:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Saturday, July 24: 12 noon, 2:30 p.m., 5 p.m., and 8 p.m. (Quincy)

Rode 1,717 Miles To Raise Money For Shelter Box

QHS Graduate Biked From MA to FL... and Back

By JOE REARDON

Jake Tavakoli went down the checklist of supplies and incidentals that he needed before departing on his 1,717-mile bike ride from Sarasota. FL, to Quincy.

The 24-year-old Tavakoli, a 2004 graduate of Quincy High, is an experienced enough biker to know that despite how much preparation he puts into a major undertaking, there are always snags along the way. He's self sufficient and savvy enough to handle them, but they do present a headache nevertheless.

Probably the biggest test Tavakoli had to face on his journey was the oppressive heat and humidity in Northern Florida and Georgia, and again on the final stage through Connecticut and Rhode Island. Combine the 102-degree temperatures with the hills he had to contend with and Tavakoli found himself grinding through the sections, exhausted.

As a long-distance biker, though, exhaustion is par for the course and most often relished, not scorned.

"My knees would hurt sometimes but I just kept trucking through," Tavakoli said early on in his ride. "The road has its own plan for you once you're out here.

"I don't expect it to get real hilly until Virginia."

Afterwards, he lamented riding through the two New England states before hitting Massachusetts. "It was humid," Tavakoli said. "It really took it out of me. They were tougher than the other states because of the heat and hill, but I still liked it because it was a challenge."

The struggles Tavakoli went through were nothing when compared to the everyday trials the people he is trying to help, face.

The charity he chose, Shelter Box, is a non-profit organization dedicated to providing shelter, warmth and comfort to survivors of disaster worldwide. Tavakoli is looking to raise $10,000 for the organization and is urging people to help by logging onto shelterbox.org or shelterboxusa.org.

The boxes, which are approximately $1,000 apiece, supply an extended family of up to 10 people with essential equipment and supplies for them to use while they are displaced or homeless. Each box also contains a tent, big enough for 10 people.

The boxes have been used for disasters around the world, most notably, in Louisiana after Hurricane Katrina. They've also been distributed in Haiti, China and Mexico.

"It kind of gives people a leg up," said Tavakoli.

Tavakoli originally biked 2,187 from South Boston to Key West and then up to Venice FL, last August to visit with his grandfather, Roy Rosetti. When he decided it was time to head back to his hometown, Tavakoli opted to make it a ride for charity.

The people met along the way are some of the most gracious he has ever come across. On one particularly hot day, Tavakoli was low on water and knew it was time to rehydrate or he'd run into problems in the sticky, sweltering conditions.

He knocked on the door of a nearby house and the woman who answered gave him a drink and he wound up having dinner with the family and talked to her husband about his time in World War II.

"I really enjoy being on the road," Tavakoli said. "It's something I'm capable of doing, but I'm capable of helping people too."

The generosity of people he met along the way was very humbling to Tavakoli and it amazed him how friendly absolute strangers could be.

"The genuine nature of people and the generosity is something that people don't see," Tavakoli said. "For me to befriend strangers and see their generosity is something people should experience for themselves.

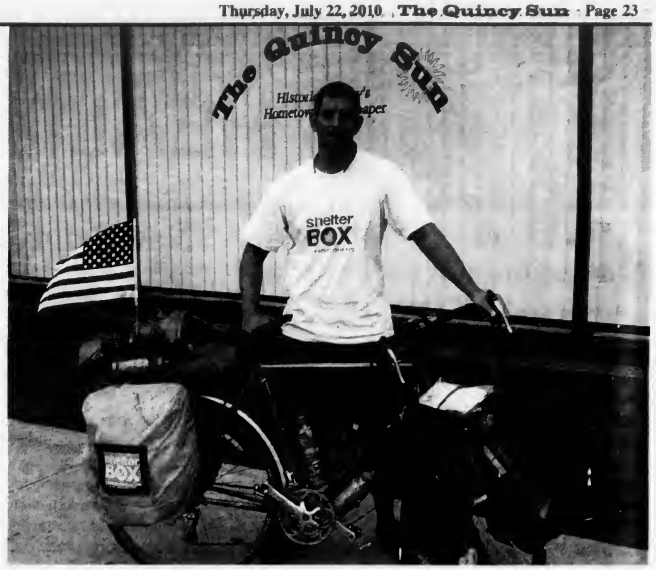
"Southern hospitality definitely exists. What I want to do is pay it forward sometime in the future.

"It's not about the places, it's about the people."

Tavakoli got off to a fast start and never fell behind. Twelve days into the journey, he had logged 650 miles to Conway, SC. He slept in a tent in nearby woods on most nights and also stayed with friends along the way.

At the end of a typical day, Tavakoli had 6-7 hours of biking under his belt and at least 60 miles, sometimes as many as 80. In all he passed through 14 states before biking into Quincy last Saturday evening.

Tavakoli doesn't believe his ride was a monumental achievement, but rather a journey that he feels most anyone could accomplish if they put their mind to it.



"I knew what I was getting myself into," said Tavakoli. "People said to me, 'I couldn't do that,' but if you wanted to do something, you could do it. It's all about motivation."

Tavakoli kept a journal and wrote nearly 100 pages throughout the ride, documenting his experiences and thoughts on the road. He did the same on the bike ride down and hopes to write a book sometime in the future based on his entries.

Tavakoli is already planning his next ride that will bring him to Niagara Falls; somewhere he has always wanted to visit. He's tossing around the idea of biking around Lake Ontario.

After that, there'll be rides to last a lifetime.

"I'm going to be on a bicycle the rest of my life for sure," he said. "I may have a car or motorcycle but I'll have a bike. I don't see how I couldn't."

Jake Tavakoli stands with his fully loaded touring bike that he rode 1,717 from Sarasota, FL, to Quincy. The 2004 Quincy High graduate rode to raise money for Shelter Box, a non-profit organization dedicated to providing shelter to survivors of natural disasters worldwide.

Drops Randolph 27-13; Next Game at Hyde Park

Quincy Militia Continues To Roll With Win Over Oilers

By JOE REARDON

Vaughn Driscoll's best piece of coaching just may come this week heading into Saturday's game against the Hyde Park Seminoles. Winless and struggling at 0-3 on the season, the Seminoles are off to a disappointing start on their Eastern Football League schedule.

That doesn't make Driscoll breath any easier

The Militia's head coach looks at them as a dangerous club to contend with when Quincy takes to the road Saturday at 3pm. "They're having a hard time this year but the guys they have are tough," said Driscoll. "I'm going to be right on them (Militia) in practice."

After dropping their first game of the season, the Militia has been on a roll with two consecutive victories and don't want to be caught asleep at the switch against a Seminole team they should easily dispose of.

Quincy owned the line in its impressive 27-13 win over the Randolph Oilers on Saturday with several quality performances up and down the roster. Quarterback Matt Boyle connected on a 9-yard scoring pass with Alex Perron and Joe Hobbs barreled his way into the end zone from the 5 for a TD. Dolan Reid had an enormous game, rushing for 135 yards on 13 carries, along with scoring romps of 33 and 15 yards.

Driscoll kept to a ground attack behind the Militia's overpowering work on the line. Eighty-five percent of the offensive plays from scrimmage were geared to their running attack.

"We knew we were going against Randolph and they're a powerhouse," said Driscoll.

The Militia was equally dominant on defense and didn't allow the Oilers' offense to get into a rhythm in any of the four quarters. Free safety Rich Ruiz and linebacker Donald Jeffries had five tackles apiece, while cornerback Tyrone Holly put up four tackles. Linebacker Greg Ryan had five tackles to go along with an interception.

The Militia's next game is scheduled for July 24th at Hyde Park's Reservation Park.

Kickoff is at 3p.m.

The week of July 31st is a bye week for the Militia.

The team opens the month of August with an away game at Braintree on August 7th. The following week Quincy will host Mid-Coast at 7p.m. at Veteran's Memorial Stadium.

On August 21st, Quincy will host Bay State at 7p.m. followed the next week with an away game at Charlestown.

New Study Of Investigational Alzheimer's Disease Treatment Enrolling Patients In Quincy

The Alzheimer's Disease Center, Quincy Medical Center announces it has begun enrolling patients with Alzheimer's disease in the CONCERT study, a new clinical trial that will test the efficacy of a unique investigational drug, dimebon (latrepirdine), in patients currently taking Aricept® (donepezil HCl tablets), the leading Alzheimer's disease medication worldwide.

"Alzheimer's is a complex disease and while current medications address symptoms for some patients, the disease often requires combination therapy to maximize clinical benefit," said Dr. Anil Nair, the director of the Alzheimer's Disease Center.

"CONCERT is an important study because dimebon is thought to work differently than current medications and this study will evaluate whether adding it to one of the most commonly used Alzheimer's medications will provide more effective symptomatic treatment to patients."

While a cure is still many years away, treatments that provide lasting effects, more complete symptomatic benefits or slow disease progression would be meaningful advances for patients and caregivers; for this reason there is an urgent need for patients to participate in clinical trials to help advance the understanding of how Alzheimer's disease can be better treated.

According to estimates from the Alzheimer's Association, 5.3 million people in the United States are living with Alzheimer's1, a devastating disease that hinders a patient's ability to remember, learn, perform daily activities and relate to others. As the baby boomer population ages, the incidence of Alzheimer's is expected to increase dramatically.

For more information on eligibility and enrollment, patients and caregivers can call 617-302-6388 or visit www.thealzcenter.org

CONCERT is an international, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study that will enroll approximately 1,050 patients with mild-to-moderate AD at approximately 100 sites in the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Western Europe. Patients on a stable dose of Aricept will be randomized to one of three treatment groups: dimebon 20 mg three times per day, dimebon 5 mg three times per day or placebo.

The primary endpoints are the Alzheimer's Disease Assessment Scale — cognitive subscale (ADAS-cog) and the Alzheimer's Disease Cooperative Study — Activities of Daily Living (ADCS-ADL), a measure of self-care and daily function.

The CONCERT study is sponsored by Pfizer and Medivation, Inc.

Shape Up Your Summer Snacking

(ARA) - Summer is here, and that means barbecues, get-togethers and outdoor parties with friends and family. With so many tempting treats, it can be hard to snack smartly, but some easy substitutions here and there can keep the whole family on track all summer long.

"The secret to healthy eating is to eat real foods, and ditch anything artificial," says Ashley Koff, registered dietician and founder of Ashley Koff Approved (AKA). Ashley founded AKA as an easy resource of foods that help empower everyone to make healthier choices. All AKA foods have been reviewed by Ashley and approved as a healthy and quality food choice.

Ashley says you can enjoy your favorite foods; just watch those portion sizes. Don't give up that daily latte, but order a small instead of a large.

If you're faced with a buffet table of delicious food at a family get-together, look for real, recognizable foods and load up your plate with fruits and vegetables. Ashley recommends to "always choose high-quality ingredients - for example, swap soda for water or coconut water and cream-based dips for guacamole."

When trying to incorporate food changes, get the family involved. If the whole family is on board, it will be much easier to stay on track and achieve healthy living goals. Here are some summer snacks that are Ashley Koff Approved (and yes, they taste good):

1. Real potato chips: Choose organic or baked (with the skins still on) and re-pack into portion-controlled containers, or look for 100 calorie packs, perfect for on-the-go munching. For a nutritionally balanced snack, pack string cheese and salsa along with your chips for some extra protein and veggies.

2. Peanut butter and fruit: Take an organic, whole grain waffle and spread on nut butter (almond, peanut, hazelnut or even sunflower seeds if you're skipping nuts) and top with fresh, sliced strawberries.

3. Quick sundae: Use plain, organic yogurt and add toppings like organic berries, granola or whole grain cereal for flavor and crunch as well as additional nutrients.

4. Dip it: Dips are a perfect way to upgrade nutrition and even squeeze in some veggies. Skip the cheese or ranch dressing and use Greek yogurt for a protein punch. Salsa is a fresh, flavorful addition to any summer spread. Instead of eating a chip with every bite of salsa, crumble a few organic corn tortilla chips into a salad to make a satisfyingly crunchy taco salad with zesty salsa, beans, avocado and chicken.

No matter what happens this summer - barbecues, family get-togethers or pool-side parties - keep these tips in mind to snack smartly all season long.

HANDS-ON MUSCLE RELAXATION

When it comes to relaxing muscles, taking muscle-relaxant medications may not be the best course of treatment. In fact, muscle-relaxant pills do pose potential dangers, the least of which is the possibility that they can cause sedation, which may lead to increased risk of falls and other accidents. With this in mind, patients with tight muscles might want to opt for a safer and more effective treatment. Muscle spasms caused by neck/back pain, fibromyalgia, headaches, and other forms of musculoskeletal pain generally respond well to the application of hand and hands-on therapies. According to one survey conducted last year involving more than 14,000 people, chiropractic care was considered to be the most effective treatment for lower back pain.

At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, there are many things we can recommend to alleviate the pain associated with muscle stiffness. We're currently accepting new patients and welcome your call at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment for a comprehensive chiropractic evaluation. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we will spend time talking with you to evaluate the source of your health problem and determine the most effective form of treatment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Some muscle-relaxing drugs, such as carisoprodol, are more likely than others to lead to addiction and abuse.

Enzyme Deficiency Can Cause Emphysema

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would like to call your attention to a question you answered about emphysema. I think you should have mentioned alpha-1 antitrypsin deficiency. It would have been a good opportunity to bring this condition to the public's attention. I have it and was diagnosed at age 53, after having been misdiagnosed for eight years. I have been on Prolastin, which has stabilized my lung capacity. While more doctors are aware of this condition, there are some who are not. — D.C.

ANSWER: Lungs come equipped with their own janitorial crew. They inhale lots of foreign debris, and they create trash in their work of transferring oxygen into the blood and carbon dioxide out of it. The cleanup crew is trypsin, an enzyme. Trypsin, however, can go overboard, so another enzyme, called alpha-1 antitrypsin, stops it from overdoing the trash collection and destroying air sacs in the process. Emphysema is destruction of those delicate structures. Cigarette smoking is the No. 1 cause of emphysema, also known as one of the chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases, COPD.

Symptoms of emphysema, regardless of cause, include shortness of breath with little physical exertion, cough and increased sputum production.

The delay in your diagnosis of alpha-1 antitrypsin deficiency is par for the course. On average, the diagnosis takes eight years from the time a person first visits a doctor for emphysema symptoms. This illness should come to mind when a relatively young person or a person who has never smoked develops emphysema. A simple blood test for the level of the antitrypsin enzyme can secure the diagnosis.

Treatment is the same as treatment for smoking-caused emphysema. However, there is an additional treatment for alpha-1 antitrypsin deficiency emphysema. Intravenous infusions of the missing enzymes can benefit those with the deficiency. Your Prolastin is one such product.

The booklet on emphysema and chronic bronchitis, the two chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases, discusses the more-common variety in detail. To obtain a copy, write: Dr. Donohue -- No. 601W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am inquiring about sebaceous cysts. During the past 20 years, I have had between eight and 10 of them on my back. They were removed surgically. My former family doctor, now retired, said there may be some prescription pills that can stop them from returning. I would like some insight from you. — W.M.

ANSWER: Sebaceous cysts are also known as epidermal cysts. Often found on the back, they're firm, round lumps that grow slowly. They can be pushed a little from side to side. Their cause is unknown.

If they're inflamed or painful, they can be cut out without a lot of trouble, usually in the doctor's office. The cyst wall must be taken too, or the cyst will return. Simply draining one of the pasty, greasy material contained inside doesn't end the problem.

Everyone would love to know of a pill that prevents or gets rid of them. I don't know of one, and I don't believe there is one.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

SCOTT DEWARE

It has been said that for every great man mentioned in history, there are millions of unheralded great men unmentioned in history. The following thought penned by an unknown author tells the story...

"A man is no bigger than the way he treats his fellow man! This standard has his measure been since time itself began! He's measured not by tithes or creed high-sounding though they be; nor by the gold that's put aside; nor by his sanctity! He's measured not be social rank, when character's the rest; nor by his earthly pomp or show, displaying wealth possessed! He's measured by his justice right, his fairness at his play; his squareness in all dealings made, his honest, upright way! There are his measures, ever near to serve him when they can; for man's no bigger than the way he treats his fellow man! ...

We knew – and know a great many great men who "measure up." And we know you do, too ...

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Starting something new is always exciting for the adventurous Aries. And here's the good news: This time you might be able to get some assistance in helping you finish what you've started.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Put your daydreaming penchant on hold for now, and face the facts as they are, not as you'd like them to be. Your customary hardheaded approach to "deals," etc., would be called for.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Problems beyond your control might delay some of your plans. But things should start to get back to normal by midweek. The weekend could bring an unexpected (but welcome) visitor.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a good time to buckle down and tackle those unfinished tasks so you'll be ready to take on other projects. The week's end could bring an invitation from a most surprising source.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Mixed signals could create a few stressful moments for the Lion. But by midweek, explanations should help ease the tension. The weekend is party time! Share it with someone special.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good "catching up" week for finishing tasks, calling old friends and maybe reading that book you haven't opened yet or renting that movie you wanted to see again.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters should be worked out, even if it takes time away from a more romantic situation. Better to settle things before feelings turn hard and angry on all sides.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A job-related problem could turn out to be less troublesome than it seemed at first. Just a few moments of talk 'twixt the parties resolves everything to everyone's satisfaction.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The Sagittarian Archer takes aim at health and fitness issues this week. Watch your diet, and try to put more exercise time into your typically busy schedule.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As you continue to focus on a career or job change, it's a good time to look over some of your rarely used skills and see where they can fit into your future workplace plans.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A loved one's health might be worrisome, but there's good news by midweek. Expect people who share your ideas and your goals to try to contact you by the week's end.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A colleague's request that makes the typically perceptive Pisces feel uncomfortable is a request you probably will want to turn down. The weekend favors family get-togethers.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for making others feel warm and wanted. Even newcomers feel like old friends.

Prayer Through Application To The Holy Spirit
Holy Spirit: You who solve all problems, light all roads so I can attain my goals; You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life You are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank You for all things as You confirm once again that I never want to be separated from You, even in spite of all material allusions. I wish to be with You in eternal glory. Thank You for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer for 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the favor requested will be granted. Even if it may appear difficult, this prayer must be published immediately without mentioning the favor. Only your initials should appear at the bottom. N.S. 7/22

Nancy Aimola Celebrates 12th Birthday
By Collecting Items For Shelter's 'Wish List'

'Nancy's Project' Benefits Animal Shelter

Nancy Aimola of Quincy will always remember her 12th birthday.

So will a lot of other grateful people.

In lieu of presents, Nancy Aimola – for her 12th birthday July 7 – took on "Nancy's Project" to collect items from the Quincy Animal Shelter's "wish list."

She was able to collect 126 cans of dog food, 162 cans of cat food, bags of dry dog, cat and kitten food, treats and paper towel rolls.

Nancy aspires to become a veterinarian someday and was so thrilled to be able to contribute for the animals at the Quincy Animal Shelter.

On July 6th, President Kit Burke and volunteer Board Member Peg O'Brien provided Nancy with a tour of the facility and allowed her to visit with the cats. She was impressed with the tremendous efforts of the volunteers and was inspired to continue to help the animals in need.

NANCY AIMOLA makes a new friend while visiting the Quincy Animal Shelter.

QUINCY ANIMAL SHELTER President Kit Burke and volunteer Board Member Peg O'Brien give Nancy Aimola a tour of the shelter after the 12-year-old donated items including dog and cat food in lieu of receiving birthday presents.

THIS IS A Black-crowned night heron seen on the garage roof on Hawthorne Street in Houghs Neck. Photographer Karen Walker explains these birds are usually hunched over and look very penguin-like, hunting usually at dusk. She also calls attention to the long trailing feathers in the back of his head. They're called Breeding plumes, visible during the mating season. At that time, the legs change from deep yellow, to pinkish-yellow. Photo Courtesy Karen Walker

Residents Should Be Alert

Rash Of Robberies In Wollaston

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Six pedestrians traveling streets in the Wollaston-Montclair areas have been robbed in separate incidents spanning the last six weeks, according to police reports that include an attack on a 65-year-old man on Beale Street shortly after midnight Monday.

"We are taking measures to address this issue," Lt. Jack Sullivan said Tuesday, adding that he would not identify the police strategy and, thereby, alert the culprits to department plans.

While Sullivan said new efforts are addressing the problem, he suggested that residents walking the area watch for and report any unusual activity.

"You have to be aware of your surroundings," Sullivan said, advising residents to "walk with someone" and "try to stay on main streets."

Police also advise against using headphones and talking on cell phones while

Fr. Bill's Friends Continue Mission To End Homelessness

By LAURA GRIFFIN

It's been a year since Father Bill died, but his legacy continues.

The faces and stories of those in need are ever more diverse today than they were in 1982 when the beloved Father Bill, the Rev. William McCarthy, founded the first shelter for the homeless in Quincy.

But the goal of ending homelessness remains even as the need grows.

Today, many of the homeless are young, teenagers in fact; others are veterans and more and more are elderly, as the country's economy stays stagnant.

This week marks not only the anniversary of Father Bill's death on July 24, 2009, but also the highlight of each year's fundraising as friends of Father Bill raise funds and awareness through Annual Food Fest to benefit Father Bill's & Mainspring.

Father Bill's old friends remain steadfast and new ones have joined the year-round effort to continue his legacy of offering help to those in need through volunteer work and fund-raising

Some 800 tickets were sold for the 16th Annual Food Fest held Tuesday at The Ocean Club, Marina Bay. Once again, local businesses donated their finest foods and wines for the occasion, according to John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's MainSpring.

"The Food Fest has always been the last Tuesday in July," Yazwinski said Monday, noting the timing of the event three days after

Local Youngsters Keep Alex's Lemonade Stand Alive

Fundraiser To Combat Cancer A 'Moving Experience'

By JOE REARDON

Handing out cups of ice-cold lemonade and balloons on Tuesday morning in front of city hall, 10 local kids culminated four weeks of work in keeping Alex's Lemonade Stand alive.

In hand at the bright yellow stand that was built by the kids was the book "Alex and the Amazing Lemonade Stand." The true story centers on Alexandra Scott of Pennsylvania's courageous battle against cancer and her efforts in raising funds to battle the all-too-common disease.

Alex ultimately lost her battle in 2004 at the age of 8, but her memory has touched grownups and kids alike throughout the country. The "Alex's Lemonade Stands" program that generates funds to combat cancer has been gaining momentum over the years.

"It's been great," said 14-year-old Hayley Forbes who will be a freshman at North Quincy High in September. "We never thought we'd be building a stand or making lemonade. It's very moving. Cancer's one of those things we can all relate to unfortunately. Good for her (Alexandra). She was strong. Her story and the lemonade stands started in Pennsylvania and now they're in Massachusetts."

Quincy Public School teachers Amy Markarian and Laurie Jordan worked with the kids the past four weeks collecting donations

City Planners Receive 6th National Award In 7 Months

Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington, Community Development Director Nancy Callanan, and Principal Planner Sean Glennon from the city's Department of Planning and Community Development recently won the 2010 Hometown Video Award under the category of "Community Events" from the Alliance for Community Media (ACM).

ACM is a national advocacy group, which has a mission to "advance democratic ideals by ensuring that people have access to electronic media and by promoting effective communication through community uses of media." ACM advances this goal through public education, Congressional lobbying, coalition building and grassroots organizing. ACM represents over 3,000 public, educational, and governmental access organizations throughout the country, including Quincy Access Television.

THE CITY'S Department of Planning and Community Development recently won the 2010 Hometown Video Award, its 6th national award in 7 months. From left are: Principal Planner Sean Glennon, Community Development Director Nancy Callanan and Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington.

The award was presented at a ceremony July 9 in Pittsburgh. Glennon accepted the award on behalf of the department, from Deborah Vinsel, Coordinator of the 2010 Hometown Video Awards ceremony.

"Tonight we honor 110 award-winning programs from community media centers submitted from all over the United States," Vinsel said at the ceremony. "We had nearly thirteen hundred entries this year, so folks who are receiving a plaque tonight can be very proud of this accomplishment. It was very competitive."

Quincy's award-winning video is a five-minute documentary about the purchase and rehabilitation of the former St. Boniface Church and its transition into the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

"Ironically, this piece was created to be used as a video acceptance speech at another awards ceremony last year," said Glennon, who served as videographer and post production editor of the video. "I never dreamed that one of our awards would win its own award!"

"I am very pleased with the Alliance's recognition of our talented employees in the Department of Planning and Community Development," said Mayor Thomas P. Koch. "The staff in that department does a phenomenal job and I am grateful to them."

Winning videos are selected by national voting panels that are setup in local community access television centers across the country, such as Quincy Access Television, which was one of the voting locations this year.

"I'm thrilled that our video was selected among the hundreds upon hundreds of entries this year," said Callanan, who served as Producer of the video. "We were certainly happy with the quality of the documentary upon its completion, and it's wonderful to get that same kind of acknowledgement from other producers from across the country." Callanan also won a Hometown Video award in 1998 under the category of "Government Profile" for a video about the City's First Time Homebuyer program.

"I wish to thank Nancy and Sean for a job well done on another great production," said Harrington, who is credited as Executive Producer of the winning video. "I also wish to thank Bette Campbell and the staff and Board of Directors of Quincy Access Television for partnering with us on so many programs in recent years.

"My entire staff has been trained in portable production, studio production, and post production thanks to Bette and her staff. Making our events and presentations accessible to all citizens through public access broadcasting is a vital component of the nationally-recognized accomplishments of this department."

the one-year anniversary of Father Bill's death.

"He created the FoodFest. This was a way to alleviate the unfunded (costs)," said Yazwinski, estimating that funding must be raised for at least 40 beds year-round of the 115 beds provided at the shelters.

Just a year ago, Father Bill himself was calling friends, tapping all the resources for his projects and last year, the FoodFest raised $250,000, according to Yazwinski.

"We're hoping to do the same this year," said Yazwinski, praising the corporate sponsors and local restaurants, food and wine shops for their generosity.

The sponsors and the individuals who support Father Bill's are helping a wide range of persons in need from teenagers to the elderly, according to Yazwinski.

Homeless Teens

Yazwinski said the fastest growing homeless population this year is in the 18 to 21 year-old range with a total of 165 in the past years.

The number of homeless teenagers seeking help has increased by 60% from 2009 to 2010 as follows:

JOHN YAZWINSKI

18-year-olds

2009	10

19 year-olds

Yazwinski said many of these teenagers are fleeing difficult home situations and are referred by schools.

"The kids can't handle the drinking or the drugs in the home. It's not a safe environment," said Yazwinski who believes youngsters in troubled homes leave as soon as they are of age and foster children who age out of social services at age 18, sometimes seek help.

Yazwinski described six cases in which high school seniors sought help from Father Bills and called the teenagers "high functioning students in difficult conditions."

All six were found homes through the agency and all six will begin college in the fall. There are, also, cases of teens involved in abuse of alcohol and drugs.

At the other end of the spectrum are the increasing numbers of those over 60-years old who have been battered by financial reversal, lost their homes or apartments and have nowhere to go, according to Yazwinski

"More rest homes are scaling back services," said Yazwinski, explaining the doubling of the number of seniors in the past year.

The young, the old, the veterans and all those in between have more hope for a home and, possibly, a new lease on life, thanks to the hundreds who supported this week's major fund-raising.

For those who missed the event and still want to contribute, they may send checks to Father Bill's Mainspring, 422 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169, according to Yazwinski.

Premier Sponsors of the Food Fest are The Ocean Club at Marina Bay and the Bank of America with Platinum Sponsors, William Gallagher Associates, New England Realty Group, Jay Cashman, Inc.; Atty. George Burke Law Offices and the Family of Richard Welch.

Contributors to the Food Fest include the following Quincy businesses: Beni Café, Bistro Chi, Blue 22, Fratelli's Pastry Shop; Fuji 1546, Ginger Betty's, Java Java, Kama Lounge, Neighborhood Club, Nonna's Kitchen, Shabu, The Common Market Restaurants; The Fours Restaurant Bar & Grill.

Also, Braintee's Konditor Meister, Inc., Legal Seafoods, popchips, and Sintra.

COLORFUL QUARTZ
Named after the Slavic word for "hard," quartz is as durable as it is beautiful. These attributes contribute to make quartz a very popular gemstone, particularly in its purple and gold varieties. As a purple gemstone, quartz is known as "amethyst." This gemstone possesses a regal color and a wide tonal range (from light to dark purple), and it is quite affordable. Citrine, whose name is derived from the French word for "lemon," is the gold variety of quartz and the most affordable of the earth-toned gemstones. It is interesting to note that amethyst and citrine colors are sometimes found in the same crystal of quartz, creating the bicolor yellow and purple quartz gemstones called "ametrine."
Rubies, sapphires, diamonds, and emeralds may first come to mind when naming beautiful gemstones, but don't overlook the equally entrancing colored gems of the world when adding to your jewelry treasures or choosing something unique for a special friend. Quincy College Governors To Address Concerns Over New President Vote

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Chairman David Dennis called a meeting Monday of the Quincy College's Board of Governors in an attempt to help board members end the controversy over the board's vote for Philip Conroy as new president.

That 6-5 vote in mid-June ignited a firestorm that's still smoldering among some board members who favored another candidate.

"We're going to give all board members the opportunity to air their concerns," said Dennis, referring to the public controversy over Conroy's selection.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Saville Hall, Quincy Center.

The vote for a new president was barely recorded when opponents challenged its validity, claiming that some board members' residency violated the rules of the college charter. Those rules require that no more than four board members live outside of Quincy.

While more than four of the voting members are not residents, the vote is still valid according to the Board's legal advisors at Murphy, Lamere & Murphy who cited precedents in declaring the vote valid.

Board Of Governors

The board's attorneys, Michelle McNulty and Matthew Tobin, were not available for comment this week due to vacations and assignments.

One board member, Jerrell Riggins of Boston, resigned after the residency issue was raised. Riggins was not present for the vote on the presidency.

The 11 remaining board members have been notified of Monday's meeting. Dennis and Mark Bertman said they hope the meeting will end the controversy among members.

"I'd like everyone to be satisfied," said Bertman who was one of the five votes opposing the Conroy appointment. "It's important to clear up misunderstanding."

No one could say whether a new vote could be taken or any legal consequences if the majority did switch sides.

As far as Conroy and Dr. James Magee, Special Assistant to the President Sue Harris, are concerned, the issue was decided in June.

"The vote on June 14 was valid and will stay valid," said Dr. Magee.

Dr. Magee who has worked with the board in the selection process has helped five to six other college boards chose new leaders. As a result, he's no stranger to the controversy the process involves.

"It varied from place to place," said Dr. Magee who said the issues were often "emotional and controversial," especially in community colleges.

As an example, Dr. Magee cited the current delays in choosing a new leader for

Rumors Are Swirling Already

In political terms, the 2011 city election is miles away.

But that doesn't mean the rumor mill hasn't stopped turning.

One rumor making the rounds has Mayor Thomas Koch stepping down next year creating an open seat for the city's highest elective office. You can cross that rumor out with a bold-point red marker.

KOCH

One political insider says Koch is 100 percent certain he will seek a third two-year term next year. The mayor is not expected to make an official announcement until later this year or early 2011. The source says the city's business is the mayor's top priority and re-election plans are on the back-burner.

There's also strong speculation that Koch will have at least one elected official as a challenger. That would be School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney. Mahoney, who was the top vote getter in winning a second four-year term last November, held a fundraiser July 21 for her campaign committee. The fundraiser did not specify a bid for mayor.

MAHONEY

Mahoney was first elected to the School Committee in 2005. She made an impressive political debut at the ballot box, topping the city-wide vote in the school committee race that elected three members.

Koch – obviously – has fared well in the last two city elections. The former executive director of the city's Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments defeated incumbent Mayor William Phelan in 2007 by a comfortable margin. Last fall, Koch easily turned aside a challenge by Phelan in a mayoral rematch to win a second two-year term.

If Mahoney climbs into the mayoral ring, it would not be the first time a school committee member challenged an incumbent mayor at the half-way point of his or her term on the school board.

The last time this happened was 2001 when Phelan, who was then on the School Committee, defeated incumbent Mayor James Sheets by 17 votes, the closest mayoral election in city history. At the time, Phelan had served two years on the School Committee when he waged his mayoral bid against Sheets, a six-term incumbent. It was not considered a political risk for Phelan since he didn't have to give up his school seat. If he won, he'd be the city's new mayor in January. A loss meant he'd return to the School Committee and perhaps run for mayor again in two years.

As it turned out, Phelan won the 2001 mayoral election and was re-elected in 2003 and 2005 before losing to Koch.

So, some see that political scenario playing out again next year. Mahoney could wage a mayoral campaign without losing her school seat. She is a proven vote getter and could certainly stir the political pot by challenging an incumbent mayor. It would also be a learning experience if her bid fell short.

Of course, if Mahoney won, she'd make political history by becoming the city's first woman mayor. His Honor would be Her Honor.

She would also be the fourth woman to seek the office of mayor in Quincy.

The others: Rita Anderson in 1971 (the year Walter Hannon, Jr. was elected); Grace Saphir in 1973 (Hannon re-elected) and Joanne Condon in 1985 (Frank McCauley elected to third-term). Incidentally, Saphir polled the most votes among that trio of woman mayor contenders with 10,416 votes or 40 percent. Hannon polled 15,492 votes or 60 percent in that race.

BESIDES BILL PHELAN, there has been one other sitting School Committee member who has run successfully for mayor. But you have to go back nearly 100 years to find him.

The other is former Mayor John L. Miller who served on the School Committee from 1904 until he was elected mayor in December of 1913. Political historian and former Mayor Frank McCauley notes in his book Quincy, MA – A Political History 1889-2000 that Miller was seriously ill during his tenure as mayor. His deathbed wish was to live long enough to spare the city the cost of a special election to elect his successor.

Miller got his wish. He died Oct. 6, 1914. By living one extra day, he negated the need for a special election. (City Council President Joseph L. Whiton served as mayor until Chester I. Campbell took office in January, 1915).

REVERE ROAD RESIDENTS concerned that their street address will change after the Walter J. Hannon, Jr. Parkway is completed can be at ease.

According to Mayor Tom Koch's Office, residents who live on Revere Road will retain their street address when the Parkway opens sometime next year. The Parkway will run from the Sen. Paul Harold Memorial Bridge, intersect with Hancock Street in Quincy Center at the site of the Quincy Fair Mall that is being demolished, and overlap Revere Road to McGrath Highway.

The Mayor's Office also says there will be signage marking Revere Road after the Parkway opens for vehicular traffic.

Arline Goodman, who has lived at 31A Revere Rd. for 40 years, notes Revere Road is named after Brigadier Gen. Paul J. Revere who was killed in the Civil War in 1863 at the age of 31. He was the grandson of the Revolutionary War patriot Paul Revere who made his famous "midnight ride" in April of 1775 as horseback messenger just before the battles of Lexington and Concord.

The general was married to the daughter of the minister of United First Parish Church. Goodman points out Revere and his wife, Lucretia Lunt, had two children and lived on Presidents Lane in Quincy.

A lifesize portrait of Brigadier General Paul J. Revere hangs in the main office of the Quincy Historical Society.

Goodman is one Revere Road resident who was concerned the Parkway would erase Revere Road. She notes "Revere Road is as much as part of Quincy's historic street names, such as Hancock and Adams."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1911 postcard is a view of the north shore of East Squantum Street, as it veers left, Dorchester Street in Squantum. The corner at the intersection with the For Sale sign is now home to the Trevor Building. At first operating out of the little sales shack, Nelson was the sales agent for 914 house lots created by subdividing the 100-acre Lillie Titus estate on the north side of Squantum. Few of the lots were over 5,000 square feet and many, if not most, were well under 4,000 square feet. They were sold to people building year-round homes. The larger lots in Squantum, most facing south to Quincy Bay, were from other estates, and were mostly set aside initially for summer homes, although they are now used all year round. Shooting Stops In Korea

By FRANK McCAULEY

Shooting stopped along the Korean battlefront at 8 a.m. Monday (EST), July 27, 1953, bringing to an abrupt halt to 37 months of death and destruction.

While ground fighting was all but nil in the final hours, mounting communist artillery fire took its toll of Allied soldiers up to the last minute.

At 10 a.m. local time, a hush fell over the front.

The last man to die my never be named. Nor, perhaps, will the last hero.

The front, usually aflame at this hour of night, just grew dark.

Men behaved sighs of relief, but with great caution.

As the clock ticked off the seconds, they grew braver.

The last reported barrage – the final one of the Korean War – lifted at 9:43 p.m.

AP Correspondent John Randolph said the cease fire came on the central front amid silence after a smashing artillery duel between Allied and Red guns that began in mid-afternoon and built up to a deafening crescendo shortly after 10 p.m. Randolph said all firing stopped at 9:43 p.m.

A few seconds after 10 p.m. wild yells broke out from American G.I's.

KOREAN TRUCE PURELY MILITARY

Negotiators labored two years to produce the Korean Armistice.

It provides for a complete cessation of hostilities and all acts of armed force in Korean "with the ultimate objective a formal peaceful settlement."

It is, according to the preamble, an agreement "purely military in character."

Generals of the UN Command and the Red armies signed at long last a compromise armistice in the bitter three-year Korean War. It means not peace but a nervous truce.

(Editor's note: A peace treaty was never signed but the armistice has continued in effect for the past 57 years.)

A special thank you to Brian Radell and Katie Markhard who organized the event this year; Will O'Connell and Ginny Barry's hospitality at the Waterclub, as well as all the sponsors and those who donated to John's fund.

Over the past five years, your generosity has enabled us to provide twelve $1,000 scholarships to NQHS seniors, donations to NQHS special needs program, scholarship to graduates of the program, as well as a donation for the batting cages at Adams Field.

John's death still leaves an emptiness in our hearts, but John's life "shines on" through his family and friends.

John, your spirit and love, will live with us forever!

Thank you.

Concerned About Faded Crosswalks

City Hall's explanation as to why faded crosswalks in Quincy have not been repainted – that its paint suppliers have not been unable to provide a needed resin additive given a supply shortage – does not readily hold up upon review. ("Paint Shortage Stymies Summer Crosswalk Project," July 15, 2010).

As The Quincy Sun article did not note any of the City's street paint suppliers, I randomly called a number of pavement marking companies and was advised me that while supplies have been tight, paint with resin is available if one was willing to pay the current market price.

Perhaps the City of Quincy's approved vendors list limits its supply options. At the same time, however, it is only fair to note that materials costs are typically but a small fraction of labor and other costs required for maintenance projects. Accordingly, it would seem only reasonable to suggest that the best course of action would be for the City to purchase enough paint as soon as possible at the current market price so that it can at least repaint the many all but worn away crosswalks in high traffic and pedestrian use venues and then endeavor to source enough paint to complete the rest of the repainting needs as the resin shortage abates.

This work needs to be completed as soon as possible before someone is hit by a car and the City of Quincy might find itself to be at least partially liable for damages. So far, however, not even merely but projected completion dates, let alone a definitive action plan, have been provided by City Hall.

Array Of Artwork To Showcase Arts Affair

By JOE REARDON

Years ago, during one of the first Arts Affairs at Marina Bay, board of directors member Marilyn Reisberg saw one of her paintings fall into the water when it came loose from the post it was being displayed from.

Like the Titanic, Reisberg's artwork sits on the ocean floor somewhere in the Marina water. Reisberg took the plunge of her painting all in stride.

"My painting ended up on the bottom of the ocean and it's still there," she said with a laugh.

Paintings won't be headed to Davey Jones' Locker this time around but the15th Annual Arts Affair at Marina Bay at Corporate Park will have a definite oceanside feel to it come Aug. 7 and 8. More than 250 artists from 15 Art Associations and affiliations will display various mediums including oil and acrylics, watercolor, drawing and pencil, photographs, sculptures and mixed media, where at least two mediums are used in one place. Every artist is allowed two pieces in the show.

Reisberg said the array of artwork represented will keep the most ardent of art junkies intrigued for hours.

"We see everything," said Reisberg. "It's a very well-attended event."

Last year, 275 works were displayed and the event drew 1,000 visitors.

Among the large number of artists from Quincy participating are Marion Fitzsimmons of the Quincy Art Museum, Annette Pagliarani and sculptor Dan Meyers.

The Bill Byer "Best of Show" Award will be presented and prizes in each category also will be given out. The Arts Affairs has grown over the years to include several local associations. The inaugural event had works from Braintree and Weymouth. Works representing Art Associations from Braintree, Brockton COA, Canton, Hull Artists Studio Connection, Hyde Park, Independent South Shore Artists' Circle, Massasoit Community College, Milton Art Museum, Needham, Norwood, Quincy, South Boston, South Shore Art Center, West Roxbury and Weymouth will be on display.

Admission is free and there will be raffles of artwork and demonstration of various techniques put on.

Quincy Summer Singers To Present Free Concert Aug. 6

The Quincy Summer Singers will present a free concert Friday Aug. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center on the campus of Eastern Nazarene College.

All are welcome to attend.

The performance will feature a wide range of musical styles and traditions, including traditional folk songs from Europe, America and Africa; gospel songs; African-American spirituals and a medley from "The Sound of Music."

A free-will offering will be taken to benefit Totally Art, a joint parent/faculty program at Beechwood Knoll School that provides opportunities in music, dance, drama and visual arts for elementary school children in the neighborhood.

Comprised of 65 residents ranging in age from seven to 70, the Quincy Summer Singers features performers from all backgrounds and abilities.

"My idea was to create a group that would be open to anyone and everyone, regardless of their musical experience, so they could all have the chance to make beautiful music together," said Quincy musician Delvyn Case, who formed the choir last summer. "We have Irish Catholics, African-Americans, Asian-Americans, ENC students – you name it."

Case said he wanted the choir to be diverse not only in its membership, but also in its musical repertoire.

"Every town in the Boston area has a community choir, but what sets us apart is the incredibly wide range of music we perform," he said. "A couple of weeks ago we started rehearsing an African piece, and as we sang I was nearly moved to tears by the sight of so many different kinds of people singing together.

"It's just amazing," he continued, "to see how music can erase our differences and provide an opportunity for all to work together."

A music professor who has taught at ENC, Boston College, Northeastern University and the Longy School of Music, Case conducts the annual performance of Handel's Messiah with the Eastern Nazarene College Choral Union. He is also the founder of the city's only fully-professional orchestra, the Quincy Bay Chamber Orchestra, which presents educational and outreach concerts in the city several times a year.

Park Department's 'Meet The Gardeners' Tour Aug. 7

The Park Department's free Environmental Treasure tour next month will take place Saturday, Aug. 7.

Participants should meet in the parking lot of the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams Street at 9 a.m. Entitled "Meet the Gardeners," the tour will begin with Pat Artis, President of the Wollaston Garden Club, leading the group through Freedom Park discussing the Club's work in the 70's to preserve the area.

Next, participants will have the opportunity to view the beautiful flower gardens and the new tree nursery at the Adams National Historic Park with its gardening staff. Finally, Rick Doane, Executive Director of Interfaith Social Services, will describe his efforts to provide fresh produce to food pantry recipients and show the group his urban garden.

The Quincy Medical Center (QMC) Auxiliary recently held its annual luncheon and election of officers recently at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy.

During the luncheon, Auxiliary President Mary Sullivan presented a check for $25,000 to the Hospital. This gift, added to a portion of last year's Auxiliary donation, is being used to purchase new chairs for all the patient rooms on the hospital's medical/surgical floors.

In accepting the donation, John N. Kastanis, FACHE, QMC Interim CEO, thanked the auxilians for their time and work on behalf of Quincy Medical Center, acknowledging the importance of their involvement with the hospital as well as the significance of the gift.

"I am so pleased that Quincy Medical Center has the support of such a wonderful group as the Auxiliary to help us in our fundraising efforts," he said. "Providing something as basic as comfortable chairs for our patients and their visitors may seem simple, but it means the world to those who may be in pain or are worried about a loved one. On behalf our patients, their families and our entire staff, thank you very much for this most generous gesture."

The Auxiliary also presented a $1,000 scholarship to Emily Schiarizzi, of Halifax. Schiarizzi is a graduate of Silver Lakes Regional High School, where she was a member of the National Honors Society and the student council.

Emily served as a junior volunteer at Quincy Medical Center. In the fall, she will attend Quinnipiac University in Connecticut to pursue a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Laurie's Super Grain Salad

I have never been so excited about a recipe for a long time. But one mouthful of my friend Laurie's rice, barley salad enticed me to make it immediately and then to share it with all of you. Laurie found the recipe also from a friend. All of the ingredients are from Trader Joe's. But they can be found at other stores as well.

I recently brought it to a birthday party and also had all of my children and even some of the grandchildren taste it. It was unanimous that this will be a family favorite always. Couscous can also be used.

LAURIE'S GRAIN SALAD

1 bag rice, barley
1 small package of scallions (cut up small)
1 jar roasted red peppers (cut in small slices)
1 bag trail mix (I used Trader Joe's ABC trail mix)
It contains raisins, cranberries and cashews among other things
1 small bag of currents (optional)
2/3-cup extra virgin olive oil
Juice of one lemon
Salt and pepper to taste
1 teaspoon of sugar

Prepare the rice, barley according to directions. Set aside to cool.

Cut the scallions and the roasted peppers and add to the cooled rice blend.

Add the bag of trail mix and the currents. Squeeze the lemon juice over the mixture and then add the olive oil. Add sugar and salt and pepper to taste.

Toss and refrigerate. Serve cold. It lasts for days.

Local Youngsters Keep Alex's Lemonade Stand Alive

and building the wooden stand, splashed with bright colors. Local companies jumped on board and helped the cause almost immediately. Home Depot donated the lumber and Curry Hardware provided the paint, hinges, bolts and screws needed to build the eight-foot high stand. Jordan Woodworking of Braintree cut the lumber after it was measured and marked by the students. Stop & Shop donated the ice, cups and lemonade. Walgreens provided T-shirts and both Aura Hair Salon and the Quincy College bookstore also made donations.

Markarian said the enthusiasm and work the students put in over the four weeks was inspiring. "The attendance this summer has been phenomenal," said Markarian. "They've really enjoyed the experience."

The group set a goal amount of $750 and was confident the community would step up for the cause and help it reach the number. The kids also have a car wash planned for Saturday at Central Middle School from 9-11 a.m, donations of which will go to the Children's Hospital.

"They really wanted a more personal angle for reaching a child directly," Markarian said.

Jenna Arsenault said the lemonade stand project was worth every bit of effort the kids put in. "We all built the stand together and it's been a good way to get to know each other," said 14-year-old North Quincy High-bound freshman. "Before we actually did the lemonade stand we got donations. I think we can reach it ($500)."

Arsenault also said the project was a good way to meet other students entering their freshman year of high school. "Only two people besides me went to my school (Atlantic Middle School)," she said. "I've gotten to know a lot of the kids."

Jordan said the kids became friends very quickly. "This group here, I don't think they spoke to each other for the first three days," she said. "Then they came out of their shells."

Markarian is hoping to continue to use the lemonade and raise funds at school events during the year.

Water Use Deceit Targed By Legislature

The Massachusetts State Senate has voted to increase the penalties for water meter tampering.

Presently, the penalty for anyone found to have tampered with their home or local business' water meter is $100 or not more than 1 year in jail.

The bill that was passed in the Senate July 20 would increase the monetary fine to triple the amount of damages sustained or $1,000 whichever is greater.

"It is time that we update this law for the times," said Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy. "These increased penalties are more consistent with what other utilities can charge for tampering."

The Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy Committee, which Morrissey serves as Senate Chairman of, took testimony from local water company employees who described going into homes where residents had put magnets on meters in an attempt to slow down the registration, cut transponder wires, or removed the meter altogether.

"The rest of the town pays when these people go to such lengths to buck the system," Morrissey said.

The matter will be debated and reviewed by the House of Representatives.

"I will be talking to my colleagues about this important issue in the coming days, and I look forward to the House taking up this bill and putting it before the governor for his signature." Morrissey said.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Residential Fires

All residential fires cannot be prevented, however, most can. That's good news. Puttering around the house today, I began thinking about some recent fires. So often the causes are similar, and fall within those so often hilited within these articles. These recent fires fall within this category.

In most instances, prevention comes down to separating potential ignition sources from combustibles. For instance, I just moved a roll of paper towel holders from a cell phone charger while the same was plugged within a wall socket above the kitchen counter.

Is it probable that the paper would have caught fire, no not really; is it possible, of course. Did it take a monumental effort for me to eliminate that possibility? No, not when small efforts like that become habit and relatively effortless and unconscious acts.

In a recent incident, an older lamp with an incandescent light bulb fell onto a mattress while left unattended and eventually ignited the mattress and the surrounding clutter. The potential ignition source prior to the fire was the lamp placed upon an unstable setting and left unattended, the combustible of course being the mattress. Could this fire have been avoided? I believe so. Would it have been burdensome to foresee the potential hazard of a lamp placed upon an unstable setting and correct the situation? Possibly at first, when conscious thought and preventative action must first be acknowledged and transformed into fire safe behavior and habit over time

Often times an optimistic attitude can counter the need for caution as well. Smoking while using oxygen comes to mind. Is this combination hazardous, extremely; is it a threat to one's welfare, some choose to doubt it! It's what I call an "optimistic wish, that being, it only happens to others, I'm an exception, it won't happen to me.

The chemical properties of an oxygen enriched atmosphere, oxygen saturated hair, clothing or furnishings and a cigarette as an ignition source define a hazard, statistics and the frequency of incidents hilite the consequences and those consequences are real and highly probable. An optimistic wish cannot protect someone from a probable violent outcome and such incidents can happen to anyone.

Take another incident with a propane grill. I can think of 3 agencies including our own that recommend a grill be placed at least 10 feet away from a structure when in use. Why? Isolate potential ignition sources from combustibles! Is a grill, whether it's fired by propane or charcoals a potential ignition source? Yes of course. Is placing a grill 10 feet away from combustibles such as decks and house siding good sound fire prevention practice? We think so! In the event something goes wrong with a grill, a malfunction of sorts, it can happen, the time to move it safely away from a structure isn't during a critical incident.

Begin to develop sound prevention habit and think isolation. Start with a grill. It's an opportune time with warmer weather upon us and grill use on the rise to develop sound prevention technique. Adapt the practice to other conditions within your home, and take some control of your lifestyle.

Thank you for doing so.

Darcy's Pub Pizza Slices Out A Win In Ward 4 Challenge

At the recent 2nd Annual Ward 4 Palmucci Pizza Challenge, Darcy's Pub upset the competition and was voted as having the best pizza pie in all of ward four.

The annual event hosted by Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci matches pizza from various eateries throughout South/West Quincy. Competing for the crown of best pizza this year were pies from Copeland Pizza, Spukies, Railroad Café, D & D's Deli, The Pasta & Pizza Café at the Common Market Food Court, and Darcy's Pub.

The event was attended by pizza connoisseurs of all ages from throughout the city, each with their own criteria for what comprises the best pizza.

After the more than 100 votes were tallied, Darcy's Pub edged out last year's victor Railroad Café to take top honors in the 'Best Overall Pie' category, as well as the 'Best Pepperoni Pie' competition.

"Ward 4 has a long tradition of voting out incumbents, in politics and in pizza. It's all about who works the hardest and Darcy's Pub earned their win this year," Palmucci said.

The challengers will have to wait until next year to take another shot at the top prize and distinction of calling themselves the Best in Ward 4, he added.

WHICH IS WHICH?

If you tear a piece of the tissue (known as a ligament) that connects bones to a joint, you have a sprain. If the ligament was simply overstretched, it is minor. If the ligament is completely torn, it can be debilitating. An injury to connector tissue that connects a muscle or group of muscles to a bone is considered a sprain. Like a sprain, it also may be minor or serious depending on whether it is over-stretched or torn. The treatment for the two is essentially the same. The injured area should be immobilized, elevated, and ice. Anti-inflammation such as ibuprofen are recommended. The podiatrist may want to use a traditional or air cast. In some instances, surgery is necessary.

As a podiatrist, I have been specially trained to diagnose the strains, sprains, fractures, and other problems that can occur to your feet. In addition, I am one of only two podiatrists in this state who has completed the advanced training necessary to offer patients relief from pronation through the use of HyProCure™, a stabilizing procedure that eliminates the discomfort of excessive motion of the foot and ankle. New patients are always welcome at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Please call 781-986-3668 for an appointment. Office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

walking late at night or in deserted areas.

Any resident who thinks he or she is being followed should cross the street, go into a store or call 911 on a cell phone, according to Sullivan who said police welcome calls on suspicious activity.

As for victims, Sullivan said the most important advice involves calling the police immediately. Otherwise, he said the thief or thieves get a head start and even four or five minutes is too much of a head start.

The incidents of the last six weeks appear to involve more than one robber. In four of the six incidents, victims described a white male, 20 to 30 years old and 5'10" tall. However, the elderly victim of Monday's attack described two black men in their early 20's. All the incidents occurred between 11 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

On some occasions, the victims were leaving the T station at Wollaston while Monday's victim was robbed after he got off a bus on Beale Street and walked toward his Greenwood Avenue home. The thieves took his wallet and cell phone.

Purse-snatchers attacked four women in separate incidents. These robberies occurred closer to Wollaston Center.

Four of the six victims were of Asian descent, police said.

Commenting on the rash of robberies, Mayor Thomas Koch said, "Chief (Paul) Keenan and all of our police officers do a great job identifying and allocating resources when issues emerge, and this situation is no different.

"The department's arrest rate for solving crimes is very high, so I am fully confident this will be addressed and addressed swiftly and strongly," the mayor added.

Residents who see suspicious activity are asked to call Quincy Police at 617-479-1212.

For additional safety tips or those with information can also contact Lt. Dan Minton of the Crime Prevention Unit, 617-745-5719.

DOUG GUTRO

"We were organizing a team to work with non-government agencies," such as churches, and non-profit groups who will help residents and business persons learn of the help available through the government and BP funds.

The team will organize local agency leaders, church leaders, and volunteers as they work to guide residents through claims process and spread information on wildlife and shore issues.

Gutro has long been active in supporting environmental issues in Quincy, particularly in the Wollaston area.

Gutro said he didn't visit the beaches or boating areas but worked on the project in EPA offices.

College Governors To Address Concerns Over New President Vote

the Benjamin Franklin Institute in Boston.

The new Quincy College president will have a full plate as Dr. Magee pointed out that he was hired to help in the accreditation process and in the college's efforts for independence.

While the accreditation process has succeeded, progress toward independence has been stalled.

The board's choice for president, Philip Conroy, also expressed optimism that all the issues will be laid to rest. "I'm disappointed that the Board has not been able to move forward because I am still looking forward to working with faculty, staff, and students," he said.

Conroy said he would work with board members and city officials as he leads Quincy College.

Conroy has served at Mt. Ida College since 1997 when he was appointed vice president for Institutional Advancement. In July 2003, he was promoted as part of the college's reorganization and has more than 30 years of teacher and management experience in higher education.

A graduate of Bridgewater State College, Conroy earned his master's degree from Rhode Island College and his doctorate at Nova Southeastern University as well as graduate studies at University of Tampere, Finland, University of Massachusetts, Amherst and Dartmouth and Boston College.

Dr. Conroy held management and teaching positions at University of Massachusetts, Amherst and Bridgewater State College.

Sweeney Brothers Home For Funerals Celebrates 60th Anniversary

Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Inc. at 1 Independence Avenue, Quincy, recently hosted an anniversary party at Anthony's Pier 4 Restaurant in Boston celebrating its 60th anniversary in business.

It was a combined anniversary celebration and appreciation night for their professional staff, extended staff and business associates.

Fourth generation funeral director, Francis M. Sweeney gave the welcoming remarks and introduced Rev. Richard E. Cannon, Pastor of Saint John the Baptist Parish in Quincy who offered the invocation. Later in the evening, Richard T. Sweeney, Jr. provided a brief history of the funeral home and individually recognized and thanked everyone for their many contributions and many years of loyal service.

Established in 1949 by Quincy brothers, Francis M. Sweeney and Richard T. Sweeney, Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Inc. at 1 Independence Avenue, Quincy is celebrating its 60th anniversary of service.

Francis and Richard were second generation funeral directors and sons of the well- known Quincy funeral director, Dennis S. Sweeney. Both men were World War II veterans. Francis, a decorated U.S. Army Sergeant, received the Bronze Star and served in the European Theater. He was also a graduate of the College of Holy Cross in Worcester, Class of 1936. Richard served with the U.S. Coast Guard, as a Seaman First Class, aboard LST 791 in the Pacific Theater.

Located in South Quincy, adjacent to the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, the Sweeney Brothers purchased their home from the Barnicoat Family. Built in the late 1800s, this beautiful estate was noted for its elegant cupola and the distinguished hand carved granite lions that remain an integral part of our front entrance.

Through the years, Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals has earned a reputation of providing dependable, dignified and caring service to families in Quincy and throughout the South Shore. Personalized attention to detail and a commitment to community service have helped to build a solid foundation and heritage of sensitive care and compassionate service.

After the passing of Francis in 1959, Richard continued his efforts and was joined by his son, Richard, Jr. in 1972. A graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Providence College and the New England Institute of Anatomy, Embalming and Funeral Directing, Richard Jr. became a third generation funeral director. Since Richard T. Sweeney's passing in 1989, Richard Jr. and his staff have carried on and are committed to providing a comfortable, dignified environment for families in their time of need.

In 2003, Richard Jr.'s son, Francis M. Sweeney joined the firm after graduating from Archbishop Williams High School and Boston College. Also a graduate of the New England Institute at Mount Ida College in 2004, Francis became the City of Quincy's first fourth generation funeral director. His addition to our staff has been a positive influence because of his caring and sensitive commitment to the families we serve.

The facility itself has seen many changes during these sixty years, including enlarged parking, a large addition to the main home and most recently, the completion of a handicapped access project and renovations to the interior.

Richard and his son Frank are proud to carry on the tradition of an independently owned and family orientated funeral home dedicated to providing personal service. They would like to thank the thousands of families they have assisted through the past sixty years and pledge to continue their proud tradition of funeral service.

JJ Insurance STRATEGIES

by Jim Sullivan

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?

Alcohol is only one of several substances that can impair your ability to drive safely. Before getting behind the wheel of a car, make sure you are unaffected by prescription or over-the-counter medications. If you have questions about auto insurance, please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 to schedule a consultation and comparison of premiums. We have 9 auto insurance carriers, and offer policies for cars, trucks, SUVs, and motorcycles. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street. Smarter Choice! Smarter Move!

Thankfully, the number of individuals who drink and drive is declining, largely due to stepped-up educational efforts and increased vigilance by law enforcement. However, it should be recognized that a growing threat to U.S. drivers is now facing the public. According to the director of the U.S. Office of National Drug Control Policy, on any given Friday or Saturday evening, one out of every six drivers will be under the influence of a licit or illicit drug. Aside from illegal substances such as marijuana, methamphetamine, and cocaine, this means that drivers may be under the influence of a number of over-the-counter and prescription drugs that hamper judgment, reaction time, driving skills, and memory. Everyone must become aware of the dangers of drugged driving.

NOTE: Some individuals drive drugged by knowingly and inappropriately disregarding the side effects (such as drowsiness) of medications they are taking.

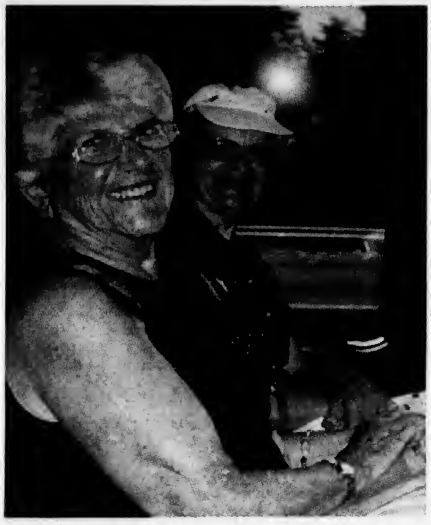
Independence Day Pilgrimage For Daughters Of American Revolution

Includes Visit To United First Parish Church; Lay Wreath Upon Tomb Of John Adams

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

Vivian Hinderscheid (nee Towne) speaks fondly of growing up in Quincy Point. Life was pretty ordinary, she says--she attended Daniel Webster School, then Point Junior High before her parents moved out of Quincy.



The extraordinary thing about Vivian, though, is that she knew from early childhood that her family roots went back to a participant of the American Revolution.

And her ancestor William Towne, who migrated to Massachusetts from England in 1640, was one of the founders of the town of Salem.

Vivian now serves as Treasurer of the Duxbury Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a national organization with 40 chapters in Massachusetts, eight of which are maintaining houses with historical significance.

She and a busload of members from several local chapters recently visited the crypts at the Church of the Presidents and laid a wreath upon the tomb of John Adams.

"It's so important for us to remember the patriots who fought and died for our country. And today the children in school aren't learning about the Revolutionary War, so it's very important that we keep that alive and remember John Adams and John Quincy Adams and all of the patriots of that era."

MASSACHUSETTS D.A.R. State Historian Hazel Rigby and D.A.R. Chapter Treasurer Vivien Hinderscheid board the tour bus on an Independence Day Pilgrimage, which began at the Adams' crypts and went on to historic sites in Boston and Charlestown. The pilgrimage was sponsored by The Daughters of the American Revolution.

Members of the D.A.R. can all trace an ancestor back to one who either supported the revolutionary cause or contributed to the success of The Revolution.

Vivian had two aunts before her who were members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, one of whom, Quincy resident Mrs. Wendell MacKinnon was senior president when the D.A.R established the Children of the American Revolution Society in Quincy.

This aunt was instrumental in sparking Vivian's interest in the CAR. "I was only ten years old when I joined CAR and I got to visit all the historical places we now go to when I was in my teens."

Photos By Miriam Joseph

Vivian recently had her lineage retraced—and because her family tree goes back to that founder of the town of Salem Massachusetts, she is eligible for membership in yet another group--the Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America.

For this group, Vivian says, one must have had an ancestor who was a founder of a town in the New England/New York area. "The lineage has to come down on the male side. You are allowed only one female ancestor or the line is broken...one must be on a male line."

The D.A.R is dedicated to promoting patriotism and the education of children, and to preserving American history. Founded in 1890, this dues-paying, non-profit, non-political organization welcomes any woman 18 years or older, regardless of race, religion, or ethnic background-who can prove lineal descent from a patriot of the American Revolution.

The next stop on the Independence Day Pilgrimage after the United First Parish Church was the Old Granary Burial Ground on Tremont St. in Boston where a wreath was laid at the grave of Quincy-born John Hancock.

Plants were placed at the burial sites of Boston-born patriots Robert Treat Paine and John Adams' cousin Samuel Adams, both signers of The Declaration of Independence representing Massachusetts at the Continental Congress.

Massachusetts State Historian Hazel Rigby and State Regent Anne Urbaczewski each read graveside tributes to these fathers of liberty and stressed the importance of these men's deeds to the freedoms we enjoy today.

Lunch was served at the historic Warren Tavern, the oldest tavern in Massachusetts, erected in Charlestown in 1780, one of the first buildings built after the city was sacked by the British.

This low-ceilinged, wood beamed watering hole, still popular with the locals, was a favorite of Paul Revere and General George Washington. Washington's funeral speech was given there.

The tavern is named for Dr. Joseph Warren, friend to Paul Revere, killed in the third assault of the Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775.

Before returning to Quincy the historic tour concluded with a visit to The Bunker Hill Monument, completed in 1842, and constructed with Quincy granite. Quincy's Granite Railway was built specifically to carry the huge, eight foot blocks of granite on the first leg of the journey to the construction site.

Vivian savors her visits back to Quincy. "I have a sister and brother-in-law living at 1000 Southern Artery, Ethel and Joe Pearson—Joe retired from the mail room at Quincy City Hall.

"My whole family is from Quincy and even though my parents moved to Weymouth they were never out of Quincy, mentally and politically and so forth... they always followed everything in Quincy."

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, July 20, at approximately 4:25 a.m., Officers Ken Wood, Sean Glennon, Jim Goldrick and Sergeant Dan Guarente responded to Quincy Medical Center for a report of a fight between a male and female in front of the emergency room entrance.

LT. DAN MINTON

Upon arrival, officers learned from a witness that the male suspect fled the area and the female victim was in the emergency room being treated for extensive facial injuries.

The witness said that at approximately 4:10 a.m., he was in his car when he came upon the male and female in a verbal argument at the intersection of Whitwell and Granite Street. He stopped his car when he saw that the couple were shoving and wrestling each other in the street. When he asked what was going, the female stated the obvious, that the male was punching and beating her up.

The male suspect said that he was only trying to get her to the hospital so she could be seen for drug addiction. The witness was able to calm them down and convinced the female to go to the hospital. The couple got into their own car and drove up to the hospital, where the argument flared up again.

They then went into the emergency room but less than five minutes later, they came back out and she kicked the male suspect's car. They both argued and shoved each other in the street and were screaming at each other. The male suspect got into his car to drive away but the female jumped onto the driver's door, yelling at him. The suspect accelerated away with the female hanging on briefly, then fell from the car and landed on her face, losing a tooth in the process.

The witness estimated the vehicle's speed between 15-25 MPH when she fell off. The suspect then stopped the car, briefly yelled at her and then drove off.

A second witness, a Q.M.C. security officer, said that he witnessed part of the incident at the emergency room doors. He saw the female attack the male suspect, hitting him very hard in the mouth with a closed fist. When the male suspect demanded that the female be admitted to the hospital for treatment, the Security Officer informed him that she would have to voluntarily get help.

Officer Wood asked the female victim what happened and she angrily said, "Go ask your boys - I already told them." She was told that she spoke with a QMC security officer and not a Quincy Police Officer. The victim said that her boyfriend punched her, dragged her by her hair, and then dragged her along side a moving vehicle. She said that she was also punched prior to being dragged by the suspect's vehicle.

Officer Wood told the victim that a witness stated that it appeared that the female was hanging onto the vehicle of her own free will and another witness stated he saw her punch the male suspect. He also advised her that cameras will also show what occurred.

The victim then changed her story, stating, "Yeah, I grabbed onto the car but it was because I was mad at him for bringing me to the hospital - and I did hit him but it was in self defense." The victim then became very hostile and agitated towards the Officer, which delayed further questioning until she could calm down. Officer Wood had Quincy Police Communications contact Weymouth Police to arrest the 23 year old Weymouth suspect assault charges.

A short time later, Weymouth Police Officers arrested the male suspect and Officer Goldrick transported him to the station for booking. After waiving Miranda rights, the suspect said he wanted to tell his side of the story. He said that the night started with he and the victim hanging out under the Fore River Bridge, which is where she grew angry at him for her addiction to drugs.

The argument went on at various times overnight. At one point, the victim took out an uncapped needle and tried to stab him with it. He said he was able to grab her arm and wrestle the needle away. He stated he then drove her to the hospital where she became enraged again and hit him several times. He said that he drove off and she hung on to his car, but got off. When told of the witnesses account of him speeding off and if this account was correct, the male suspect said, "Yes - but I yelled at her to get help."

Officer Wood noted that the suspect had scratches on both upper arms, his chest and below his left eye. He said that the female did this to him.

As Officer Goldrick brought a camera to QMC to take pictures of the victim's injuries, he spotted her walking down Whitwell Street. He learned that she refused medical treatment and did not want any information on her domestic violence rights. Officer Goldrick transported the victim to her home and was able to capture one picture of injuries due to her lack of cooperation. Based on witness accounts as well as from those involved, Officer Wood determined that the male was the aggressor for most of the confrontations and that the victim also struck the male suspect. The male suspect was charged with "Assault and Battery with a dangerous weapon to wit vehicle and Assault and Battery." The female, a 20 year old Quincy resident, will be charged with "Assault by means of a dangerous weapon to wit needle and Assault and Battery."

Don't Put Off Minor Shingle Repairs

Q: While cleaning out the gutters a few weeks ago, I noticed a couple of shingles on the roof that have been torn slightly, one with a chunk missing from the corner and the other looks loose or pried up. What's the best way to fix them? Should I look for underlying damage? – Earl C., Omaha, Neb.

A: Small tears in asphalt shingles can be patched up pretty quickly using roofing cement. Brush any debris out of the torn or bent area and apply a good amount of cement, then tack down.

A shingle with a torn-off corner can be patched by cutting a similar-sized piece from a spare shingle and applying roofing cement both to the underside and along the tear. However, this won't last very long, so the entire shingle should be replaced within a few months – or you can replace it right away.

Note: Always secure yourself with a rope or harness, and never work without a helper.

To replace shingles, you'll need – in addition to new shingles – a flat pry bar, a hammer, roofing cement, 7/8-inch or 1-inch roofing nails, and a utility knife.

Carefully slide out damaged shingles, beginning with the topmost shingle. Pull out old nails in the repair area, then inspect the exposed building paper for damage. Patch small tears with roofing cement.

Working from the bottom of the repair area upward, install the new shingles. These should overlap and stagger the row of shingles below. Nail in roofing nails at the tab slots.

The uppermost shingle won't initially be nailed in, since you need to slip it underneath existing shingles. Instead, flip it over, apply roofing cement to the underside (the part that will slip underneath the shingles above) and gently slide into place. Give the cement a minute to set, then have your helper gently lift the edges of the shingles above while you nail in roofing nails.

While you're up there, it's a good time to inspect the rest of the roof and make spot repairs, using roofing cement, to common trouble spots like the flashing around the chimney or roof joints.

HOME TIP: The ideal day to conduct roofing repairs is a dry day that's not too hot or too cold. A moderate temperature allows patching material to set properly.

Deciding When To Replace Windows

Are your old wooden frames so swollen that your windows won't open? Are your heating and cooling bills growing every year? Sounds like you need a self-test to determine if it's time to replace your windows.

"All the 'Windows 101' advice I offer our listeners starts out with evaluating the condition and functionality of their current windows," says Tom Kraeutler, host of the national home improvement radio show, The Money Pit.

"Every product in the home has a lifespan. For windows, it's usually advised to start assessing their condition after 10 years 'on the job.' At the 15-year mark, it's time to seriously determine if the windows are still doing their job."

In conjunction with Simonton Windows®, Kraeutler offers the following tips on how to determine if your windows should be replaced:

Determine how many panes of glass are in your windows. Single-paned windows are the least energy efficient, and can cause your energy bills to soar. Replace these inefficient windows with double- or highly-efficient triple-paned ENERGY STAR® qualified windows to enhance energy savings and make a home more comfortable during all seasons.

Look for condensation appearing inside the glass on double- or triple-paned windows. This could indicate seal failure. If this is the case, you might need to replace the glass or the entire window.

Do your windows open and close easily? If your windows are hard to open or close—or they won't stay open or locked—this could be a sign that the windows need replacing.

Does it seem especially noisy in your house? If you live near an airport or busy street, consider replacing your windows with laminated glass or double-paned windows to help reduce noise transmission into your home.

One piece of important advice Kraeutler offers homeowners these days is to watch the calendar. "There are some great incentives on purchasing energy-efficient replacement windows that expire at the end of 2010," says Kraeutler. "For example, when purchasing 12 or more qualified Simonton windows with their Energy Tax Credit (ETC) glass package, you can receive up to $150 toward preparation of your 2010 personal income tax return with H&R Block®.

In his free on-line "Window Replacement Guide" Kraeutler covers everything from assessing your ability to make a window replacement a do-it-yourself project to understanding what to seek out when purchasing new windows. The booklet also includes care and maintenance ideas to maximize the life of replacement windows

Questions To Ask, What To Look For

How To Choose A Pediatrician

By DR. DEMETRA PANOMITROS

One of the most important first decisions that you will make as an expectant parent is choosing a pediatrician. Doing some homework can go a long way in helping you to find a pediatrician you can trust.

When and where to start looking

Compile a list of pediatrician candidates two to three months before your due date. Your obstetrician is a good place to start in providing recommendations. Ask your friends, family, and neighbors with children for recommendations as well. Parents of current patients are valuable resources and will tell you if they are satisfied with their own pediatric practice.

Schedule an interview

Once you have narrowed your choices down to one or two pediatricians, a face-to-face meeting (preferably with both parents present) may be scheduled. Some practices offer "meet the pediatrician" nights. Keep in mind that most pediatricians do not charge for prenatal interviews, but occasionally some do. It is always good to check with your insurance provider.

Use these questions as a starting point:

• Are most or all of the baby's check-ups with the same doctor?

• With which hospital(s) is the pediatrician affiliated?

• How long does it take to get a non-emergency appointment with the doctor or with another provider in the office?

• How is care handled outside of office hours? Will you have access to medical advice 24 hours a day? What is available for weekend coverage?

At the end of the interview you should have a sense of whether the doctor's background, style of communication, philosophies, and office meet your requirements. Expectant parents should feel as if the pediatrician they choose is their partner in ensuring good medical care for their child.

What to look for

Given routine check-ups at 1 to 2 weeks, 1 month, 2 months, 4 months, 6 months, 9 months and 12 months, on average, you and your baby will visit the doctor's office seven times in the first year just for "well visits" alone!

You want those – and all future appointments – to be comfortable, informational, and helpful all at the same time. As part of your evaluation, consider:

• Does the doctor take time to discuss problems, answer questions, and listen to concerns?

• Is the waiting room pleasant and kid-friendly?

• If the doctor works in a collaborative relationship with a nurse practitioner, physician assistant, or another pediatrician, will you have an opportunity to meet these providers?

• Does the practice use an electronic medical record so that information can be easily shared with others who may care for your child?

• Does the doctor's office offer a secure electronic service for e-mail, accessing history and lab tests, etc. for your convenience?

• Is the location of the office convenient for you? Are the hours convenient?

Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates (http://www.harvardvanguard.org) is located at 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center. The phone number is 617-774-0660.

Dr. Demetra Panomitros is a pediatrician at Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates in Quincy.

Nutrition News And Notes

Enjoyable Ways To Eat Right

(NAPSA)—A healthful, nutritious lifestyle may be easier—and more fun—than many people realize. Here are a few hints from the experts at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and elsewhere that can help:

FRESH FRUIT, nonfat milk and other nutritious ingredients make a delicious drink that can be a healthful snack or quick breakfast or lunch.

At Breakfast

• Stir low-fat or fat-free granola into a bowl of low-fat or fat-free yogurt. Top with sliced apples or berries.

• Add strawberries, blueberries or bananas to your waffles, pancakes, cereal, oatmeal or toast.

• Top toasted whole-grain bread with peanut butter and sliced bananas.

• Add vegetables such as bell peppers, broccoli, spinach, mushrooms or tomatoes to your egg or egg white omelet.

• For more wholesome goodness in less time than you may know, enjoy a fruit smoothie from a convenience store on your route.

At Lunch and Dinner

• Ask for more vegetable toppings and less cheese on your pizza.

• Add some cooked, dry beans to your salad. Or, if you have a sweet tooth, add chopped apples, pears or raisins.

• Add broccoli, green beans, corn or peas to a casserole or pasta.

• Add lettuce, tomato, onion and cucumber to sandwiches.

• To get additional nutrition, drink a fruit smoothie instead of soda or punch.

At Snack Time

• Try hummus and whole- wheat pitas.

• Dip bell pepper strips and broccoli into a low-fat or fat-free ranch dip.

• Top a cup of fat-free or low-fat yogurt with sliced fresh fruit.

• Drink a fruit smoothie.

A great smoothie to enjoy at any time of day is easily found in more than 5,000 convenience stores and other locations across the U.S. and Canada. They're not only delicious, but have an extra boost of antioxidant vitamins A, C and E and energy-boosting B vitamins, and minerals—including calcium, zinc and iron. Plus, they're a good source of fiber. f'real smoothies feature nonfat milk and a full serving of all-natural fruit.

They're even fun to get, because you make them up fresh in a special blender. With the push of a single button, the in-store blender automatically elevates your prefilled frozen cup into the blending chamber and, less than 60 seconds later, returns a freshly prepared, custom-blended drink.

In addition to smoothies, f'real also makes premium-quality classic milk shakes and gourmet frozen cappuccinos.

GUM TREATMENT MAY HELP DIABETICS

Recent research has uncovered links between gum disease and other parts of the body that previously may have seemed unlikely. For instance, periodontitis has been associated with an increased risk of heart disease and stroke, which makes a good case for addressing gum inflammation. More recently, researchers have discovered another potential benefit for keeping gum disease at bay. According to research, it has been found that treating periodontal disease in diabetics may lower their insulin levels. Researchers suggest that the connection is based on bacterial infections of the mouth that cause inflammation, which results in chemical changes that reduce the effectiveness of insulin produced in the body. As a consequence, diabetics find it more difficult to control their blood sugar.

We work with our patients so they can achieve and maintain a beautiful smile and healthier gums and teeth. We take the time with our patients to explain their treatment options and inform them of additional preventative care. Most adults with gum disease are unaware that they have it. Periodontal disease is usually a slow, painless, progressive disease. You need not lose your teeth to gum disease. If diagnosed early, the teeth can be saved. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer complete dental health services for the whole family. We want you to look and feel your best. For a happy, healthy, and good-looking smile, we urge you to have a check-up soon. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Previous research has found that 90 percent of patients with periodontal disease were at risk for developing Type 2 diabetes.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

ARE YOU SITTING DOWN?

If you spend a significant portion of your day sitting down, you are likely to be prone to weight gain for reasons that you could scarcely imagine. According to a microbiologist from the University of Missouri, who does not own an office chair, "standing around and puttering recruit(s) specialized muscles designed for postural support that never tire." In addition, these muscles are rich in enzymes, one of which (lipoprotein lipase) removes fat and cholesterol from the blood and turns the fat into energy. In addition, the enzyme converts cholesterol from the bad kind (LDL) to the good kind (HDL). However, when a person sits and muscles are relaxed, activity of this enzyme drops 90%-95%, leaving fat in the bloodstream.

The practice of chiropractic focuses on the relationship between structure (primarily the spine) and function (as coordinated by the nervous system) and how that relationship affects the preservation and restoration of health. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, it is our genuine dedication to quality and personal care that enables us to provide the best possible treatment for our patients. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we are currently accepting new patients. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Older people who move around have half the mortality rate of their sedentary peers, who have higher rates of hypertension, obesity, high blood triglycerides, low HDL cholesterol, and high blood sugar—regardless of their weight.

Annual QRD Softball Clinic Attracts 30 Players

Quincy's Rachel Powers Puts On A Clinic

By JOE REARDON

Saxon Bresnahan already has aspirations of playing softball through high school and during her college years. The 12-year-old Central Middle School eighth grader was a workhorse on the mound this past spring, appearing in 20 of the 22 games on her schedule. Softball is Saxon's game. She's decided that.

Saxon knows for certain that the week she spent on Mitchell/McCoy Field will translate into more success in all aspects of her game come next spring.

"I know my stance is better and I'm learning how to get to the ball faster in the field," said Saxon, her light brown hair showing streaks of blond, courtesy of the beating sun. "I like doing the activities; the throwing, pitching and hitting."

The 30 girls, ranging in grade from third to 12th, were in good hands last week under the watchful eye of director, Rachel Powers, who founded the popular camp in 2001. A 1999 graduate of North Quincy High, Powers was a star on the diamond for the Red Raiders and went on to become a three-time All-American at Wheaton College. After her college career, which included a third-place finish in the NCAA Div. 3 World Series, Powers took over the Lyons' head coaching job. She still holds the distinction of being the only girl in Quincy to play three years of Babe Ruth before making the move to softball.

"We got a little more of a raw, competitive edge," said Powers. "I found it to be an easier transition (to softball)."

Youth softball was in its medieval stage when Powers played, but she has seen it steadily gain momentum over the years. She loves coaching and especially enjoys seeing young talent taking to the sport. "I was hoping to give back to Quincy because we really didn't have anything," Powers said. "Softball has really blown up, which is great. Now you see girls wearing Jennie Finch gloves where before they wore Derek Jeter gloves."

A typical day at the camp starts with a handful of dodgeball games, which helps loosen the girls up for the skills they work on and drills they partake in. Powers is sure to have a quality coaching staff to help teach the youngsters. In past years she has brought in local softball talent including Alicia Dimuzzio, Leanna Lamb and Melissa Traft to help teach the kids.

The girls go through all skills; hitting, running, throwing and sliding, but also work on the subtle areas of the game that only coaches the caliber of Powers are aware of to begin with.

SAXON BRESNAHAN adjusts her grip under the watchful eye of Nicole D'Argento at last week's softball camp.

FORMER NORTH QUINCY HIGH star Rachel Powers works at improving Kim Driscoll's swing.

SUN SPORTS

BOSTON COLLEGE softball standout Nicole D'Argento, Nicole Jorgensen and Wheaton College coach and former North Quincy star Rachel Powers take a breather during last week's camp at Mitchell/McCoy Field. The camp, which was founded by Powers in 2001, gives girls the chance to work on various skills to improve their game. Quincy Sun Photos/Joe Reardon

"What I stress most are the fundamentals, the skills of the game," said Powers. "You have to enjoy what you're doing. We try to touch on every aspect of the game."

This year was no different. Powers brought in Boston College pitching standout Nicole D'Argento, who starred at Ashland High. The Massachusetts Softball Gatorade Player of the Year in 2008 and '09 in high school, D'Argento started 23 of the Eagles' 35 games and finished with a 3.55 ERA as a freshman. She met Powers when they coached an A.A.U. travel team together.

D'Argento has coached at a number of camps and enjoys working with the girls who are just getting their feet wet at a young age. The fact that both D'Argento and Powers were stars when they played in high school is a big selling point when teaching the girls.

"She (Powers) knows how much I like giving back and helping," said D'Argento. "They always ask me, 'Did you do this in camp,' and when I tell them yes, I think they get it. They ask me all sorts of question. I tell them that they're doing the same things I did at their age."

D'Argento admits she does see glimpses of herself in some of the kids and has learned a lot coaching alongside Powers. "They have the energy I have for sure," she said. "I like giving back and coaching is something I'd like to get into. She's really good at explaining things. To be around that, and learning from that, is great."

It's the burning desire to improve that D'Argento sees in many of the youngsters. That, she believes, is something that comes from within and has nothing to do with coaching. "A lot of them have it in them," D'Argento said. "They're young and growing into their bodies. At this age it's hard to tell but you can see they enjoy the game and it's something they want to stick with.

"They're a good group and they want to learn."

27 Residents to Ride In 31st Annual Pan-Mass Challenge

Quincy will be well represented on Aug. 7-8 as 27 residents are riding in the 31st annual Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC), the nation's pioneer charity bike-a-thon that raises more money than any other athletic fund-raising event in the country.

The 27 will be among the 5,000 cyclists from 36 states and eight countries who will ride with the collective goal of raising $31 million to support lifesaving adult and pediatric cancer care and research through the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's Jimmy Fund.

PMC riders range in age from 13-to-86 years and are from all walks of life and the ride is fully supported with 3,000 volunteers who help at the water stops serving food and water and assist with mechanical and medical issues. Everyone involved is unified by the single goal of raising money to fight cancer.

"The PMC is more than just a bike ride," said Billy Starr, PMC founder and executive director. "It is a community of people with one unifying mission: raising money for cancer research."

Since 1980, the PMC has raised $270 million for cancer research and care at Dana-Farber through its Jimmy Fund; the PMC gives 100% of every rider-raised dollar directly to the Jimmy Fund. The PMC generates more than 50% of the Jimmy Fund's annual revenue and is its largest single contributor; PMC funding is considered "seed money;" it allows researchers and doctors to finance innovative experiments and conduct initial trials to qualify for federal funding.

To make a financial contribution to a Quincy rider, visit www.pmc.org and click on their eGift ID number. You may also call (800) WE-CYCLE. Checks can be made payable to PMC, 77 Fourth Ave, Needham, MA 02494.

The 27 Quincy PMC riders are:

QHS Boys Soccer Alumni Game Oct. 23

This fall will mark the 51st year since boys' soccer started at Quincy High School. The program is celebrating this occasion by hosting an Alumni Game on Oct. 23 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

It may seem premature to get the word out, but the purpose of this early notification is that the program, and Head Coach Mark Spendlove, is actively searching for members of the original 1959 team to come back to the city to join the team in celebrating over a half-century of boys' soccer at QHS.

Spendlove would like anyone that played or knows of any players from the 1959 team, or any former players from previous teams, that would be interested in playing to contact him at qhssocceralumni@yahoo.com with their information, the year that they played and contact information.

For those wishing to play, there will be a $12 fee to cover the cost of game shirts and to help boost depleted funds for the boys' team.

Quincy Militia Continue To Roll

By JOE REARDON

Eastern Football League teams can rule out the Quincy Militia taking the soft route on them in the coming weeks. And why would they when their head coach has no intention of letting his squad get lackadaisical in practice.

The Militia heads into the bye week riding a three-game winning streak after overwhelming Hyde Park 24-0, setting up a border showdown at Archbishop Williams on Aug. 7 (3:30 p.m.) against the expansion Braintree Cowboys.

Driscoll will take one look at the Cowboys, who defeated the Granite State 22-0 for their first victory, and see a squad brimming with confidence, anxious to defeat the heavily favored Militia.

"I'm going to take it to them as hard as I can," said Driscoll. "We're not going to take the foot off the pedal. We don't underestimate any opponents. You can't in this league."

Saturday's win over the Seminoles was never in doubt. Playing in sweltering conditions – the temperature on the field reached 102 degrees – on a rock-hard surface, the Militia took a 10-0 lead into halftime and only added to its advantage over the final two quarters.

James Shuler made the very most of his two carries, running for TD scores of 31 and 12 yards. The Militia had its way with the Hyde Park defense, picking up just over 150 yards on the ground with several players sharing touches. Fullbacks Everton DiCastro (five carries, 37 yards), Denniel English (two carries, 33 yards) and Randy Campbell (four carries, 29 yards) had quality runs. Will Moore added three points with a 36-yard field goal.

"We didn't really overwhelm them with the running game," said Driscoll. "It was the type of game where they weren't going anywhere."

The Militia was equally dominant on the defensive side of the ball with several players putting pressure on the Seminoles' offensive line. Defensive end Nick Chase recovered a fumble and raced home from 25 yards out in the third quarter. Defensive end Dan Walsh registered four tackles and a pair of sacks while defensive tackles Dennis Gramz and D.J. Andrews had four tackles and a sack, apiece. Strong safety Terrance Gomes made plays all over the field with five tackles a sack and an interception.

Word of Quincy's success is spreading and Driscoll has been fielding telephone calls from players looking to join the club. "They want to come out and be part of the Militia," Driscoll said. "I don't refuse anyone from our family. If they want to join four games in and practice hard they're welcomed."

10th Annual Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament

The 10th Annual Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament is scheduled for this weekend (July 30-Aug. 1) at Adams Field.

The tournament is played annually in honor of Patrick White who participated in Quincy Youth Baseball programs. White battled Rhabdomyosarcoma, a form of tissue cancer, for over six years; he passed away in the fall of 2005.

All are welcome to attend the tournament. Admission is free and donations are appreciated. Funds raised by the tournament will benefit the Pediatric Solid Tumor Program at Dana Farber/ Children's Hospital Cancer Care Services. Over the past nine years the tournament has raised over $184,000.

Teams from the South Shore, including four teams from Quincy, with players 15-years-old and younger will participate in the tournament. Anyone interested in volunteering to help with concessions or announcing the games can contact Tournament Co-Directors, Paul White at 617-721-0121 or Bob Griffin at 617-472-4811.

Played In Championship Game

Keohane's Softball Had Great Season

The 2010 Keohane's 9-12-Year Old girl's softball team enjoyed a successful regular season finishing the year with a 12-2 record playing in the Dorothy Quincy Softball League. The team then went on to the double-elimination playoff tournament and advanced all the way to the championship game before losing out to Mansfield & Nolan, 4-0, in an exciting and competitive final.

During their playoff run to the championship game, Keohane's had to play six games due to a loss, in their second playoff game, to a very tough DARE team coached by Kathy Petrilli. For Keohane's, the playoffs started with a 5-1 win over Tiffany Williams; followed by a 11-8 loss to DARE; a solid win over the Tobin Club was next, and walk-off victories over Tiffany Williams (9-8) and DARE (9-8) put the team in the final game against Mansfield & Nolan.

Mansfield & Nolan's Danielle Parry pitched a great game, shutting down Keohane's power offense, 4-0.

Keohane's, all season, was led by the phenomenal all-around play of Katryna Veasey, Brenna Murphy, Kailin Bell, Jackie Ryan, Gabby Jerahian, Maeve MacDonald, Alison Radzik, Ryley McCarron, and Alana Adams. Ryan, McCarron, Radzik, MacDonald and Bell have been a part of Keohane's for three years and this group has always set the example as far as sportsmanship, friendship, and leadership; the team recognized that at the end of the season by presenting the five with a gift certificate. Dugan, Murphy, Veasey and Jerahian have all become impact players over the last two years and have lent those same qualities and attributes to the team as well as helping the younger girls on the team throughout the past two seasons.

Caroline Hannon (catcher/outfielder), Brielle O'Malley (pitcher/infielder), Hannah Bell (infielder/catcher), Grace Dugan (infielder/outfielder), Alexa Radzik (outfielder), and Colleen Connor (outfielder) are six youngsters who should provide a solid core for next season.

Keohane's coaches Chris Bell, Rick Radzik and Mark Veasey would like to thank sincerely all the players, parents, siblings and family members who cheered the team on all year and made it fun to be a part of; additionally from the whole Keohane's team a wholehearted thank you to the Keohane's family for sponsoring the team for a third straight year.

(Information sent to The Quincy Sun by the Keohane's coaching staff)

Modern-Day Slavery Museum At United First Parish Aug. 6

The Florida Modern-Day Slavery Museum will be at United First Parish Church, Unitarian Universalist, on Friday, Aug. 6, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, opposite City Hall.

The public is invited to discover connections between past and present, and explore solutions to a human rights crisis in the United States.

The traveling Museum on tour of the Northeast describes the reality of modern-day slavery among farm workers. The museum consists of a cargo truck outfitted as a replica of the trucks involved in a recent slavery operation prosecuted in Florida. Sidewalk exhibits explain the history of forced labor in Florida fields, root causes, solutions, and how people can help.

The museum is free to the public.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the church, said, "The purpose of the exhibit is to raise public awareness about the unfair and abusive treatment that many farm workers suffer in our country. As church and burial site of the two Adams Presidents, we have a long history of advocating for the civil rights of vulnerable and oppressed people.

"In the Amistad case, John Quincy Adams' courageously defended the Mende Africans before the U. S. Supreme Court and won their freedom. He fought in Congress against slavery. As people of faith today, we stand for the worth and dignity of every person. We stand opposed to the exploitation and abusive treatment of farm workers in Florida. We stand on the side of fair wages and working conditions. Farm workers are human beings who deserve fair treatment and respect."

The museum was conceived of by the Coalition of Immokalee Workers, a Florida farmworker organization that has assisted the Department of Justice in the prosecution of six farm slavery operations and the liberation of well over 1,000 workers. Just this month, the Department of Justice announced yet another prosecution for forced labor in Florida's fields.

The exhibits were developed in consultation with workers who have escaped from forced labor operations as well as leading academic authorities on slavery and labor history in Florida. The museum is endorsed by many leading human rights and anti-slavery organizations, including Amnesty International USA and Anti-Slavery International. It has recently been hosted at the U.S. State Department and the National Mall in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Kevin Bales, the Pulitzer-nominated author and president of Free the Slaves, an internationally-respected anti-slavery advocacy organization, adds, "There is real slavery in the fields of Florida. This is not about lousy jobs, but violent control, vicious exploitation, and the potential for serious harm and even death.

"Even more heartbreaking is the fact that there has never been a day in the history of Florida agriculture without some amount of slavery tainting the food grown there. That food leaves the hands of slaves and ends up in the meals we eat with our families."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Through the years we have been asked by many people what are the advantages of pre-arranging and/or pre-financing a funeral.

There are many reasons... But the foremost reason is that it gives one peace of mind. One knows that his family will be relieved of many of the burdens which face a family in their time of sorrow.

When death strikes unexpectedly or even when it is expected, many people are not emotionally ready to make the many decisions that have to be made in a relatively short time. By making pre-arrangements ahead of time, one can relieve the family of some of the grief at a very emotional time; it can relieve many 'traumatic' decisions; it can relieve confusion; it can eliminate differences of opinion concerning cost and ritual.

Please feel free to stop by The Deware Funeral Home or call us at anytime for full details concerning pre-arrangement. We will answer all your questions frankly and honestly. We do not charge a fee for any consultation and, of course, you are not under any obligation.

Mr. Cotter, whose courageous and forthright battle with ALS served as an inspiration to the BC High community, died peacefully July 20 in his Quincy home surrounded by his family.

A native of Dorchester's Savin Hill, he attended Boston College High School from 1951-1955, beginning an association that would define his life and make him a role model and father figure for generations of students.

"Caring, compassionate, generous and devoted to helping others, Jim Cotter was everything we would ever hope a student at BC High would turn out to be," said William Kemeza, president of Boston College High School.

"More than anyone I know, Jim believed that if you could do something for someone you should do it," said BC High Principal Stephen Hughes '73. "Whether it was a student in need of guidance or a college recommendation, or someone in need of a job, financial assistance or a sympathetic ear, Jim was constitutionally unable to sit by and not offer help. That is the way he lived his life."

As head football coach for the BC High Eagles from 1964-2004, Cotter amassed a record of 236 wins, 145 losses and 17 ties that included two undefeated seasons and two Super Bowl victories. Six of his BC High players: Jim Rourke '75, Joe Nash '78, Bob Clasby '79, Steve Trapilo '82, Paul Zukauskas '97, and Tim Bulman '01 went on to play in the NFL. In recognition of his devoted service, his former players raised money to install lights at the football field in BC High's Viola Stadium that bears his name, as well as for an endowed scholarship in his honor. It was, however, through his efforts off the field where he left his greatest mark.

"Jim Cotter's greatest legacy was in what he did to help kids get into the schools that they would not have otherwise gotten into," said his former football standout Leo Smith '78 of Pembroke. "What is most impressive, though, is that he worked as hard or harder for the guys who didn't play football as he did for his players."

Of his remarkable 40-year coaching career, Cotter was proudest of his 1971 squad, which compiled a record of 8-2, but saw all of its starting players attend prestigious colleges or universities. In a 2007 interview, Cotter, whose ability to remember names and recollect events from the past was legendary, recounted with precision the college placement of his players. "The end, Bobby Fitzpatrick, went to Brown; Billy Haggerty the right tackle went to Tufts; Brian Barron the right guard went to Bowdoin; Dan Kenslea the center went to Dartmouth; Nick Arcangeli the left guard went to Boston College; the left tackle Larry Carlson went to Bowdoin; Artie Murphy went to Amherst; Tommy Murphy went to Brown; Steve Fulchino the quarterback went to Bowdoin; Barry Cronin went to Harvard and John Smoot, the fullback, went on to become the captain of Yale."

Cotter saw football as the ultimate teaching opportunity where he could instill in his players values that would prepare them for life. "A lot of former players have told me that what they learned from us meant a lot to their success," said Cotter. "The importance of hard work, or trying to do something you didn't think you could do. Setting goals – realistic goals, and having a plan to achieve those goals, has all played a role in their development as outstanding men."

After graduating from BC High in 1955, Cotter accepted a football scholarship to play at Fordham University. When the school decided to drop football after his freshman year, he transferred to Boston College where he was a tight end and placekicker and had the distinction of kicking the first extra point in Alumni Stadium. Cotter also played outfield and first base for the BC baseball team under Coach Eddie Pellegrini.

He graduated with a degree in business administration and married his childhood sweetheart Ann Grace in 1959. The couple had three children: Grace, Kelly, and Michael, and settled in Weymouth.

Cotter served in the United States Army and then worked briefly as an insurance agent before accepting a job at BC High School as a history teacher and assistant football coach in 1960. He taught until 1972 when he was named a guidance counselor, earning a reputation as one of the most effective college placement experts in the nation. He also served as director of athletics for a decade. He stepped down as guidance counselor in 2000 and served as special assistant to the president, attending alumni and fundraising events throughout the country until the effects of ALS precluded his travel.

In one of his last public appearances at BC High, an event to celebrate the release of a biography of his life titled "A True Men for Others," Cotter asked those gathered to join him in a prayer for a former student who had been severely injured in a car accident.

"Here he was, his body ravaged by ALS, and he asks us to pray for one of his former players," said Dan Shea '84 of Milton. "He was a completely selfless individual who was an inspiration to us all. There will never be another person like him."

Husband of Agnes B. (Donahue) Cotter and the late Ann P. (Grace) Cotter; father of Grace Cotter Regan and her husband Bernie, Kelly Cotter and her husband Tim Kostenbauer of CO, and Michael Cotter and his wife Beth of Wrentham; grandfather of Luke and Bartley Regan, Annie and Matthew Kostenbauer and Casey and Mikayla Cotter; brother of Donald and his wife Peggy Cotter of Foxboro and Frank Cotter of Dorchester.

Interment was in Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dolan Funeral Homes, Dorchester and Milton.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jim Cotter Scholarship Fund at BC High School, 150 Morrissey Blvd, Dorchester, MA 02125 or to support ALS Research and Patient Care at either Compassionate Care ALS ccals.org or The Angel Fun, theangelfund.org or Norwell VNA and Hospice, nvna.org.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't gnash those pearly whites because you might have to delay your plans. This could give the Lucky Lamb a better perspective of what's been done, and what still needs doing.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Scoring financial bull's-eyes is easy for the focused Bovine who knows the ins and outs of the marketplace. But even with your success record, caution is still the watchword.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Watch that tendency to overromanticize a situation that should be given closer scrutiny. Better to be suspicious now and ask for an explanation, or face a sad surprise later.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Bruised self-confidence can make things difficult unless you accept the fact that you have what it takes. Ignore the critics and concentrate on believing in yourself. Good luck.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations on what you've accomplished. But this is no time to curl up for some serious catnapping. Your rivals are probably already working on plans to overtake your lead.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your adventurous side wants to play a more dominant role this week, and you might want to oblige. Try to arrange for some getaway time with that special person.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Taking logical approaches to pesky workplace issues can help resolve even long-standing problems. A shift in policy might catch you by surprise. Be alert to signs of change.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your kindness and compassion are exactly what are needed in dealing with an awkward situation in the early part of the week. Share the weekend fun with family and friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Keeping your focus straight and true is a good way of getting your points across. Save any variations for a later time. The musical arts are important this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Reject advice to cut corners in reaching your goal. Better to take a little more time to do the job as you promised. You'll gain new respect for your honesty and integrity.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't allow a troublesome situation to grow so big that it will be increasingly difficult to deal with. The sooner you speak up, the sooner everyone will be able to benefit.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Confronting someone who is making a lot of mistakes could be the kindest thing you can do both for that person and for anyone who could be adversely affected by the errors.

BORN THIS WEEK: You absolutely glow when you see beautiful things, and everyone around you is warmed by your light.

GOOD TIME, GREAT CAUSE – The 16th annual Food Fest to benefit Father Bill's & Mainspring held July 27 at Marina Bay was a huge success, raising more than $275,000 to help continue the mission of the beloved Father Bill McCarthy to end homelessness. Participating restaurants included The Common Market in Quincy represented by (from left) Val Teixeira (head kitchen manager), Carol Callahan (manager) and Lauren Smith. To Be Removed Safely, Officials Say

Asbestos Slows Demolition At Quincy Fair Mall

Demolition contractors working to tear down the Quincy Fair Mall building discovered additional asbestos in the interior of the building that will slow down the project for two weeks while the material is removed safely, officials said.

The additional asbestos, found in insulation, was not found during original demolition studies of the building, but it is entirely contained within the project site and does not pose a public health threat, officials said.

"Everything is being done by the book," said Public Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele. "There is asbestos in virtually every older building in America, it is contained within the site, and there is a very defined process to make sure it is removed safely. That is exactly what is happening right now."

Meeting Cancelled, College Board Of Governors To Try Again

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Some 20 observers and stunned members of the Quincy Board of Governors gasped Monday when Chairman David Dennis announced there would be no meeting that night due to legal technicalities.

Dennis had called Monday's meeting in an effort to heal divisions among board members over the June 14 election of Philip Conroy as new president of the college.

However, the announcement and subsequent discussion among members appeared only to harden the division among board members.

"It's stonewalling. It's disgraceful," said Board member Mary Jo Brogna.

Conroy was elected by six votes of the board while a second candidate Peter Tsaffaris won five votes.

Members of the opposing faction challenged the legality of the June vote, then called a new meeting in early July which was cancelled due to lack of a quorum.

MONDAY'S MEETING of the Quincy College Board of Governors could not convene due to a ruling by the college's legal adviser. Chairman David Dennis (left) called a new meeting next Tuesday to discuss the election of a new president. At right is Philip Conroy who was chosen by a majority vote of the board on June 14, but that vote is being challenged.

Mayor, Chief, To Host Community Meeting On Wollaston Robberies

Mayor Thomas Koch and Police Chief Paul Keenan will host a community meeting on a recent rash of unarmed robberies apparently targeting MBTA commuters walking home at 7 p.m. on Tuesday at the Wollaston Elementary School.

"Any time there is an incident or incidents like this, our residents have a right to be concerned, and we want to make every effort possible to address those concerns and answer any questions people might have," Koch said, adding that Ward 5 City Councilor Doug Gutro and Ward 3 Councilor Kevin Coughlin spoke to him about hosting a meeting.

Six similar incidents have been reported to police in the last six weeks, all involving an unarmed robber who has made off with purses, wallets and cell phones after confronting people walking from the Wollaston MBTA Station between 11 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

Police have increased patrols in the area, worked in collaboration with the MBTA and taken a series of other measures in response to the incidents, Keenan said.

"We are dedicating our resources where they need to be, and keeping the community updated and fully informed is an important part of our strategy," Keenan said.

A community meeting on the City's two-year project to replace every residential water meter and end estimated charges and fluctuating bills will be held at 7 p.m. on Aug. 19 in the second-floor conference room of City Hall.

The Department of Public Works, the City's consultant's and project's contractors will give a presentation on how the replacement project will work, and the need for the public's cooperation over course of the $7 million upgrade.

"This is a vital step in our ongoing program to improve our water and sewer operations and it's one that is going to require the as-

Local Legislators Disappointed By Failed Casino/Slot Bill

By JOE REARDON

Local legislators expressed their disappointment in Gov. Deval Patrick's decision not to support the gaming bill that would provide between 12,000-15,000 new jobs and bring in approximately $400 million to the Commonwealth annually.

The bill was overwhelming approved by the legislature and endorsed by nearly three-quarters of Massachusetts lawmakers.

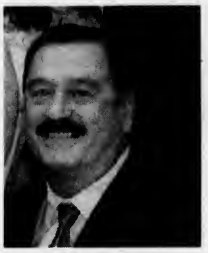
In a statement by Patrick, he said that slot parlors would not bring in the thousands of new jobs that the resort casinos would. He proposed licensing up to three destination resort casinos, but nixed any moves to include slot machines in his original bill.

"I believe the bill before the legislature provides for more licenses than the market will bear, and will therefore not produce the job creation and economic benefits that destination resort casinos would provide," said Governor Patrick. "I have proposed a compromise that provides for one slots facility in addition to destination resorts, so long as that competition for that license is open and transparent. The legislature has so far rejected that compromise."

The amendment, Patrick said, echoes his belief about the best long-term interests of the Commonwealth and the shared interest in job creation.

"I hope the legislature will see their way to enact the amendment," said Gov. Patrick. "However, if the House and Senate choose to send back a bill with two slots facilities and without a truly open and competitive licensing process, I will veto that measure."

Under the bill, the state would receive $85 million from each casino license and another $20-25 million from licenses for racetrack slot parlors, known as racinos. Both racinos would be allowed 1,000 to 1,250 slot machines.



Sen. Michael Morrissey and Representatives Ron Mariano, Steve Tobin and Bruce Ayers all voted in favor of the bill because of the revenue and jobs it would bring to the Commonwealth.

"I believe it offered immediate revenue to cities and towns," Tobin said. "There was essentially no way to compromise (on slots)."

Tobin, though, is confident another version of the bill will come up with better results the next time around.

BRUCE AYERS

The earliest that would be is in January when the House is back in session.

Morrissey said the issues Gov. Patrick has with creating slot machines at tracks could be dealt with by his administration taking over the game commission and sending it back to the House with an amendment.

"We're surrounded by states that have gaming," Morrissey said. "As long as we have the regulations in place, that's important."

Mariano was less optimistic about the gaming coming to Massachusetts. The Assistant House Majority Leader said Gov. Patrick has shown an "elitist attitude" towards the job potential at the track.

"If the lineup stays the same I can't see much changing," said Mariano. "I thought the Governor would meet us halfway and compromise. Somehow he thinks jobs at the track aren't important."

Moving slots to the tracks made sense to Mariano because they'd bring in immediate revenue of $100 million to the state. Hotels are still nearly three years down the line between their construction and that of surrounding infrastructure.

Ayers, who has voted in support of casino gambling before, said, "Many residents that contacted my office, whether they agreed or disagreed with casino gambling, felt that Massachusetts residents should be getting their fair share of the revenue, especially during these tough economic times. Casino gambling will not be a panacea, however, it will help create jobs in Massachusetts and allow us to be competitive with other states, such as Connecticut and Rhode Island," Ayers added.

Outback Called Before License Board Aug. 24

The Quincy License Board has scheduled a meeting Tuesday, Aug. 24 at 4 p.m. regarding the cancellation of all alcohol and common victualer licenses issued to Outback Steakhouse, 223 Parkingway, Quincy.

The steakhouse closed abruptly last week. The property was boarded up and no notice was given to city officials.

License Board Chairman Joseph Shea has written a letter requesting that the Outback/New England-II Limited Partnership, based in Tampa, FL, be present at the Aug. 24th meeting which will be held in the City Hall Council Chambers.

In a statement issued by the company, Outback joint venture partner Eric Braunstein said closing the Quincy location was a "prudent decision as this location is no longer feasible for us."

According to Braunstein, the company is working with employees to re-locate them to one of the other company restaurants in the area.

sistance of the community, and we want everyone fully informed as we move forward," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "When we are finished, our residents can expect fair and accurate billing without the fluctuations caused by estimates and other issues."

The new Automated Meter Reading System will allow for actual measurements without requiring a Water Department employee to be dispatched to every house in Quincy.

The system will use fixed radio transmitters that will send readings directly to a computer network with the server located at the Department of Public Works, officials said. When the project is complete, every water meter in the City will be able to be read in a single day.

The project will be paid for through Federal Stimulus grants and discounted loans, and the debt will be financed by savings earned through previous reforms in the Water and Sewer Department, Koch said. No money from the City's general operating budget will be used for the project, and is not tied to any rate increase for Water and Sewer customers, he said.

Department of Public Works Commissioner Lawrence Prendeville said the new meter system will be a major boost to the department's efforts to ensure that the City's water bills reflect the "water that the community uses."

The project is expected to begin this fall.

Replacing meters will require contractors to enter residential homes, and workers, who will be in pairs, will be wearing identification badges and will travel in clearly marked vehicles. Photos of authorized personnel will be available on the City's website when the project starts, all contractors will undergo background checks, and the Quincy Police will be notified when contractors are in specific neighborhoods.

Residents will receive multiple notices of the replacement schedule for specific neighborhoods as the project moves forward, and the City is planning to hold informational meetings and public service announcements on Quincy Access Television. The work will not begin until the fall.

A total of 21,000 new meters and 24,000 transmitters will be installed in homes and businesses as part of the project, which officials hope will be complete by the end of 2012.

THE ENVIABLE "EVENING EMERALD"

Those without budgets to match their taste for emeralds can still make their friends green with envy by purchasing the next best thing. The green gemstone known as peridot, the birthstone for August, has been popular since ancient times. Romans referred to the gemstone as the "evening emerald" on the basis of its ability to assume the deep-green color of emeralds when observed by lamplight. By any light, this is a beautiful gemstone, with transparency that equals its lovely color. In fact, peridot is one of the few gemstones that comes in only one color, a rich green with slight tinges of gold caused by traces of iron. It is an ideal gemstone to reflect the verdancy of summer.

August's birthstone peridot stands on its own as a stunning focal point for rings, earrings, bracelets, pendants, and pins. And its shimmering green color complements many other gemstones including diamond, sapphire, and pearl. Having trouble making a decision between gemstones, settings, and precious metals? Our experienced, friendly staff will be happy to show you fine jewelry in a wide range of styles, gem types, design, and budget considerations. Koch Expects Decisions On School Building Futures

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Mayor Thomas Koch said Monday that he expects decisions will be made in the next month or two on two school buildings: the site for a new Central Middle School and the future of the former Quincy High School building.

Church leaders and parishioners of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, must first decide whether the city can buy the former St. Ann's School which could then be used for a new Central Middle School.

"I would not take it by eminent domain," Koch said. "The parish has to approve the sale of it. I'll be getting some sort of word from the parish this month. It's a parish decision."

Koch said the pastor, along with his Finance Council must approve the sale and, "The Archdiocese has to give its stamp of approval once the parish makes a recommendation."

For Mayor Koch, the St. Ann's School site offers the city an opportunity to purchase a property unhampered by tenants or relocation expenses. "We don't have to worry about relocation monies. It should be less expensive that way."

TOM KOCH

As an example, relocation payments for properties taken for the Concourse cost million of dollars, including a $750,000 relocation payment to Little Q Hot Pot, the last tenant in the Quincy Fair Mall.

If the St. Ann's School site is chosen, the building must be demolished, according to Mayor Koch. "The (School Building Authority - SBA) would not allow us to a do a rehab. That building is not in good shape."

Once the school site is finalized, plans are already in draft, according to Mayor Koch who said "The architect's been engaged. He has been approved by the SBA. It will be roughly the same size."

The mayor was referring to alternate plans for a site on Hancock Street opposite Veterans Stadium.

Old Quincy High School

As for the former Quincy High School building, the mayor said the vacant building is being studied.

"I have a meeting this week with Gary Cunniff and Jay Duca," said Mayor Koch, referring respectively to the city's Director of Public Buildings and Director of Inspectional Services.

Mayor Koch described the three possible uses for the building or the parcel which will be discussed during the meeting.

1. Keep the building---Determine what it would cost to bring it up to code, considering all the requirements of the American Disabilities Act and technical issues.

2. Demolish the rear portion of the building and determine the cost of bring-

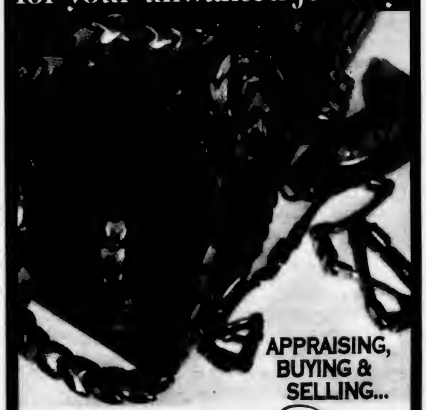
Demolition Crews Clear Half A Building In Wollaston

A demolition crew struck in Wollaston early this week, wiping out portions of the 60-year old structure at 343-353 Newport Ave.



"They're just tearing down half of it," City Building Inspector Bruce Knapp said, adding the owner apparently plans to use the side lot for parking.

Knapp said the owner obtained a permit for the project because there's no street parking and difficult access. "It's been tough for them to rent," he said.

Lin Tian Ming, Needham, owns the property located at the five-way intersection of Newport and Granview Avenue and Beale Streets.

According to Chief Assessor Marion Fantucchio, the building and five-acre property are currently valued at $338,600 and the total property at $564,000. Ming took sole ownership earlier this year.

Morrissey Leaving Big Shoes To Fill

In 1972, then North Quincy High School senior Michael Morrissey was voted "most likely to be politically involved" by his fellow graduates.

Some 38 years later, Morrissey has exceeded that expectation.

By a land slide.

MORRISSEY

First elected to the House of Representatives in 1976 as a bright-eyed 22-year-old, Morrissey is capping off his 34-year legislative career this year. Morrissey, who celebrated his 56th birthday Monday, served 16 years in the House before moving on to the Senate in 1992.

The 25-year attorney decided earlier this year to step down as senator and run for Norfolk County district attorney.

Morrissey's departure from Beacon Hill will leave a considerable void in the city's legislative delegation. His successor –whoever it is – will have mighty big shoes to fill.

"It's a big loss for me personally because I've worked so well with Mike," said Rep. Ron Mariano who has represented the 3rd Norfolk District (precincts in Quincy, Holbrook and Weymouth) for nearly 19 years and is the current assistant majority leader.

MARIANO

"Mike got things done. He's been one of the most effective senators I've met in that building. He's tenacious, fair and he's a hard worker. There isn't an issue that Mike doesn't have some knowledge. He's extremely bright and he understands the business.

"I'm going to miss him an awful lot. Whoever replaces him will have big shoes to fill," Mariano adds.

Morrissey deflects "the big shoes" analogy while mentioning he's had some good mentors. One such mentor is the late mayor and state senator Jim McIntyre whom he described as a "student of the law and a student of the legislature."

Morrissey also acknowledges he's had some great colleagues through the years, including Mariano.

"Ronnie's doing a great job in the House leadership. He's gone from the (political) cellar – he was on the outs because of one vote – and he's worked his way back. He's now one of the ranking members of the leadership."

Over the course of his public service career, Morrissey has chaired six major committee including Public Safety, Government Regulations, Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy and Consumer Protection and Professional Licensure. He has sponsored or co-sponsored more than 100 pieces of legislation including bills, amendments and local home-rule petitions. He's worked to strengthen child pornography and exploitation laws, toughen drunk driving and domestic violence laws and authored one of the toughest laws against cocaine trafficking.

He's also been a leading proponent of green energy and was instrumental in helping DOVE – Domestic Violence Ended – acquire its first shelter in Quincy.

In the public service arena, Morrissey has earned a reputation for his relentless hard work on behalf of his constituents on Beacon Hill. He is longest-serving legislator with continuous combined service in either House or the Senate.

He's also a dogged campaigner who lives by the credo "no one will work harder."

In short, he's become one of the most popular – and effective – local politicians ever. He's had only a handful of challengers in the 17 elections he's won.

"To be returned to Beacon Hill by the residents of this city has been an honor," he says. "I appreciate that very much."

Morrissey's public service career began in 1976 when he upset 10-term incumbent Joseph Brett for state representative in the 1st Norfolk District.

"In those days, there were 240 members in the House of Representatives. I was a member of the last 240-member House that was The Big House. Now it's 160 and I want to now put people in The Big House," he says referring to his bid for D.A. and the slang term for prison.

He served 16 years as a representative before he was elected state senator in 1992. Longtime senator Paul Harold gave up his senate seat to run for Congress that year.

Asked what his most notable legislative achievement has been, Morrissey answers the improvements at Wollaston Beach.

"One of the issues I got involved with early on was the condition of Wollaston Beach. Throughout my legislative career I have always worked hard to improve the quality of conditions of the beach as a playground and as an area of passive recreation for the citizens of Quincy.

"One of the first things we did was put in the Joe Brett Beach Station which is located at the end of Elm Avenue (and Quincy Shore Drive). We purchased open space and named the park after (longtime weather meteorologist) Don Kent. We cleaned out some of the median strips and upgraded Caddy Memorial park. We also changed the (traffic) lighting sequences and upgraded the overhead lighting for safer vehicular and pedestrian traffic. New seawalls were also installed.

"It was multiple years of hard work to get the beach in the condition it is now," he adds.

Other achievements include the extension of the Burgin Parkway and developments at Crown Colony and State Street that spurred job growth. There's also open space at Marina Bay and preserving land at Squantum Point Park from future development. He was also instrumental in rebuilding the Squantum Causeway from mitigation from the MWRA and turning Nut Island into a pumping station and a beautiful park.

"As a person who enjoys the water," said Morrissey, an avid sailor, "I've seen the complete turnaround in both the beach, in open space and the quality of water in Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay. Most people don't get a chance to live through some of the things they voted for and on and I have."

What's been the secret to his longevity as a public official?

"I listen to people and I've made myself available to talk to people. I have great constituent services. I think that's been the most important part: to be a good listener. I've always told my staff that if it's important enough for someone to call, then you better take it. My job depends upon your response to them and if you forget that, you should be looking for another job.

"That's been my hallmark. You've never heard anybody ever say to me, 'You didn't get back to me, you didn't call me back.' I call people back and I get back to people."

He also credits capable and confident staffers who have helped him out over the years. "I've had a great staff who have really paid attention to helping people and their problems."

As for his successor, Morrissey says he will not publicly support the two Democratic candidates for his seat – Rep. Steve Tobin and City Councillor John Keenan – before the Sept. 14 primary. "I think they are both good candidates," he says of the Tobin-Keenan match-up.

The primary winner will face Republican Dan Dewey and Independent Laura Innis in the final election Nov. 2.

Morrissey said he was inspired to lace up his shoes and first run for office 34 years ago because his family had always been involved in politics.

"My family always helped people out over the years but they never had a candidate in the family. My family has been here in Quincy for many years and has always been active and involved and instilled in me the importance of giving back to the community."

Now, with his days numbered on Beacon Hill, Morrissey acknowledges he'll miss the legislative process.

"I will miss some of the challenges. I like a good fight. I really love the legislature. I make no bones about it. I enjoy the debate, I enjoy taking people on. Since the day I went to Beacon Hill I've stood up for difficult causes which often had a political price to pay. I stood up to House Speaker Charlie Flaherty on some tax and spend issues and lost a chairmanship."

When he got to the Senate, he thought the political waters were "calm and flat." But he and some of his other colleagues wanted change. He joined a small group of senators who eventually wrestled the presidency from Bill Bulger.

The longtime Democrat has also been known to vote with Republicans "when I think they're right. I speak out when I think I have to and when people's rights are being trampled on. You have to be able to stand up and speak out.

"I'm not someone who goes along to get along. I think having a much better understanding of the rules and how things operate have served me a lot better than most of my colleagues."

Morrissey said he almost ran for Norfolk County district attorney the year Bill Keating (now a candidate for Congress) was elected in 1998. "I had just got to the Senate and I thought that I could do some good things in the Senate. Bill raves about the (D.A.) job as being a good blend of management and policy and education and prosecution."

Now, his kids are older and he's completely focused on a career change.

"The district attorney's offers rare and unique opportunities when you can really help people out. . . As district attorney, I would be able to use the laws that I helped write and use those tools to help enforce those laws."

Morrissey sums up his legislative life this way:

"I've had a good run. I just like to quietly get the job done. And I think I've done that for 34 years."

Atomic 'Super Bomb' Dropped On Japan

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week

An atomic bomb, which loses pent up forces of the universe equivalent to more than 20,000 tons of TNT and represents one of the greatest scientific advances of history, has been dropped on Japan.

President Harry Truman told today of the terrific destructive power packed into the missile which was dropped 16 hours ago on Hiroshima, and important Japanese Army base. His statement, released by the White House, said the bomb, "Added a new and revolutionary increase in destruction on the Japanese homeland."

"This awful bomb is the answer," President Truman's statement said, "to Japan's failure to heed the Potsdam demand that she surrender unconditionally, at once, or face utter destruction."

NAGASAKI VIRTUALLY WIPED OUT BY SECOND ATOMIC BOMB; CITY STRUCK AT MID-DAY RUSH HOUR

Preliminary reports indicated that the second atomic bomb to be dropped on Japan all but obliterated Nagasaki, a major naval base and Japan's 11th largest city, during the noon rush hour.

Crewmembers of the Superfortress, which loosed the terrifying bomb on Nagasaki, watched the earth-shaking explosion and flashed back to General Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the Strategic Air Forces, that the results were "good."

The report indicated that Nagasaki, a city of 262,00 persons, had been blown off the map of Japan.

(Editor's note: After the second atomic bomb was dropped, the Japanese surrendered unconditionally on Aug. 14, 1945.)

State Should Adopt Competitive Boat Tax Policy

Thousands of men and women of the Massachusetts recreational marine trades are struggling statewide to stay afloat in a burdensome tax environment in a down economy. Massachusetts boat tax policy is the gift that keeps sending Massachusetts jobs to Rhode Island, New Hampshire, and more recently Maine with its recent reduction of its sales or use tax rate to 2% for out of state residents that keep their boats in Maine.

Sandwiched between tax free havens to the north and south, fewer and fewer boats are built in, bought in, registered in and docked in Massachusetts, reducing the demand for marine trades' employees statewide. The issue is about jobs, not creating a tax haven for affluent recreationalists. Indeed, fewer than 2% of boats registered in Massachusetts exceeded 40 feet as of 2007.

Massachusetts must adopt its own competitive boat tax policy. Rhode Island's boat sales tax repeal in 1993 increased its marine industry employment by 20% within two years and within five years, gross revenues in the Rhode Island marine industry grew by 52%.

Boasting over 1,500 miles of saltwater coastline and over 2,500 square miles of inland waters, Massachusetts possesses the "infrastructure" to rebuilt what has been lost. All that is needed is the tax policy to allow it.

Everything's Not Fine In Afghanistan

"Everything in Afghanistan is going well." – Hillary Clinton

That was our recent update on our war against the Taliban by our Secretary of State. I wonder if the 32 American soldiers who committed suicide in June might have had a conflicting opinion.

Wasn't Hillary a draft protestor in the Viet Nam era? And her husband a draft avoider?

What makes this "war" so much different?

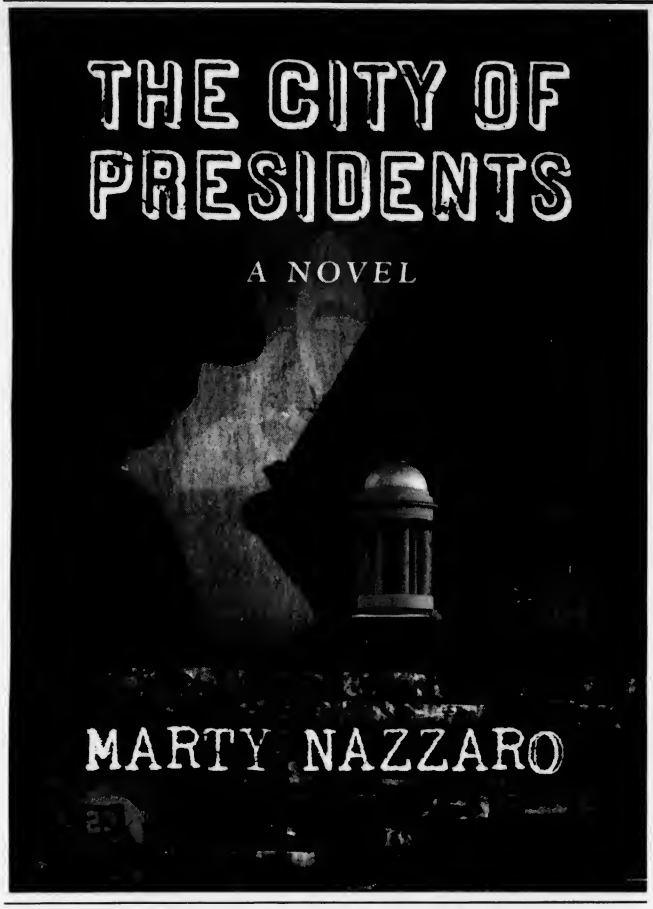
Would her decisions be different if her daughter came home in a wheelchair instead of stepping on a mine laid down in the ground by a soldier without a uniform on?

There is no way we can win this kind of war without causing civilian casualties. It's not fair to our soldiers who have to pick through so many people to find the true enemy.

Don't our generals and politicians remember that is how we won our freedom against the British? We threw the rules out the window.

Please quit telling us lies. Either let the soldiers win this thing or bring them back home so they can have a chance to raise a family and enjoy their lives.

Nine years we've been chasing these jerks around. That's more than the Civil War and World War II combined.



If you really support the troops like you say you would end this nightmare now.

'The City Of Presidents' Penned By Marty Nazzaro

Quincy Author Hopes Novel Becomes Movie

By JOE REARDON

Marty Nazzaro has always been of the belief that a writer should focus on topics he is familiar with and allow the story to flow through its characters.

So it's no coincidence that Nazzaro's first novel "The City Of Presidents" revolves around two brothers growing up on the streets of Quincy.

Nazzaro, a 1983 graduate of Archbishop Williams, grew up in Montclair and is one of five brothers.

"I'm a brother," said Nazzaro. "I have four brothers. I'm going to write about brothers."

The gritty novel centers on Stevie Ciccone and his younger brother Ronnie, the standout high school quarterback. A couple of bad mistakes sends both of them down a road of deceit that strains their loyalties, not only with each other, but their neighborhood friends.

"Stevie makes some bad choices and he pulls Ronnie into it," Nazzaro said.

The novel, which came out in mid April, is set in the mid 1980s and includes several pop culture references that makes the decade come alive.

A fan of local author Dennis Lehane, Nazzaro wanted to weave a tale that was as much about the city as it was Stevie and Ronnie.

"I wanted to write a book about a couple of brothers," said Nazzaro. "They're good kids who make some bad decisions. If you're from a city or big town you'd understand the characters too. It's a total work of fiction. I put friends names in to honor them."

Nazzaro played around with the idea of writing a novel in the beginning and came up with a rough idea for a story. The relationship between the two brothers wound up being the center of the story.

He decided to start up again with the novel after a hiatus and the death of his mother.

"I was just kind of a hobby and when my mom passed away I started again because she wanted me to finish it," said Nazzaro.

He knew his audience, mainly the people he knows from Quincy, wouldn't give the novel much credence unless the dialogue was spot on. Nazzaro tried to capture the speech patterns and the unique way people who grew up on the streets of the city talk. The feedback from his friends has been very positive.

"I tried to bring it (speech) out in the spirit of the city," Nazzaro said.

Nazzaro dedicated the book to his brothers and close friends he grew up with. "This book is for all of my brothers, both blood and otherwise. You know who you are and I love you very much," wrote Nazzaro.

Nazzaro is proud of the finished copy and is confident readers will take to its characters. There is a twist in the story that no one that he knows of has picked up yet.

"Everyone reads a book to catch a twist and no one's caught it yet," Nazzaro said. "It's real and it makes sense."

The cover, which was designed by Kevin Mahoney of Cyclone Design, has a dark, ominous look to it. A brick wall with an image of a Quincy High football game is set in front of the United First Parish Church and the Granite Trust Building, two of the most recognizable structures in the city. In the background there's a silhouette of an individual with gun in hand.

The Irish Brotherhood Knot sits in the middle of the cover, barely recognizable. Nazzaro thought it appropriate, given the subject of the novel. "I like the story of two brothers and brotherhood among the friends," he said.

Nazzaro is currently working on his second novel that is also set in Quincy, involving a pair of detectives on the trail of a serial killer. He is hoping to have a manuscript done sometime this fall.

Nazzaro believes his book would translate well to the big screen and hopes someday it could be made into a movie. He pointed out that the novel Mystic River was a simple story that was told magnificently.

"I think it's an easy movie to make," he said.

Hope Hays 'Read To Ride' Bicycle Winner

Hope Hays, age 8, of Quincy, was a recent winner in Dependable Cleaners' 12th annual Read to Ride summer reading incentive program, announces company President Christa Hagearty.

Hope will be entering the third grade at Merrymount Elementary School in Quincy this fall. She won the new bike by reading Horton Hatches the Egg by Dr. Seuss.

Read to Ride offers children, ages 6-15, a chance to win bike and helmet for every book they complete during the program. The program wrapped up July 19.

"We've received tremendous feedback from parents who have reported that our Read to Ride program influenced their children to read a lot more than they normally would," Hagearty said.

"The success of this program relies heavily on the cooperation of local schools, libraries and parents who promote regular reading habits during the summer months."

Hagearty said the program has encouraged children to read over 57,000 books over the past 11 years.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Easy Vanilla Pudding, And Then Some

I was looking for a recipe from my mother's collection and I found one for that she called an easy vanilla pudding. Most all packaged puddings, I find are just so sweet, but you can't beat homemade.

You can also add cocoa to this to make a creamy chocolate pudding. The vanilla filling is great for cream puffs -an alternative to cream and also for eclairs. Or just in a dessert dish with a dollop of whipped cream. I have also made banana cream pie or chocolate pie with the same recipe.

EASY VANILLA PUDDING

1/3-cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
1/8 teaspoon sat
2-¾ cups milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1-teaspoon vanilla

Mix together the sugar, corn starch and salt. Gradually add the milk stirring until mixture is smooth. Cook on medium heat until mixture comes to a boil and then boil for another minute.

Remove from heat and add the butter or margarine and the vanilla.

Pour into dessert dishes and chill. Serve with whipped cream.

For the chocolate pudding, add three tablespoons unsweetened cocoa.

Asbestos Slows Quincy Fair Mall Demolition

The building is being torn down to make way for the final phase of the Quincy Center Concourse, an east-west road through Quincy Center that will connect Burgin Parkway to Southern Artery and Route 3A.

The state Department of Environmental Protection and local health officials were notified of the asbestos discovery immediately, and the DEP is now monitoring the clean-up process in accordance with state guidelines, officials said.

The two-week demolition delay is not expected to add any significant time to the completion of the overall project, which is on schedule to be completed next year, including the critical Hancock Street crossing that is at the center of the current work.

Asbestos removal was performed during an earlier portion of the demolition process, and officials said the additional discovery will not add substantially to the federal and state funded project's cost.

Asbestos, a fibrous mineral formed of magnesium silicate, is used for fireproofing, electrical insulation, building materials, brake linings, and chemical filters. The small fibers can cause cancer when lodged in the lungs.

Christopher Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the Mayor was informed immediately of the asbestos discovery and directed that information on the issue be released.

"Even though this a fairly typical occurrence for a project of this scope, Mayor Koch made it clear that he wanted the public kept informed every step of the way," Walker said.

College Governors To Try To Meet Again

Dennis rescheduled this week's meeting for next Tuesday and turned the podium over to the Board's legal advisor Michelle McNulty of Murphy, Lamere and Murphy.

McNulty stated members had been notified within the proper time frame of the meeting date and time, but the agenda was mailed too late.

"The agenda went out last Wednesday. Unfortunately, this agenda didn't go out five business days before today," said McNulty, adding that neither Wednesday nor Monday could be counted.

"You can not suspend your bylaws," said McNulty, later stating, "You are not a duly convened meeting. The board can't take a vote."

Thomas Feenan, a supporter of Tsaffaris, presented an eight-page memo to the governors and all observers. The memo – authored by Brogna, Francis Byrne and Feenan – outlines objections to the election, the current membership of the board, and calls for the resignation of two non-resident governors.

Feenan's packet included a July 19 letter from City Solicitor James Timmins warning board members the city will not cover any legal costs related to the appointment of a new president.

The college is a department of the City of Quincy but its leaders, particularly the current Board of Governors, has sought independence.

All 11 current members of the board attended Monday's meeting including Joanne Condon Walsh, a graduate of Quincy College, Vero Beach, FL, and William Grindley, a Quincy resident vacationing in Florida. Grindley said he can't make next Tuesday's meeting due to eye surgery scheduled in Florida.

Condon Walsh said she has attended nearly every meeting.

In addition to Dennis, Feenan, Walsh, Brogna and Grindley, the board includes the following members: Pedro Viejo Rodriguez, Edward Brown, Francis Byrne, Donald Gratz, and Mark Bertman.

Koch Expects Decisions On School Building Futures

ing the front portion up to code

3. Demolish the whole building and use the property for the high school campus.

If the building is to be used, Mayor Koch believes it would only serve municipal or school administration purposes as there is so little parking available. "All the parking is going to the new high school," he said.

Koch recently met with representatives from StreetWorks, the potential developer of the new Quincy Center.

At this time, he said the StreetWorks proposal is still being worked out with regular meetings with the company.

Honeywell Issues

Other issues on his desk include the Honeywell energy project and the high school track, but neither will have a speedy resolution, according to the mayor.

Currently, the Honeywell maintenance contract is on the front burner and the issues between the city and Honeywell are in mediation.

The maintenance contract would have cost the city over $600,000 but Koch said, "I refused to sign it because the work was not done properly, never mind that I believe we were overcharged."

"We're not paying the $670,000 a year on the maintenance, but we are paying the note on the work that was done," said Koch, referring to the multi-million dollar contract for roofs, boilers, and weather protection for the city's buildings.

The state's inspector general and attorney general are still examining the original contact, according to Koch. "That's part of what's under investigation," he said.

High School Track

Mayor Koch said he is optimistic about work on the high school track currently planned near Quincy High School.

"I expect we'll be doing some preliminary work on the site this fall. I think we've cleared all the environmental hurdles," Koch said. "It's my expectation we'll be under construction by March."

Koch acknowledged that the track project is behind his original projections, but noted the project has been the subject of repeated legal tactics, including a current Superior Court complaint.

"As you know each step of the way, there were objections filed by citizens holding up the process. There may be one court issue left.

"It's my understanding it's out of the environmental process. We could move forward, but at our own peril."

The mayor said he does not expect the final court issue to take too long.

"It's my opinion that when you go through the process at the state level and you're rejected every step of the way, that must carry some weight before the court.

"It's not like it's something brand new. This has been tested through the environmental process which the state has. We've gotten the green light each step of the way."

Driscoll Says He Would Create Community-Based Program To Combat Youth Crime

State Rep. Joseph R. Driscoll (D-Braintree), candidate for Norfolk County District Attorney, announced Tuesday his plan to create a community-based justice program whose sole purpose is to ensure juvenile offenders receive the guidance and support required to avoid future offenses.

Modeled on Community Based Justice meetings Driscoll chaired as an ADA in Middlesex County, the program would be a step towards his plan of equal parts prevention and prosecution. An ADA will lead the coordinated effort between the DA's office, schools and service agencies in regular meetings to review cases and create individualized plans to help youth avoid future offences.

"Using Middlesex County's model and its proven track record, we will see an immediate reduction in these types of offenders," explained Driscoll.

"The result will be not just a lower rate of crime, but a community-based partnership that gives our youth the right choices and chances that they deserve," he added.

Legislation Closing Jessica's Law Loophole 'Crucial To Public Safety,' Morrissey Says

State Senator Michael W. Morrissey of Quincy, a Democratic candidate for Norfolk County district attorney, in a hand-delivered letter pressed Gov. Deval Patrick to immediately sign legislation closing loopholes in Jessica's Law and attach an emergency preamble so that the bill will take effect on his signature.

Typically, bills do not become law until up to 90 days after they are signed by the governor.

"We should not have to wait one more day to expand the scope of Jessica's Law and require sex offenders to register," Morrissey said.

"This bill is crucial to the public safety of the citizens of the Commonwealth, by closing these loopholes and having it take effect immediately, we are further ensuring the safety of our children from sexual predators.

"I hope the Governor recognizes that having this bill become law as soon as it is signed is necessary for the protection of the lives and safety of the people of the Commonwealth," Morrissey added.

According to Morrissey, the Senate passed the legislation "in record time" to close loopholes in Jessica's Law, designed to require sex offenders to register after conviction.

The legislation, which languished in the House since January of 2009 until its passage July 27, was unanimously approved in the Senate on the same day it entered the chamber.

"I'm proud that my Senate colleagues, responded so quickly in passing this important legislation," said Morrissey.

The bill amends the 2-year-old Jessica's Law to make sure no one falls through the cracks and ensures those convicted will be required to register.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

On A Lighter Note

A few weeks ago I wrote how grateful I am to have found the outlets to share the fire prevention message to the public, while conveying the benefits it affords me. Both this column and the Quincy Access TV video presentations on life safety included.

Using these two mediums helps satisfy my own needs beyond the benefits of public education. A fire inspector can implement code, enforce it and gain compliance, while much still remains out of his control.

Will implemented, in place life safety measures be maintained 24/7, 365 days of the year, or will they be disregarded over time?

Attempts at education through this column and public service announcements are efforts at reinforcing the importance of those measures to assure occupant safety. Repetition is used emphasizing certain subjects as a reminder and to reinforce their importance. While I use these efforts to quell my own anxiety recognizing how much is out of my control.

But there is gratitude beyond the satisfied need to prompt and prod readers and viewers on the importance of the subject matter. There is the feedback and connection that ensues when residents approach me in a lighthearted manner, conveying their recognition and their own gratitude, sharing their opinions on the material conveyed and how they are apply it in their daily lives.

For example:

Sitting at a restaurant, a woman looks over and quips, conveying how I've saved her from burning more carrots, where if she now leaves the kitchen while cooking, she leaves with a reminder in her hand like a spoon or spatula, so she won't forget her cooking endeavor.

A mother shares how together, her family developed an evacuation plan for their household in the event they had to leave the home in an emergency, and how they actually had to use it soon afterwards, and how grateful they were that they had the plan in place.

A maître d in a restaurant some distance away, while still intimately familiar with Quincy, recognizes me from both mediums, beginning a friendly conversation while discussing common interests and love for the community.

A six-hour kayak trip lands me on an isolated beach where I'm chatting with a companion. Two fishermen are packing up and walking to their car parked some distance away from this remote location. They pass behind us while one recognizes my voice from the QATV programs while I hear, "Is that you Captain Lyons?"

So here's a note to acknowledge that I appreciate the feedback and the connection that has come as a result this column and the QATV programs. These examples mentioned here are just a few. Exchanges such as these have certainly brought me closer to members of this community while I have welcomed the feedback, the association, the warmth of conversation and the gratitude detected in peoples' comments.

It's all much appreciated!

Presentation On The Life Of John Adams Monday

Michael Lepage will discuss the life of John Adams at his farm at the foot of Penn's Hill (133-141 Franklin St., Quincy) Monday, Aug. 9 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In his entertaining and informative presentation entitled "Where in the World is John Adams," Lepage will discuss the life of Adams and composes the letter that he will forward to his family in Braintree from Philadelphia Aug. 14, 1776.

Lepage will mark the anniversary of the closing of the Stamp Office in Boston; console his worried wife, Abigail, and his ailing son Charles who may have contracted smallpox in the "natural way," consider a design for a medal to commemorate the British Surrender of Boston; and plea to his wife for a "good horse" for his long journey home.

Lepage offers an intimate look at the now-famous correspondence between delegate to the Continental Congress John Adams and his "dearest friend" Abigail. Their letter provides a sometimes heartbreaking, often amusing, and always inspiration record of the events that shaped the life and times of this truly American family and the new American nation they helped to create.

Lepage is an ardent student of history and a devotee of John Adams who portrays Adams and other "founding fathers" for appreciative audiences at Adams National Historical Park and other venues throughout the state.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, July 28 at approximately 10:05 p.m., Officers Bill Lanergan and Matt Tobin were dispatched to Sagamore Street for a report of a past robbery that occurred on Clay Street. The victim informed communications that the person who robbed her was known to her and on Clay Street. As the officers went to the victim, Sgt. James McNeil, Officers Dan Parisi and Dan Francis started over to Clay Street. Officer Lanergan interviewed the victim, who was crying and visibly upset. She stated she had just been robbed by her "friend" and pointed to her neck, which was slightly red and raw.

LT. DAN MINTON

She said that her friend grabbed her by the neck with one hand and used his other hand to rip her purse off her shoulder while they were in the elevator of the Clay Street building. The victim said she walked home to Sagamore Street and then called the police. When questioned further, the victim said that she visited her friend at Clay Street around 9:20 p.m. She stated that they went out to purchase alcohol and as they got into the elevator, her friend physically took her purse

The victim said that her friend does not usually act this way, but he had been acting strange after taking some Klonopin pills earlier in the evening. Officer Lanergan radioed to Sergeant McNeil, informing him that there was probable cause to place the suspect under arrest for unarmed robbery. The victim said that her identification and approximately $80 was in her X&O purse.

Sgt. McNeil knocked on the door and was met by a party who identified himself as the friend/suspect. He invited Sergeant McNeil in and when asked if he knew anything about a missing purse he stated, "Yeah - Jennifer's" and motioned with his hand to a table that had the missing purse. The purse had the victim's identification in it. Sgt. McNeil then placed the suspect in custody. The suspect said that the victim came over earlier in the night to purchase some Klonopin from him, but she never paid for the pills she received. When she left the apartment, he followed her out to the elevator and ripped her purse off of her so he could get his money. The missing $80 was not located.

The victim denied going over to Clay Street to purchase any pills and stated that she was only trying to help the suspect, but instead he robbed her. Officer Francis returned the X&O purse and the identification to the victim. The suspect, a 46 year old Quincy resident, was charged with unarmed robbery. Nice Work!

On Thursday, July 29, at approximately 4:39 a.m., Officers Jim Cassidy and James Parisi were dispatched to 21 Franklin St. for a report of a breaking and entering of a motor vehicle that had just occurred. The caller reported that a white male carrying a hammer, wearing a white hooded sweatshirt, shorts and black sneakers, smashed out the driver's side window of a red pick up truck parked in front of 21 Franklin St.

The caller reported that the suspect leaned into the truck, took something, then fled to the rear of the building. Upon arrival, Officers checked the area and located a male in the rear of 21 Franklin St., matching the description given by the witness. The suspect was rummaging through a TJ MAXX shopping bag. As the officers approached the suspect, they observed a hammer lying on the ground, next to a white hooded sweatshirt and some tissue paper that was strewn about.

Due to the information given by the caller, the hammer on the ground next to the white hooded sweatshirt, the suspect was handcuffed and the witness was brought over to confirm the identity of the suspect. The suspect was walked out onto the illuminated street, where the caller observed him and stated that he was "100 percent" sure that it was the same man who the entered the truck after breaking the window with a hammer. An examination of the truck showed tissue paper that was similar to the tissue paper located in the TJ MAXX bag that the suspect was rummaging through when the Officers first observed him.

The suspect, a 39-year-old homeless person, was transported to the station for booking. Upon search incident to arrest, three pills believed to be Suboxone was located in the suspect's wallet. The suspect was unable to provide a prescription for the pills. He was charged with "Breaking and Entering into a Motor Vehicle with intent to commit a felony, Malicious Damage to a Motor Vehicle, Possession of Burglarious Tools and Possession of Class B Drug." Due to the witness's account and the quick response by the Officers, this suspect was apprehended on his first attempt at breaking into cars with his hammer. Most breaks into cars are due to owners failing to lock their doors, but in this case, leaving something of value in plain view drew the suspect to this particular vehicle, so always remove or hide temptations under the seat or in the trunk. Nice Work!

Bellotti To Serve On Committee On Establishment Of Inmate Fees

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti has asked two of his fellow sheriffs to join him on a special commission established to study the issue of inmate fees in the state's jails and to make recommendations to the Massachusetts Legislature.

Sheriff Bellotti supports the establishment of reasonable inmate fees to ease the financial burden on the state's taxpayers. Sheriff Bellotti has filed legislation in the last three years to establish such fees.

Earlier this year, the Supreme Judicial Court issued a decision stating it was unlawful for sheriffs to assess fees on inmates unless those fees are specifically authorized by the Legislature. Lawmakers are asking the special commission on which Sheriff Bellotti and his two fellow sheriffs are serving to help them address the issue in the most comprehensive and beneficial manner.

In his capacity as president of the Massachusetts Sheriffs' Association, Sheriff Bellotti has asked Hampden County Sheriff Michael Ashe and Bristol County Sheriff Thomas Hodgson to serve with him on the seven-member special commission established by the Legislature.

The commission will be chaired by Massachusetts Public Safety Undersecretary Sandra McCroom and also will include a representative from a prison legal services organization, a correctional system union representative and the chief counsel from the state's largest public defender agency or his designee.

When he first assumed office in 1999, Sheriff Bellotti's policy was to collect a one-time $30 fee from inmates when they entered the jail. There also were $5 co-pays for medical and dental services and a $3 co-pay for medical prescriptions and haircuts. Indigent inmates were not denied services.

Sheriff Bellotti suspended the collection of fees – with the exception of the haircut fee, which already is specifically authorized by the Legislature -- after a Superior Court judge ruled in 2004 that sheriffs had no legal authorization to collect them. Sheriff Hodgson challenged that ruling, ultimately leading to the SJC decision earlier this year.

Over the last three years, Sheriff Bellotti has filed legislation to implement the fees again and to authorize a policy of per diem fees, under which inmates would be required to pay a fee for each day of their incarceration. The amount of the per-diem fees would be determined by individual sheriffs.

"The cost of taking care of inmates with increasing medical needs and with inflation in general has skyrocketed," Sheriff Bellotti said. "I believe it is reasonable to ask criminal offenders to pay their way to the extent that they can. I don't think the taxpayers should bear the full brunt of these skyrocketing costs."

The special commission is slated to begin its work by Sept. 1.

'Persistence Of Grace' Art Exhibit Open

An exhibit of artwork by Boston artist Renato Riccioni is on display in the Coletti Reading Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy through Aug. 31.

The series of sculptures and drawings explores the concept of beauty in a compelling and intriguing contrast of classical forms and industrial materials.

The sculptures juxtapose the rough, industrial nature of concrete and the sensual flow of the beautiful, delicate forms that are created from the concrete, resolving the tension between the two by combining the literal and symbolic concreteness of the object with the classical harmony and elegance of the form. The forms emphasize the attributes of beauty and strength – dignity and elegance – and lend a physical form to the experience of contemplation.

No Cash For Robbers Who Attempt To Steal From City Hall ATM

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Robbers struck a City Hall ATM early Monday morning in a plot worthy of a CSI script but the culprits wound up with no cash and no coins for their trouble.

In addition, they may have left just enough evidence to get caught, according to Police Captain John Dougan.

According to police reports, the thieves cut through the chain link fence that separates City Hall property from Hancock Cemetery in order to avoid using City Hall Plaza. The Plaza is well lit and easily visible from the street by police patrols.

The intruders then, jimmied the door and cracked the glass at the Handicapped Entrance to Old City Hall. Once in the walkway, the robbers covered the glass on the interior doorways with paper to prevent being caught by the lobby camera.

Then, the plot fell apart.

"They attacked our machine," said John Fennessy, Senior EFT Specialist, Quincy Credit Union. Fennessy said that's never happened to any of the bank's machines since they first installed them 15 years ago. He estimated that the City Hall machine is used 1200 to 1400 times a month and said it will be reinstated.

The burglars attempted to crack the Quincy Credit Union ATM machine in the walkway connecting the two buildings, but were foiled by the machine security system which is fully alarmed. They quit before they hit the alarm.

"It's possible they used a drill," Captain Dougan said of the unsuccessful efforts to access the ATM cash.

Captain Dougan said the break was reported Monday at 6 a.m. and "no money was taken," but forensics left at the scene have been "shipped off to the BCI lab."

City Hall Plaza can be a busy area at night, according to Captain Dougan who said the police had previously taken steps to improve security.

"We trimmed the trees there so we see through," Captain Dougan said of efforts to keep the area safe. In addition, the police patrol regularly every night through Quincy Center. Walking patrols, also, check the rear perimeter of the building.

After the break, Mayor Thomas Koch said that walkway is the only area of City Hall that is not wired to prevent intruders.

"I'm sure we'll be addressing that," Koch said Monday. "The two building are alarmed but that little walkway in between is not."

Fennessy said Quincy Credit Union may have to replace the ATM at City Hall.

"There's a lot of damage to this machine," he said, adding the ATM will be serviceable again at some point.

CITY HALL CRIME SCENE – Yellow police tape label this door located in the corridor that connects Old City Hall and New City Hall after a break-in was discovered early Monday morning. The culprits cut the chain link fence at the adjacent cemetery to avoid detection and covered the door windows once inside so the City Hall video cameras could not videotape them as they attempted to steal money from the ATM. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth)

Sliding-Glass Door Won't Glide Freely

Q: I have a sliding-glass door leading to my porch, and it sticks very badly on opening and closing. How can I fix this? – Joyce in West Palm Beach, Fla.

A: Sticking or even hopping out of its track is a common problem for sliding doors, and one that can be prevented with regular cleaning and maintenance.

Get in there right away with a vacuum (small handheld or a small vacuum hose attachment) and suck up all the loose dirt and debris that is cluttering up the metal track running under the door. This is the groove in which the door slides, and if it's dirty or gunky the door won't slide smoothly. Use a toothbrush and a damp cloth to scrub away gunky spots.

Next, inspect both the track and the door rollers. If the track is bent, it can be straightened by placing a thin but sturdy wooden block in the track over the bent area, bracing it with a foot or your hand, and then hammering the area until it's straight. Worn or bent rollers need to be replaced.

If everything looks OK or has been fixed, lubricate the rollers (an all-purpose spray lubricant like WD-40 should be fine) and slide the door open and shut to work the lubricant in.

The door should roll more smoothly now, but if it still doesn't seem right or is jumping out of its track, you can adjust the height of the sliding door so the roller moves more easily. An adjustment or mounting screw should be located where the door is mounted to its frame. Turning the screw counterclockwise will lower the door slightly; turning it clockwise will raise the door (although due to its weight, you will need a helper to carefully lift the door upward, using a pry bar while you turn the screw).

HOME TIP: Sliding-glass doors are quite heavy, so if you need to lift or remove a door for any reason, always have one or more helpers to assist.

10 Simple Ways To Make Homes Safe For Every Generation Who Lives In It

(ARA) - Most of us start life depending on our parents to take care of us. But as they age, chances are the roles will reverse. And, whether you provide additional help in their own homes - or move aging parents into your home - how do you prepare to meet the new needs of aging adults?

Luckily many simple, quick, affordable - and even stylish and savvy - updates can make homes safer and more enjoyable for you, your family and your parents.

De-clutter

Both kids and older adults have reduced reflexes and balance. Spruce up the look of your home - and avoid tripping hazards - by removing clutter and items you no longer use (especially obstacles in walkways).

Safe, spaaahh shower

Showers can be an enjoyable and luxurious part of anyone's day - if they are safe. While you probably don't want to renovate the shower, simple additions of bath safety products can make it safer and more enjoyable. Start by adding rubber grips to the bottom of the shower to avoid slick surfaces. Next, take a seat with a comfortable shower chair and enjoy a shower massage with a multi-function hand held showerhead. Products like the Home Care by Moen shower chair and Hand Held Shower with Innovative Palm Feature are ideal choices at affordable prices to add safety, style and spa enjoyment to the shower.

Save resources, save money

Eco-friendly adjustments not only can make you feel good about preserving natural resources for your family, they can also help lower energy costs (ideal for tight budgets). Simple steps can include replacing standard light bulbs with compact fluorescent bulbs, insulating doors and windows and swapping faucets and showerheads with new water-saving WaterSense-labeled models.

Handy handles

In the course of a day, you grip many objects - from cups and pens, to door knobs and faucet handles. Swapping out door knobs or faucets with knobs for lever-handle models can make these everyday tasks a bit easier - especially for smaller or arthritic hands.

Get a grip

For any age, stairs are a falling hazard in homes - whether it's one step or 20. To increase safety, add hand rails or decorative hand grips in high-traffic doorways where there may be a step, such as the garage or front entry. Home Care by Moen offers attractive-looking 9-inch grips that install easily and blend in with your decor.

Let there be light

Did you also know that by age 60 the average person requires 15 times more lighting than when they were 10 years old? Brighten up the home with additional reading lamps in bedrooms and family rooms, under-cabinet task lighting in the kitchen, motion-sensor lights near entrances and nightlights in hallways.

Safe and secure

Your home is your safe haven ... so make sure it is protected. In the bathroom where slick surfaces can be falling hazards, add functional - yet fashionable - grab bars from Home Care by Moen. And, in case of unforeseen falls or other home accidents, home security systems can give you peace of mind to know that fire-, medical- or emergency-response is available for you and your loved ones at the touch of a button.

Flat flooring

According to the Home Safety Council, falls are the leading cause (66 percent) of all nonfatal home injuries. To help you - or your loved ones - avoid becoming a statistic, remove throw rugs or ensure that they have a non-slip backing to provide more firm footing.

Low-maintenance lawns

With busy lifestyles, it's tough to keep up landscaping. Making a few modifications to the yard can help ease the burden. Replace large grassy areas that require frequent mowing with rock gardens or mulch beds. Additionally, choose drought-resistant perennial plants and shrubs to save time and money on watering - and ensure you don't have to plant new each spring.

Be prepared

Are the washer and dryer in the basement? Are the bedroom and bathroom upstairs? Since stairs can be difficult to navigate for children or aging parents, having all the necessities on one floor is ideal. While it may not be in the budget to move everything to the main floor now, gradually start getting ready by wiring a closet or small room for the laundry - or planning to expand a half bath to a full bath.

With a few minor updates, you can breathe easier knowing your home is safer for your loved ones - both young and old. For more information on safety products from Home Care by Moen, visit www.moen.com/homecare.

Richard FitzGerald Joins Conway Quincy Sales Team

RICHARD FITZGERALD

Richard FitzGerald and his wife Nancy, new agents in Jack Conway, Realtor's Quincy office, understand the values of a family-owned business.

Richard FitzGerald is a former service manager for South Shore Buick in Quincy, a company his father established in 1963, just seven years after Jack Conway opened his first sales center in Hingham Square.

The FitzGeralds will work as a husband and wife team to meet the real estate needs of their buyers and sellers.

"Richard's background in customer service will be a huge asset to us," said Nancy. "I love the team aspect of our job because it provides each of us with some flexibility and makes us more accessible to our customers. I know we'll work very well together."

Conway Executive Dick Cahill said he is "thrilled" to have the FitzGeralds join the Conway-Quincy group.

"I have known and done business with Richard's family for 30 years," said Cahill. "Like our own company, South Shore Buick stood for service and built solid relationships with its customers for more than 45 years. I have no doubt that Nancy and Richard will do the same with the buyers and sellers of Conway Country."

Former longtime Quincy residents, the FitzGeralds live in Milton with their three daughters.

Richard is a Milton softball coach and a graduate of Boston College High School and Merrimack College. Nancy has a bachelor's degree in sociology from Boston College. They are parisioners at St. Elizabeth's Church in Milton.

Trade Your Lawn For A Ground Cover

(NAPSA)-If you're considering what to do about a hard-to-mow patch of your garden, ground cover may have it covered. Most ground covers require less work and fewer chemicals than a lawn-and they never need mowing.

Ground covers do exactly what their name implies: cover the ground with dense plant growth, choking out weeds and lending color and texture to a space. Even hostas and daylilies can be considered ground covers.

SPREADING PERENNIAL ground covers don't come entirely without maintenance, but they require much less care than the time it takes to fertilize and mow your lawn.

Regular turfgrass does a good job if you have a very large, sunny yard. But if you have a smaller area, a spot with shady pockets where turfgrass struggles, a difficult slope where mowing is difficult or another unusual situation, a ground cover can work wonders.

Many ground covers don't like to be walked on, but a few, such as creeping thyme or brass buttons (Leptinella squalida "Platt's Black"), tolerate some foot traffic and look great when planted between pavers and flagstones. Pink Chintz even sports tiny pink flowers in early spring.

If you want color in a partially sunny to sunny area, try the three-part Forever & Ever(r) GroundCover Sedum Carpet Collection. Golden foliage and flowers from Angelina, bronzy-red leaves and red flowers from Red Carpet and rich green foliage and yellow flowers from Kamschaticum sedum will light up the space.

Many sedums, including John Creech, Sedum divergens, Blue Spruce and Ogon, serve as reliable and beautiful ground covers whose stems can be left for months to provide winter interest. Just clip or break off the old dry stems in early spring before new growth starts.

Ornamental grasses, which come in various heights and shapes, work well in sunny spaces.

In partial to full sun, try a silver-veined winter creeper called Wolong Ghost, a type of spreading euonymus that just needs regular water to stay looking fresh.

Vinca minor, a stalwart ground cover for shade, gets a makeover with "Merlot." Instead of the traditional blue flowers, you'll get burgundy flowers in spring. Or seek out "Double Bowles" vinca minor, with a ruffle of extra petals in a lighter shade of violet.

All these tough ground covers are available at home and garden centers.

Start Summer Remodeling Project List With Doors And Trim

(ARA) - Summer is here: It's time to set up the pool, fire up the grill and fill the old bike tires with air. It's also a perfect time to tackle do-it-yourself projects around the house. Updating your interior doors and replacing old exterior trim are two great ways to spruce up your home and increase its value inside and out.

More than a door

Doors offer more than an entry into a room. With their various panel designs and the ability to be painted or stained, interior doors can be an important part of your overall decor. Unlike plain flush doors found in many homes, interior raised- and flat-panel molded doors add character, style and personality to any home.

"Interior doors are often overlooked as a design element," says Bob Merrill, president and CEO for Chicago-based CMI, which makes CraftMaster Interior Doors. "However, today's molded door technology allows us to create doors with many different panel designs."

CraftMaster molded interior doors are engineered to resist swelling, shrinking, cracking and splitting. "Plus, CraftMaster makes green doors that are an eco-friendly product - they are made with sustainable materials, recycled content, low VOC primers and have low formaldehyde emissions," Merrill adds.

The average home usually has around 20 interior doors, including passage and bi-fold (closet) doors. Among the most popular DIY projects is to replace standard, hollow doors with solid core doors to add weight and help keep noises in - or out.

Installing new doors requires a few basic carpentry tools. You can purchase pre-hung doors or, like many homeowners, you can choose to keep the existing frame and simply replace the doors, called slabs. In this case, you should heed a few installation tips:

- Ensure the slab door is squarely in the frame, then lock it in position with a cross brace.
- Use wood shims between the jambs and the studs, as necessary, to ensure a plumb, square and proper fit.
- Keep the frame flush with proper positioning of the cross brace.
- Add trim by cutting, gluing and nailing it in place after the slab door has been installed.

New trim, new look

Walk around your house and inspect the exterior trim on the corners, around your windows and doors, and up near the roofline. Do you see peeling paint, warped boards, or any splitting or cracking? Is there any damage from water or termites? If so, chances are you need more than a simple paint job.

"With the housing market remaining stagnant across much of the country, many homeowners are investing in remodeling projects that increase their home's value and add personal style," explains Merrill. "Replacing old and outdated wood trim boards with new engineered trim, such as MiraTEC trim, can dramatically change the look of your home. It lasts long and provides excellent resistance to moisture, rot, termites and temperature extremes."

Traditional wood trim may look fine when first installed, but it can split and swell, and is prone to knots and defects. Other materials, like polyvinyl chloride (PVC) and fiber cement trim have performance limitations and may pose installation challenges.

Many home builders and contractors choose MiraTEC trim because it is a green product that has a low impact on the environment. It is made from sustainable materials and leftover wood that would simply rot or be sent to landfills if left unused.

Consider installing new interior doors or replacing your exterior trim. Both remodeling projects are a great way to change the look and value of your home. To learn more visit www.craftmasterdoors.com or www.miratectrim.com.

Hiring Contractors for Remodeling

If you have a remodeling project in mind, late summer is a good time to line up your contractors. Construction crews are coming to the end of their busy season and looking for work to keep themselves going over the cooler months, especially the winter.

Before you begin: Take written bids from at least three contractors. Be detailed in your specifications when it comes to the type of wood you want, the model and color of cabinets, the number of coats of a specific paint, etc.

Ask for references of any contractors you interview, of course, and call them. Ask if the project was completed on time and at the promised cost. But don't stop there. While it's still warm and crews are out, drive around your area and make note of the addresses of homes where work is being done, as well as the company name and phone number of any work vehicles in the yard. When the projects are complete, approach the homeowners and ask whether they were satisfied with the work. They might even show you around to see the completed project.

Make sure any contract you write is for a fixed price that includes materials and labor. That way you know the bottom line. If you sign a standard contract, read it carefully. Remember: If it's not in writing, it doesn't exist. Don't agree to any clause that can change the deadline, price or materials on your job.

While it's tempting to save money by acting as your own general contractor, you may be happier in the long run if you hire a residential general contractor with the expertise to order supplies and hire and schedule sub-contractors.

Remember that while the general contractor will be responsible for a lot of things, you can't step completely out of the process. With liability insurance and workers' comp, for example, all crews who step foot on your property need to produce a copy of their certificate before they begin work. When new materials show up, be there when it's being unloaded and look for damaged or missing material. The general contractor also is responsible for paying the sub-contractors, so you need to require a performance bond to be in place for all levels of contractors.

QTC Director, QHS/NQHS Track Coach

Geoff Hennessy Is Still In The Running

By JOE REARDON

Geoff Hennessy has never been one to take credit for the success of the athletes who he's coached over the years, whether they be members of the fabled Quincy Track Club or the cross country and track teams at Quincy/North Quincy.

Hennessy, who has inarguably coached more athletes than any coach in the city's history, likes to stay in the background and oversee the development of the young tracksters he mentors. When parents compliment him on the job he's done coaching their children, he merely shrugs his shoulders and says it's the kid's talent that got him or her to where they are, he merely pointed them in the right direction.

Over the years, Hennessy has become a master in building up kids' self esteem and confidence through competition on the oval and in the weight event pits.

"The mission statement of the club is to provide as many opportunities to as many kids as possible," said Hennessy. "It's been that way since day one."

Hennessy still remembers "day one" vividly. He spent two years helping out the club's founder Frank Kelly and began to see the club start to gain momentum and numbers.

Two years later, in 1976, Hennessy was doing marine research off Nantucket when he got the word that Kelly had passed away. One of Kelly's last requests was that he wanted the track club to live on. Hennessy took the mantle and has been the driving force of the club ever since.

Hennessy was the first cross country and track captain under Lou Tozzi, the legendary North Quincy High coach. Tozzi worked alongside Kelly in founding the QTC, but it was Hennessy, he said, who put his stamp on the club.

"He's built it into the legendary track program that it is," said Tozzi. "He's the man. Quincy Track Club should be greatly indebted to him all these years. And we're not talking about a city with great facilities. We've got nothing.

"He's very knowledgeable. Geoff knows the sport, which requires knowledge in a lot of areas. You just don't teach running. He's track 24/7. He loves it and that's what you want in a coach."

Countless kids have gotten their starts in organized sports through the QTC. To say the numbers are impressive is a gross understatement. Hennessy has coached two Olympians, Karen Cashman Lehmann and Kate O'Neill, 27 NCAA All-Americans, Plymouth State great Joe Dudek and University of Texas standout Brian Donahue. Add the 64 Boston Globe All-Scholastics and one can see where many of the athletes were first introduced to sports.

"I like seeing kids progress through the sport and become successful with it," said Hennessy. "We didn't start the club to produce Olympians or All-Americans, it just happened. The Karen Cashman thing was 90 percent Karen Cashman and 10 percent everyone else. She was very focused."

Lehmann, who captured the bronze medal in the short track 3,000-meter relay in speed skating at the 1994 Olympic Games in Lillehammer, credits Hennessy's enthusiasm in track for her wanting to stay with sports throughout her life.

"I started running track in third grade," said Lehmann. "The program he runs is awesome. It opened my eyes to what you could accomplish. He's so dedicated to the runners in that program. Just knowing that if I tried hard and dedicated myself I could accomplish anything. Geoff was a big part of that."

Lehmann remembers how Hennessy used to push her in training, but would always keep the mood on the track light and filled with plenty of joking and laughing.

Looking back, Hennessy points to Eileen Crehan as the best athlete he's coached with the ability to get as much from her talent on the track as possible. As a youngster she was adept at most sports and was an especially strong runner. But her true talent didn't emerge until she competed in the baseball throw, for a change of pace, at the Jesse Owens Games.

Crehan was an easy winner, firing the ball 216 feet. At that point, Hennessy suggested she might want to give the javelin a try. "She was a very special athlete," said Hennessy. "We went to the Jesse Owens Games at Nickerson Field and she won the baseball throw. I thought, 'where did that come from?'"

Crehan went on to blossom in the event and capped off her senior year in high school by winning the state meet, New England Championships and the high-powered Eastern Seaboard Championship, and being ranked first in the country in her specialty.

Two years later she broke Northeastern University's school record with a colossal heave of 156-2. Sadly, Crehan came down with leukemia and after a lengthy battle with the disease died in 2005 at the age of 40.

"The greatest athlete I ever coached," said Hennessy. "She was it."

One constant with Hennessy is that he never tires of gaining more knowledge of the sport and its ever-changing coaching techniques. He still attends running and track-related clinics and implements new coaching tools into his arsenal.

"It's changing constantly," said Hennessy. "The newest thing is calisthenics before a workout and static stretching after."

Hennessy got to know legendary distance running coach Bill Squires during his time at UMass-Boston. He quickly became friends with the affable Squires and soaked in as much information about coaching as he could from the man who coached running icons Bill Rodgers, Alberto Salazar, Greg Meyer, Randy Thomas and Dick Beardsley, to name a few.

Hennessy enjoyed success coaching at the college level in helping the Beacons to four NCAA Div. 3 Championships, coaching 20 All-Americans along the way.

Hennessy was also a member of the Greater Boston Track Club during its hey-day in the late '70s and early '80s. He was a strong middle-distance runner with a personal best of 1:56 for 800 meters and 1:13 for the 600. Hennessy has also conquered the Boston Marathon 13 times with a personal best of 3:07.

Hennessy would go for runs with club members and oftentimes see Rodgers, Meyer and Thomas doing track workouts at Boston College. He was in awe of the talented cluster of runners and Squires' coaching. Hennessy found it amazing how that so many world-class runners were nurtured in the same club. Rodgers, Salazar and Meyer accounted for a gaudy 13 Boston and New York City Marathon titles.

"How did the Greater Boston Track Club, a group of local guys, become the best track club in the country, maybe in the world," said Hennessy.

He never shied away from bending Squires' ear and soaked up his training ideas like a sponge to water. "He gives it (coaching tips) freely," said Hennessy. "I had him in class. It wasn't unusual for us to go running at lunchtime. Along with (distance ace) Dianne Weeder, we'd run from UMass to Castle Island and back; eight miles every day.

"Squires would always tell a story. And if the run ended before the story ended, he'd pick it up the next day. A brilliant man, very down to earth. He took me under his wing."

Squires, whose name is synonymous with world class distance running, said Hennessy has been instrumental in countless youngsters' lives in getting them introduced to track and cross country. "Each town should have a guy like him," said Squires. "They had to have someone to fuel the fire and Geoff was the man to do it.

"He's done an awful lot of good for kids and their welfare. He's like the pied piper with the kids. He's really stayed with the sport. We'd run all over heck and he'd always have some project going on that he'd tell me about. Geoff's always busy."

The QTC proved to be enormously popular yet again this summer with 340 kids registered. The most number of tracksters was in 1984 when 550 budding track athletes joined the club. From 1974-85, the numbers totaled well over 4,000. Hennessy is especially pleased with this summer's turnout, given that there are more athletic options for kids, including travel baseball and soccer, softball and lacrosse.

The middle and elementary school programs are thriving as well. This past spring the middle school interest exploded with 600 kids taking to the oval. Hennessy credited much of the rise to the enthusiasm of the coaches.

"The people running it (track) at the middle school level are dynamic and they get the kids out," he said.

Hennessy believes both the QTC and the high school programs will undergo another renaissance when the new high school opens in the fall. He would ultimately like hold other meets there including the Special Olympics and Hershey.

The stakes, laying out the long-awaited new track facility, are in the ground and vehicles driving by should see the track bustling with activity by the spring.

"When the new facility is done it'll be a shot in the arm for our program," said Hennessy. "I like the idea of putting on a program and having cars drive by with people saying, 'what's going on there?'"

Lost In Babe Ruth League Eastern MA Semifinals

13-Year-Olds Having An Impressive Summer

By SEAN BRENNAN

Fourteen Quincy 13-year-olds have been playing together since they were nine, and this summer, that team made up the Quincy Babe Ruth League 13-year-old travel team.

And what a collection of talent this team possesses.

Quincy, which according to head coach Rick Beach, whom has guided this group since they were nine years old, began play during the first week of April, and so far this summer his team has racked up an impressive record of 19-4 overall. Among the many highlights is an undefeated run through the 13-year-old District Four playoffs – a result that earned Quincy an automatic berth in the recently completed eight-team Eastern Massachusetts 13-Year-Old Babe Ruth Tournament held at Adams Field.

Quincy didn't win the tournament (the honor went to Plymouth), but the team was impressive nonetheless. They opened with a come-from-behind 9-6 victory over Taunton, followed that with 3-2 victory against Norwood, lost a tough third game, 5-4, to Plymouth before bowing out after losing to Wakefield, 3-2, in the semifinals.

"We played very well throughout the tournament," said Beach on Tuesday. "We fought back in every game after falling behind and unfortunately lost a couple of tough games. But it felt great to earn our spot after capturing the District 4 title. We didn't back into it because as the host team we would have been in anyway."

Quincy opened the Eastern Massachusetts tournament against Taunton. After falling behind through four innings, Beach called on relief pitcher David Suslowicz and he kept Taunton at bay, giving the Quincy offense the opportunity to get it going, and that is what they did.

The team scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to grab a 6-5 lead. Bobby Salvucci had the clutch hit and Quincy went on to win, 9-6.

In a Game Two thriller with Norwood, starting pitcher Aaron Clancy was the star. Clancy threw all seven innings and struck out 14 batters. Despite Clancy's magnificent pitching performance, Quincy, again, had to rally back from a 2-1 deficit. After tying the score at 2-2, Quincy escaped a Norwood scoring threat during the top of the seventh inning, setting up a walk-off victory. In the bottom of the seventh inning, Clancy leadoff with a single and pinch runner Patrick Frasso stole second base. With a runner in scoring position, Salvucci ended the contest with a game winning hit.

SHORTSTOP TYLER BEACH readies himself to make a play during the Eastern MA Babe Ruth tournament at Adams Field last month.

Quincy finished tournament play with a 2-2 record, losing 3-2 to Wakefield in the semifinals.

Entering the third game against Plymouth, all Quincy needed to do to advance to the semifinals was keep their opponent under 11 runs. Salvucci got the starting nod on the hill, and again, Quincy rallied back from 4-0 down to tie the score at 4-4. Plymouth would eventually win 5-4, but Quincy had done enough to advance – having secured the number one seed in their bracket.

Quincy, in the semifinals, got five strong innings from starter Nolan Flynn, but the team could not get the big hit when they needed it most. Wakefield defeated Quincy 3-2 and moved on to the Eastern MA final against Plymouth.

"These kids represented Quincy," added Beach. "We played host and went 2-1 to earn the number one seed in our bracket. Against Wakefield, we just couldn't get the hit we needed, but overall we allowed the least amount of runs (16) and everyone on the team played and did great."

The loss to Wakefield hurt, but this team will have two more chances to advance out of the state finals. All 14 kids will be back to compete for the 14-year-old title in 2011 and the 15-year-old title in 2012. As nine-year-olds, Quincy lost in the state final to Kingston.

"They are all friends and all 14 of them come from great families," Beach said proudly. "They all hang out together and I expect us to be even better next year."

Wollaston Blue Completes Its Most Successful Season

Despite losing to Dedham in the South Shore Senior Babe Ruth playoffs, Wollaston Blue completed its most successful season. At the midpoint of the 2010 season, Wollaston Blue had the best record in its division and qualified to play in the Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament.

At the end of regular season play, Wollaston Blue qualified for the league playoffs and won its first league playoff game in team history.

Wollaston was knocked out of the league playoffs when it lost to Dedham, 8-7, in eight innings in the rubber game of their best-of-three series on July 22. After falling behind 6-1 after two innings, pitching ace Nick Milone entered the game in the third inning and stifled Dedham's offense; meanwhile, the Gould brothers, Ned and Paul, powered a comeback to force extra innings.

Down 7-4 in the top of the seventh inning, Wollaston Blue staged a dramatic comeback. Milone led off the seventh with a bunt single; with one out, Tyler Braun kept the rally going with a single; Pat Gould drove in Milone with a single; Torey Gustin followed with a single to load the bases, and with two outs and down two runs, Ned Gould drove a double down the left field line to score Braun and Paul Gould. Pitchers Milone and Gustin held Dedham scoreless in the bottom of the seventh.

As the eighth inning started, darkness began to set in and the umpires were set to call the game, which would have meant that the game would have had to been resumed the next day (July 23), but, an adjacent field had lights, and after a brief hiatus play resumed. Wollaston Blue did not score in the top of the eighth, but Dedham pushed across a run in the bottom of the frame to win, 8-7.

During the best-of-three series with Dedham, Paul and Ned Gould paced the Wollaston Blue offensive attack, while Milone held Dedham in check on the mound.

Ned Gould finished with five doubles, a home run and single in ten at-bats for a .700 batting average and a 1.500 slugging percentage. In Game One, Ned Gould belted a three-run HR over the left field fence and finished the series with eight RBI.

Paul Gould finished with a double, triple, four singles and a walk in 11 plate appearances for a .600 batting average and .900 slugging percentage. He scored six runs and had four RBI.

Nick Milone limited Dedham to three earned runs in ten innings and earned a victory in Game One; Kevin Jackson earned the save.

Head Coach Bob Griffin praised his team's effort against Dedham noting that his team persevered without pitching ace Eric Kelly who was limited to one inning due to injury. Griffin also noted that Wollaston Blue's season was remarkable in that it had only four returning players from the 2009 team. Griffin praised the veteran leadership of 18-year-olds Kevin McDonagh and Ned Gould, and 17-year-olds Ricky Long and Paul Gould; Wollaston Blue will miss McDonagh and Ned Gould next year, but expects that the retuning players will build on this year's success.

Tournament Started Tuesday; Ends This Weekend

By SEAN BRENNAN

Adams Field should now be considered the place to play if your favorite Babe Ruth team is looking to make waves on the national scene as again this week, the beautiful ball field, a jewel of a diamond, is playing host to a major Babe Ruth League tournament.

The 15-year-old New England Regional Babe Ruth Tournament started at Adams Field on Tuesday – this eight-team, double-elimination tournament pits the best 15-year-old Babe Ruth teams from Eastern and Western Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Maine, Vermont, and a host team from Quincy against one another for a shot to advance to the 15-year-old Babe Ruth World Series starting on August 18 in Monticello, Arkansas.

The New England region is well represented at Adams. The best-of-the-best from all six states have played their way into national title contention. From Massachusetts, three teams have a legitimate chance to advance. The Western MA champion is from Leominster, the Eastern MA champ is from Plymouth, and Quincy, the host team, and biggest underdog, could surprise everyone.

New Hampshire is represented with a team from Manchester; Maine's participant is from Portland, and Vermont's team hails from Essex. To the south of us, Rhode Island's hopes rest on the bats of a team from Cranston while Connecticut will put its World Series dream in a team from Stamford.

"This is going to be another great week of baseball at Adams Field," said Quincy Babe Ruth League, Inc, President Dick Lombardi on Monday. "You are going to see some of the best 15-year-olds from across the region play great baseball. The double-elimination format should make for some exciting games."

The tournament began with opening round games held Tuesday. The first game, played at 5:30 on Aug. 3, saw the state champions from Connecticut play against the state champions from Maine and Game Two, held at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, was a matchup between Rhode Island and Western Massachusetts.

Yesterday (Aug. 4), the 5:30 early game matched Vermont versus New Hampshire and the nightcap was a meeting between host Quincy and Eastern Massachusetts.

Quincy Recreation's Six vs. Six-Soccer Tournament

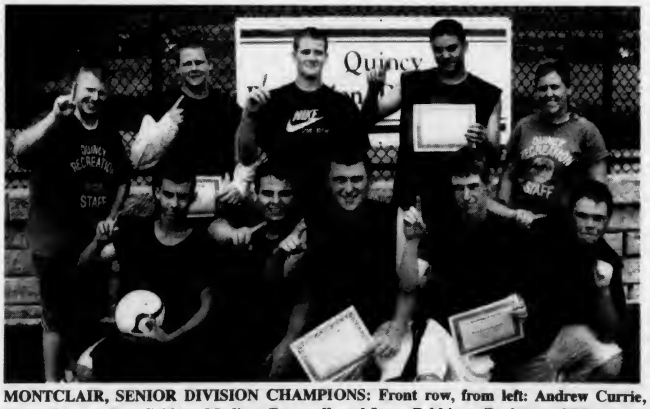
Over 100 youngsters from 13 playgrounds around Quincy came to Veteran's Memorial Stadium to show off their foot skills and compete for the six vs. six soccer championship titles when the Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual Six vs. Six Soccer Tournament last month.

The tournament was divided into a double-elimination bracket with three age divisions: midgets (age 8-10), juniors (age 11-12) and seniors (age 13-16).

In the midget division, Forbes came out on top after beating O'Rourke with an overtime goal in the finals. This game was decided in overtime after O'Rourke scored the game-tying goal with eight seconds left in regulation. In overtime, Forbes scored their sudden death goal on a header.

Both teams played outstanding and showed great hustle.

In the junior division, Montclair/Squantum defeated LaBrecque, but both teams played with a determination to win. Montclair played with lightning speed and had great play in goal and LaBrecque never backed down and played a close game throughout.



In the senior division, Montclair defeated Fenno for the title; each team used flashy foot skills, with Fenno using their speed as its number one weapon, but it was Montclair's strong strategy of teamwork that put them on top of the senior division.

The Quincy Recreation Department announced this week that limited openings are still available for the Little League Baseball Clinic to be held Aug. 9-13.

The baseball clinic has expanded its' age requirement to include nine-year olds and will be held under the direction of Northeastern University baseball standout Tim Daley, who is also the varsity baseball coach at Quincy High School.

Little League Baseball is for boys age 9-12 and the clinic will be conducted at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park. This clinic will emphasize all phases of the game with instruction, position play, game experience and individual attention being offered.

The QRD clinic will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and the cost is $75, which includes a t-shirt for each participant. Registration can be done at www.QuincyRec.com or in person at the QRD Main Office, One Merrymount Parkway. Registration will be conducted on a first-come-first-serve basis.

For additional information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

Red Stockings 15U Team Captures Sharkfest Tourney

The Quincy Red Stockings-Frozen Ropes Under-15 baseball team defeated the host Cape Cod Sharks, 6-3, to win the prestigious Falmouth Sharkfest Baseball Tournament two weeks ago at Fuller Field, home field of the Cape Cod League Falmouth Commodores.

In the championship game final, pitcher Tom McDonald dominated the Sharks over the first five innings, surrendering one unearned run, walking none and striking out six batters while never getting to a three-ball count on any batter. Jason Pekkinen, Dan Cobban and Patrick Verhault led the Red Stockings at the plate during the tourney while Mike Gallotto, Mike Augustine and Mike Mullins provided solid defense.

David Joyce returned to the field for the final and played well.

After completing winter and spring conditioning programs, the Red Stockings played to a winning record against strong AAU and USAA competition throughout the region since early June, paced by McDonald, Cobban and Augustine on the mound while Joyce (.600 OBP), Pekkinen (home run at Madison Park), and Verhault (ten stolen bases) have led the squad at the plate. Gallotto has played a steady third base while contributing at the plate and Mullins has played well in the infield.

Jim Pomeroy, director of Frozen Ropes, Pembroke/Quincy, coaches the Red Stockings. Cobban, Gallotto, Joyce, McDonald, Pekkinen and Verhault competed with the Quincy Youth Baseball team that captured the 2009 Jr. League State Championship in last weekend's Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament at Adams Field.

Annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tourney Aug. 14-15

The 5th Annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament, held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High School in 2002 and had their lives cut tragically short in the past six years, will be held August 14-15 at the Fenno Street Basketball Courts.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many of the top former and current high school players from Quincy. Games are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday, August 14 and Sunday, August 15, and will continue throughout both days.

The O'Connell and Thomson families have set up memorial scholarships in their son's names to benefit North Quincy High School graduates and this annual tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation this summer can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and mail it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy MA 02169 – the donations will be split between the two funds.

For additional information on the lives of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, or to learn more about the tournament, visit www.okie33.com and click on the "basketball tournament" tab.

Beachy-Keen Tips For Summer Sun and Fun

(ARA) - There are few better ways to celebrate the summertime than by spending the day outdoors at the beach or pool. But, as anyone who has gone home covered in sand and fruit punch stains will testify, a day at the beach is not always as carefree as it sounds. Prevent beach burnout by sticking to the following tips:

Sunscreen: Sure, you've heard it a million times, but it bears repeating: apply sunscreen every time you plan to spend the day outdoors. The American Academy of Dermatology recommends using a sunscreen that:

1. Is water resistant.

2. Has an SPF of 30 or higher.

3. Provides broad-spectrum coverage against both UVA and UVB rays.

Apply sunscreen to dry skin 15 to 30 minutes before heading outdoors, using 1 ounce (approximately enough to fill a shot glass) to cover all exposed areas of your body.

Sunburn treatment: In case you missed the sunscreen tips above (or simply happen to burn easily), try to keep in mind the following tips from WebMD for sunburn treatment:

* Try cold compresses with a damp washcloth. It will help soothe the inflammation and make you feel a lot better.

* Drink plenty of water! Dehydration often results from prolonged sun exposure, so do your best to replace what you lost.

* Take a cool, but not cold, bath. Avoid using oils, perfumes or bath salts - the chemicals could potentially irritate your skin.

* Find an aloe-based lotion, and apply it to the sunburned area. Aloe naturally cools and soothes irritated skin.

Towels and clothing: Make sure to bring along an extra towel or two, just in case one of the kids decides to take theirs into the water with them. And remember to bring along an extra T-shirt or pair of shorts should your beach trip continue on into the evening when temperatures dip. Also, consider bringing a pouch for storing jewelry and other accessories to prevent them from being lost. Otherwise, you may find yourself having to use a metal detector to find lost items.

Stain solutions: Sadly, lifeguards aren't on duty for stain emergencies. Be prepared to be your own rescuer and load up on laundry know-how by checking out Clorox's Summer Stain Hotline (1-877-STAIN-411).

Health News

Dealing With Diabetes May No Longer Be As Painful

(NAPSA)-There is comforting news for the approximately 18 million Americans diagnosed with diabetes.

The Situation

Although diabetes is a serious disease, its complications-including heart disease, stroke, blindness, kidney disease, and amputation-can be delayed or even prevented with proper diabetes management, which includes regular blood glucose testing.

Unfortunately, though, for many people, the pain of lancing, which involves piercing the skin to draw a small blood sample for testing, can be a deterrent. In fact, of those people who quit testing their blood glucose each year, nearly one in six cite the pain of lancing as the reason for doing so.1

A Solution

New tools, such as the OneTouch Delica Lancing System from LifeScan, may help patients lessen the pain of testing.

The device features a new, proprietary 33 gauge lancet that is 40 percent thinner than current industry standard 28 gauge lancets. In addition, the system's Advanced Glide Control System precisely guides the lancet in a swift, straight motion that reduces vibration for a smoother lancing experience. It also features seven adjustable depth settings to allow for shallower punctures that may be less painful.

DIABETES CAN be managed more comfortably for many.

In a clinical study of nearly 200 people with diabetes, four out of five reported the new system was virtually painless and the most comfortable lancing device they had ever used.

"It's important for people with diabetes to regularly test their blood glucose, particularly those using insulin, who typically need to test several times a day," said Dr. Marc Steinberg, a diabetes specialist who himself has type 1 diabetes.

"A device like the OneTouch Delica System can significantly reduce the pain of lancing for many people. This can help them feel more comfortable about testing and can make it easier to get valuable information that can improve their day-to-day diabetes self-management."

General Diabetes Management Tips

Changing lifestyle choices and habits to live with diabetes can be a real challenge. But taking care of yourself and your disease can pay off in the long run. According to the International Diabetes Federation, it's important to:

• Eat a balanced diet: Healthy eating is important to help control blood glucose and cholesterol levels, maintain body weight, and reduce high blood pressure.

• Get regular physical exercise: Exercise helps to lower blood glucose levels in people with diabetes and control weight. And, it's not just about going to the gym. Activities like gardening, vacuuming and walking can all count.

• Reduce stress: Although the exact relationship between stress and diabetes is unclear, it seems that stress has a negative impact on blood glucose levels. Relaxing with family and friends helps people with diabetes manage their glucose.

• Stop smoking: By stopping smoking, you can improve your chances of preventing major complications associated with diabetes.

It's important to talk to your healthcare professional to develop a diabetes management regimen that works for you.

VOICE FOR HEALTH
by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor
AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION
Anyone experiencing a headache or sciatica knows the truthfulness of the well-known adage that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Not only is the preventive approach to disease and painful conditions preferable in terms of avoiding discomfort and disability, it also is likely to cost less than treating acute disorders. Thus, it is instructive to know that one of the primary objectives of chiropractic therapy is to restore proper balance and structure to the spinal column and joints. By ensuring the structural integrity of the vertebrae surrounding the spinal cord, a fully functioning nervous system can transmit restorative energy from the spinal cord to all the various organs and tissues of the body, thereby maintaining health.
Do you suffer with headaches or sciatica? Could safe and gentle chiropractic care be beneficial to you? At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, your good health is our main concern. Stop the pain - call 617.472.4220 today to schedule an appointment. We will devote the individual attention you need to be sure you will recover as quickly as possible at the least expense to you. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Chiropractic is a scientifically sound and time-proven natural way to health. It's so effective; it's hard to believe. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.
P.S. As long as the vertebrae are properly aligned and the spine remains flexible, nerve impulses emanating from the brain can travel unimpeded along the spinal cord to govern body processes and feed the body's innate ability to heal itself.

Modern-Day Slavery Museum At United First Parish Friday

The Florida Modern-Day Slavery Museum will be at United First Parish Church, Unitarian Universalist, Friday, Aug. 6, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, opposite City Hall.

The public is invited to discover connections between past and present, and explore solutions to a human rights crisis in the United States.

The traveling Museum on tour of the Northeast describes the reality of modern-day slavery among farm workers. The museum consists of a cargo truck outfitted as a replica of the trucks involved in a recent slavery operation prosecuted in Florida. Sidewalk exhibits explain the history of forced labor in Florida fields, root causes, solutions, and how people can help.

The museum is free to the public.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the church, said, "The purpose of the exhibit is to raise public awareness about the unfair and abusive treatment that many farm workers suffer in our country. As church and burial site of the two Adams Presidents, we have a long history of advocating for the civil rights of vulnerable and oppressed people.

"In the Amistad case, John Quincy Adams' courageously defended the Mende Africans before the U. S. Supreme Court and won their freedom. He fought in Congress against slavery. As people of faith today, we stand for the worth and dignity of every person. We stand opposed to the exploitation and abusive treatment of farm workers in Florida. We stand on the side of fair wages and working conditions. Farm workers are human beings who deserve fair treatment and respect."

The museum was conceived of by the Coalition of Immokalee Workers, a Florida farmworker organization that has assisted the Department of Justice in the prosecution of six farm slavery operations and the liberation of well over 1,000 workers. Just this month, the Department of Justice announced yet another prosecution for forced labor in Florida's fields.

The exhibits were developed in consultation with workers who have escaped from forced labor operations as well as leading academic authorities on slavery and labor history in Florida. The museum is endorsed by many leading human rights and anti-slavery organizations, including Amnesty International USA and Anti-Slavery International.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that of all subjective blessings, that which most directly makes us happy is a cheerful disposition: for this excellent trait is its own immediate reward. Yes, those who bring sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves.

A well-known man noted for his cheerfulness was once asked how he managed to keep himself so happy, and he replied that it was not by allowing himself to anticipate the misfortunes which might come to him. He always expected the best, and when unpleasant things came he made the best of them. He tried to see the ludicrous even in mishaps.

"You will find yourself refreshed by the presence of cheerful people. Why not make earnest effort to confer that pleasure on others? You will find half the battle is gained if you never allow yourself to say anything gloomy." . . .

LEGAL NOTICE LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY IN COUNCIL

Order: 2010-168 June 7, 2010

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council:

Be it ordained by the City Council that Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended as follows:

In Title 2 Administration and Personnel add a new chapter

Chapter 2.74 Fire Department Cost Recovery Program

2.74.010 Established

Due to the increased cost of responding to emergencies caused by the negligent, reckless or malicious actions of owners or operators of motor vehicles, the City hereby allows the Fire Department to adopt a method to mitigate these costs known as the Fire Department Cost Recovery Program.

2.74.020 Definitions

Fire Operation Services: Services performed by the fire Department related to motor vehicle crashes, motor vehicle fires, rescue calls and hazardous material incidents.

Responsible Party: Any individual, firm, corporation, association, partnership, commercial entity, consortium, joint venture, government entity or other legal entity responsible for a public safety or fire emergency.

2.74.030 Scope

Any owner or operator of a motor vehicle to which the Fire Department provides fire operation services (the "responsible party") shall pay the cost of such service. The Fire Chief or designee shall send an invoice to the owner, occupant or other responsible party for the cost incurred in performing fire operation services. The cost of such fire operation services shall be charged and payable according to the schedule set forth in Appendix A to the Code of Ordinances.

2.74.040 Fire Operations Services-Need for-Resulting From Employment

In any case in which a person is liable for the costs pursuant to this Ordinance, and such liability arises as a result of that person's actions within the scope of employment, then any person, firm, corporation or other legal entity employing such person shall also be liable for such costs.

2.74.050 Costs

The Council of the City shall, by order, adopt a schedule of the costs to be included within the expense of services. This schedule may be amended from time to time by order of the Council. This schedule shall be available to the public from the City.

2.74.060 Recovery Procedures

The Fire Chief or designee shall create appropriate procedures to recover the costs of services described in this ordinance as well as any procedures for consideration of appeals for these costs, provided that such procedures will not allow for cost recovery directly from individuals.

2.74.070 Collection of Fees

Any invoices created pursuant to this ordinance must be paid within 30 days of receipt. If not paid within 30 days the City may collect the fee by filing a complaint in the court of competent jurisdiction and if the City prevails in that suit to recover fees the City may also recover fees for attorneys, expert witnesses and other costs incurred by the City in the suit. This does not prevent the City from pursuing any other remedies available to recover the costs described in this ordinance.

2.74.080 Liability Generally

The recovery of the charges imposed under this ordinance does not limit the liability of the responsible party under any other local ordinance or state or federal laws, rules or regulations.

2.74.090 Billing Procedures

The City may make rules or regulations and from time to time may amend, revoke or add rules and regulations, not consistent with this Section, as they may deem necessary or expedient in respect to billing for fees or the collection thereof.

2.74.100 Severability

If any clause, sentence, section, paragraph or part of this ordinance, or application thereof to any person, firm, corporation legal entity, or circumstances, shall be for any reason adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction to be unconstitutional or invalid, such judgment shall not effect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this Ordinance and the application of such provision to other persons, firms, corporations, legal entities, or circumstances by such judgment shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, section, paragraph, or part of this Ordinance thereof directly involved in the case or controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered and to the person, firm, corporation, legal entity, or circumstances then and there involved. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent of this body that the Ordinance would have been adopted had such invalid or unconstitutional provisions not have been included in this Ordinance.

"To be acted upon by the Quincy City Council at a later date."

Joseph P. Shea
City Clerk

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Avoid adding to the tension around you. Even a well-meant reaction against something you perceive as unfair could be misunderstood. Let things calm down, and then talk about it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for romance for unattached Bovines, and a good time for reinforcing the bonds between partners. Children's needs are important during the latter part of the week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A compliment from a surprising source sends you wafting way up into the clouds, where -- sorry to say -- your view of what's going on is obscured. Come on down and face some reality.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Even a family-loving person like you sometimes can feel you're at the end of the line with contentious kinfolk. But things can work out. Remember that it's better to talk than walk.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A job-related move might hold more positive surprises than you'd expected. Go into it with confidence, and look for all the advantages it offers. Then decide what you'll do with what you find.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Driving yourself too hard to get something done on a deadline you set up can backfire. Ease into a more realistic finish date, and add more breaks to your work schedule.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your sense of humor can brighten any dark period, and your laughter can dispel those gray clouds swirling around you. The weekend presents a surprising but welcome change.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful about the words you use, especially in touchy situations. The old Chinese saying that the spoken word is silver, but the unspoken gold could well apply here.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Some facts could emerge to shed light on unresolved past problems. What you learn also might help explain why a once-warm relationship suddenly cooled down.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't let your pride get in the way of checking into what could be a great new opportunity. Get the facts first, and worry about procedure and protocol later.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A health problem in the family might have other relatives assuming that, as before, you'll take over the healthcare duties. Surprise them and insist they share in the caretaking.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A series of changes can be unsettling, but in the long run, it can pay off with new perspectives on what you plan to do. Keep your mind open to the possibilities that might well lie ahead.

BORN THIS WEEK: You might be under a "royal" sign, but you have a wonderful way of embracing everyone as an equal.

Fr. Bill's Food Fest Raises $275,000 For Sheltering Homeless

By JOE REARDON

Father William McCarthy devoted much of his life caring for the homeless in Quincy and was mourned by all walks of life, young and old, when he passed away last summer.

The work the beloved priest put in for years after founding a homeless shelter in Quincy in 1982 has been continued by others. The biggest fundraiser, the Annual Food Fest to benefit Father Bill's & Mainspring was a huge success once again.

Held at the Ocean Club last Tuesday, more than 1,100 people attended to sample food and beverages from 36 restaurants and beverage vendors, primarily from the South Shore.

Though the results are still being tallied, the food fest raised more than $275,000, making it the sixth consecutive year it has garnered $200,000-$300,000. This year's event also bettered the $250,000 that was raised in 2009.

"It's grown over the last few years into a large-scale event," said Mainspring's Director of Development, Lucille Cassis. "Father Bill passed away two days before the event last year. It was somber because we had lost the founder. We knew that he'd want us to have a good time, but at the same time we were mourning his passing."

Father Bill created Food Fest to help alleviate the cost of providing 115 year-round beds at the shelter.

Cassis credited the Ocean Club's new owners Nick Varano and Frank DePasquale for providing a popular location for the event. "It wouldn't be Food Fest without them," she said.

The popular event drew people of all ages in its 16th year and it boasted more than 70 volunteers. Three businesses, Montilio's, The Common Market and Rafael's, were again on hand. All three have participated all 16 years.

"The food was spectacular," said Cassis. "It's very much a family-friendly event."

For those who want to contribute, they can send checks to Father Bill's Mainspring, 422 Washington St., Quincy MA 02169.

Six-year-old Tommy Christian leaned up against the large stone, carefully wiping off the small bit of dirt that had collected on it after two years.

Tommy, the nephew of Bobby Harvey, remembers well the uncle who helped teach him how to skate before his second birthday.

"When we were playing hockey, he sprayed ice on me," said Tommy. "I've remembered that for a long time."

Despite State Tax Credit Roadblock

Boston Scientific $55M Expansion Moving Forward

Roadblocks to securing a state tax credit will not stop Boston Scientific from a $55 million expansion of its North Quincy headquarters or the local incentives used to secure the firm's long-term commitment to Quincy, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday.

Koch and the Quincy City Council reached an agreement in June that will slow the rate of property tax increases at Boston Scientific's 800,000-square foot waterfront facility in return for the company's $30 million investment in its building and $25 million for new robotic technology.

The project is expected to create hundreds of construction jobs and millions of dollars of new tax growth, even with the local incentives.

However, the State Economic Assistance Development Council denied Boston Scientific an additional state tax credit over questions about the company's job-creation projections on a previous project in Middleboro. Koch said that the

City Response To Wollaston Robberies Detailed At Meeting

Mayor Thomas Koch and Police Chief Paul Keenan detailed the full scope of a broad offensive targeting a series of unarmed robberies around the Wollaston MBTA station over the last several weeks at a community meeting Tuesday at the Wollaston Elementary School.

The meeting was held after the Sun went to press Tuesday afternoon.

"Our residents deserve to feel safe in their neighborhoods, and they should know that their Police Department is dedicating every resource available to protect their safety and arrest the people responsible for these crimes," said Mayor Koch. "A community meeting like this is important to keep the community informed, answer questions, and address concerns people rightfully have."

Keenan was to tell the

West Squantum Street Bridge Ramp Closed Until October

The state Department of Transportation has closed the Newport Avenue northbound on ramp from West Squantum Street.

The closure will be in effect through mid October.

The Newport Avenue Northbound Off Ramp to West Squantum Street, which was closed in April, will remain closed and the section of West Squantum Street between Holmes Street and Arlington Street will continue to be reduced to a single lane in each direction to allow for bridge reconstruction work.

Drivers traveling Westbound on West Squantum Street destined to Newport Avenue Northbound will be detoured over the bridge and then turn left onto Fayette Street and then left onto Holbrook Road, connecting to Newport Avenue via a signalized intersection.

Drivers traveling Eastbound on West Squantum Street destined to Newport Avenue Northbound will continue to be detoured via a right turn onto Fayette Street and a left turn onto Holbrook Road, connecting to Newport Avenue via a signalized intersection.

The work area will result in the closure of the sidewalk located on the north side of the bridge. Pedestrians will be directed to the existing sidewalk located on the south side of the bridge via crosswalks located east and west of the bridge.

The project is expected to be completed in October.

Renovation Project For Manet Community Health

To Accommodate More Than 1,200 Additional Patients

By JOE REARDON

When Stephen Gore was diagnosed with stage 3 renal carcinoma in January of 2006, it was the Manet Community Health Center that took over and made it possible for Gore to be on the operating room table in less than three weeks.

Now, cancer-free, Gore last weekend completed his sixth Pan Mass Challenge, an accomplishment he knows would have been impossible if not for Manet's aggressive efforts in getting Gore the treatment he needed.

"Manet Community Health Center saved my life," said Gore. "I became part of the Manet family. Being a patient at Manet is like being a patron at the Cheer's bar; everyone knows your name."

Gore was on hand Monday morning at the alteration and renovation project groundbreaking at Manet's West Squantum Street location. The work will add 11 new patient examination rooms, a new nursing station and patient education rooms. It also includes a new sprinkler system. The renovation will allow Manet to take on 1,200 more additional patients a year. Work on the project is scheduled to begin this month.

Manet was awarded $719,140 in federal funding for the North Quincy practice site through The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act and $194,060 from the City of Quincy, Community Development Block Grant, and US Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Programs. The total cost exceeds $1 million. Manet will be offering Naming Opportunities in the fall to help close the gap of $250,000 needed to complete the project.

The ceremony kicked off National Community Health Center Week, which runs from Aug. 8-14. It recognizes contributions of the nation's community health centers, which provide a Medical Home to 20 million people in 7,000 communities.

Congressman William Delahunt told the audience that community health care is the future in this country and it is expected that the deficit will be reduced by $55 billion over five years and a whopping $1.3 trillion over 20 years.

"These monies are going to reduce the cost of health care in the country," Delahunt said. "These stimulant dollars will create jobs."

Mayor Thomas Koch, who was key in helping facilitate the Block Grant and who will receive the Manet Medallion for 2010 in October, said it was a great day for the center and for the city of Quincy.

"Your board represents the community so well," Koch said. "Manet is a fine organization that truly seeks to help all people here in Quincy. We are fortunate to have Manet as a strong presence in this great city."

Quincy Director of Planning Dennis Harrington and Quincy Director of Community Development Nancy Callanan were presented with plaques by Chief Executive Officer Henry Tuttle.

Joe Reardon, vice president of the board of directors, thanked Chief Executive Officer Henry Tuttle for his work at the center.

"We have the unique opportunity to have our fingers on the pulse of what community health care is all about," said Reardon. "Stephen Gore's remarks are symbolic of many who come to the medical health center."

Established in 1979, the MCHC serves a broad range of health needs from as far north as Revere and south to Bourne with the majority of people coming from the South Shore. In 2009, Manet provided 51,889 visits to 13,926 patients at five different sites.

This year also marks the 45th anniversary of the creation of the health care program in the US. Its mission from the beginning has been to provide affordable, high quality, cost-effective health care to people, regardless of whether or not they are able to pay. In fiscal year 2009, 6,683 visits to the center were made by Quincy residents.

Correction

Due to a reporting error, an article on the Quincy Board of Governors in the August 5 issue of The Quincy Sun incorrectly attributed a statement made by Board member JoAnn Bragg to Board member Mary Jo Brogna.

The two board members represent different viewpoints on the current issues facing the Board of Governors. Brogna supported the election of Peter Tssafaris as the new president of Quincy College while Bragg voted for Philip Conroy.

When the Aug, 5 meeting was cancelled due to legal technicalities, Bragg called the delay "stonewalling." Her comments were incorrectly attributed to Brogna.

Efforts were made to contact Bragg and Brogna beginning on Aug. 7.

Bragg provided the following statement: "There has been an unfortunate turn of events at Quincy College. Now is the time for the Board of Governors to come together and get back to working in the best interest of the college, in particular, its students and employees. We need to resolve the issue and move forward with a new president."

Efforts to reach Brogna were unsuccessful. However, she is one of three governors who authored a memo questioning the election of Conroy and the legality of non-resident members on the Board of Governors.

The August 5 article also described Joanne Condon Walsh as a graduate, rather than an alumna, of Quincy College.

THE COLOR OF GOLD

Although some people think that all gold is yellow, gold is often alloyed with other metals to create gold of different colors. For instance, when alloyed with nickel or palladium, gold takes on a white cast. Copper is added to make gold-colored alloys, but additional copper creates pink and rose tones. Greenish shades of gold are produced by adding silver to gold. Perhaps the most famous use of gold alloys of different colors is Black Hills Gold. This distinctive jewelry employs the use of 10K or 12K gold alloys in shades of yellow, pink, rose, and green to make the now-famous patterns of grape clusters and leaves that were the inspiration of a Frenchman named Henri Le Beau.

There is nothing quite like the special feeling you get when you wear gold jewelry. Are you exploring the possibility of adding to your treasure chest of gold? Searching for just the right gold earring, chains, necklaces, rings, or bracelets? You needn't look any farther than 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. Also New Business Building For Quarry Street

Public Hearing Held Wednesday On Plan For St. Joseph School Site

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Planners scheduled two public hearings Wednesday beginning at 7:05 p.m.

The first hearing will focus on plans for a new office building at 104 Quarry St. which was formerly part of the Sons of Italy property.

Galvin Commercial Holdings, LLC, have proposed a two-story 14,000 square foot building with 143 parking spaces. The proposal requires a Special Permit because the parcel is located in Residence B zoning.

At 7:45 p.m., planners will review plans for the Head Start Early Education Center at the former St. Joseph Catholic School site.

"It's going to be a high quality facility," Beth Ann Strollo, Director of Quincy Community Action Program (QCAP), said Tuesday.

The center will serve toddlers 15 months to five-years old in five classrooms, according to Strollo who said that approximately 70 employees including training and support staff for other programs will use the building.

Strollo hopes the project will be ready for bid at the end of August and plans the move in the Fall of 2011.

"We do not expect the traffic to be disruptive to the neighborhood," said Strollo, company plans to appeal to that decision, but that it the company has made it clear that it will not halt Boston Scientific's Quincy plans.

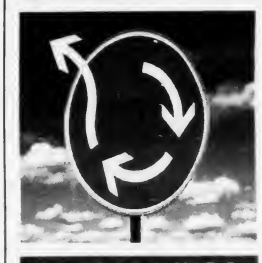
"They are moving full-steam ahead on this project, which is a truly extraordinary commitment to the City of Quincy that will create millions of dollars in construction jobs, millions of dollars in new tax revenue and the preservation of high-qaulity jobs Quincy," Koch said. "This is exactly the kind of economic development we will continue to pursue even in these difficult times."

The City Council unanimously approved the Tax Incremental Financing plan negotiated by the Koch administration. The deal anticipates that Boston Scientific's property value will increase more than $24 million after construction project is complete, from a $31 million assessment today to $55 million.

Under the agreement, the company will receive a 16 percent reduction from the expected increase in property taxes in the first year of the agreement and 32 percent in the following eight years.

Even with the discount, Boston Scientific will pay roughly $500,000 more in taxes in the first year of the amended agreement, and a total of about $11 million in taxes over the course of the agreement. Without any new investment, Boston Scientific would pay about $7 million in taxes over the same period.

"These kind of incentives make sense for us because of the tremendous amount of growth and jobs they create, and they make sense for companies because it keeps Massachusetts competitive in attracting and keeping strong businesses," Koch said.



The original Boston Scientific TIF in 1997 required that the company create 170 new jobs by 2016. The company has far exceeded that mark with 460 jobs created at the site, although the company has told Quincy officials that permanent job growth will remain relatively neutral at the site while the technology transition is ongoing, Walker said.

Primary Elections Should Heat Up

The summer doldrums appear to have taken a toll on interest in this year's state election.

A lot of political observers – including some of the candidates themselves – have commented on how quiet things are. Oh sure, the candidates are making their rounds – hosting fundraisers, holding signs and canvassing local neighborhoods – but many voters aren't exactly glued to the political scene.

(Contrast that with last summer. Seems like everyone had something to say about the Koch-Phelan mayoral campaign. My wife Amy and I even overheard election talk from a group of sunbathers relaxing on a Cape Cod beach.)

But like the weather, it's only a matter of time before things change.

The Sept. 14 state primaries are less than five weeks away. And for the first time in 18 years, there are some hot contests for local voters. In some respects, the 2010 state primary mirrors 1992. In Quincy, there will be contested races for Congress, state senate, state representative and in county government – Norfolk County district attorney.

SHEA

Because of these "hot races," City Clerk Joseph Shea is predicting a turnout of 42 to 45 percent of the city's 54,650 registered voters heading to the polls Sept. 14. That would be the highest turnout here for a state primary since 1992 when 43.1 percent of the city's electorate voted.

"We have some excellent local races and a few statewide races that should drive up the turnout," Shea says. "I think people are energized this year," he says, noting the historic special U.S. Senate election of Republican Scott Brown in January and the Independent bid for governor by former Quincy city councillor and two-term state treasurer Tim Cahill. Cahill won't be on the ballot until the Nov. 2 final but his presence in the gubernatorial race has spiked political interest.

Another big factor will be the candidates themselves who will have to "get the vote out" on Primary Day.

Headlining Primary Day for local voters will be the race for the Democratic and Republican nominations for Congress in the 10th Congressional District. On the Democratic ballot there are also contested elections for Norfolk County district attorney, state senator and state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District.

Those nominated will have challengers on the Nov. 2 ballot. And, in some cases, there will be Independents joining the Republican and Democratic primary winners.

Here's a look at those key contested match-ups:

In the race to succeed retiring U.S. Rep. William Delahunt of Quincy in the 10th District, there are two Democrats – Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating of Quincy and Barnstable State Senator Robert O'Leary. On the Republican ballot are Robert E. Hayden III of Hanover, Raymond Kasperowicz of Cohasset, former State Treasurer Joseph Malone and State Rep. Jeff Perry of Sandwich.

The Democratic and Republican winners will advance to the Nov. 2 final. There will be at least one Independent in the Congressional race: former Quincy Mayor James Sheets. According to the City's Election Department, Sheets has turned in 2,295 certified signatures on his nomination ballots in Quincy alone. Only 2,000 signatures are required to appear on the Congressional ballot. The papers are now on track to be certified by the Secretary of State by Aug. 31.

For Norfolk County district attorney, there is a three-way race for the Democratic nomination. The candidates are Michael Chinman of Milton, a former assistant district attorney; Joseph R. Driscoll, Jr. of Braintree, another former assistant D.A.; and State Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy.

There are no Republican candidates for D.A. on the Sept. 14 primary ballot.

The Democratic nominee for D.A. will face Independent John F. Coffey, an attorney from Norwood.

For state senate, there is two-man race for the Democratic nomination. State Rep. Stephen Tobin of Quincy and Quincy city councillor at-large John Keenan are on the ballot. Some are calling the Tobin-Keenan matchup a battle of the mayoral brother-in-laws. Tobin is the brother-in-law of former mayor William Phelan. Keenan is the brother-in-law of mayor Tom Koch. Like the last two Koch-Phelan mayoral campaigns, this contest could be the most spirited local race as Primary Day draws near.

The winner of the Tobin-Keenan primary will face Republican Dan Dewey of Squantum and Independent Laura Innis Nov. 2.

There is also a contested race in the Democratic primary for state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District.

Tackey Chan, 66 Meadowbrook Rd., Quincy, a former assistant attorney general, is squaring off against Joseph Keegan, 21 Moreland Rd., Quincy, a local attorney and veteran. The winner faces two other Quincy residents - Republican John Iredale, 200 Rock Island Rd., and Independent Karl Roos, 8 Park St.

Voters will also find some state-wide races on either the Republican or Democratic ballot.

In the Democratic primary, there's a two-candidate race for state treasurer with Steven Grossman of Newton facing Stephen J. Murphy of Boston. Kathryn Polito of Shrewsbury is the lone Republican candidate for treasurer.

There are three Democrats seeking the nomination for auditor: Suzanne Bump of Great Barrington, a former state representative from Braintree; Guy William Glodis of Auburn and Mike Lake of Boston.

There are also two Republicans seeking their party's nomination for auditor: Mary K. Connaughton of Framingham and Kamal Jain of Lowell.

(The other primary races, including governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general and secretary of state, Norfolk County sheriff and County Commissioner, are uncontested.)

This year is similar to 1992 when there were contested races in the Democratic primary for Congress (Paul Harold versus Gerry Studds); state senate (Morrissey defeated Steve McGrath and Joanne Coval of Holbrook); state representative in the 1st Norfolk District (Mike Bellotti defeated City Councillor Larry Chretien and attorney Steve Colman); and Norfolk County commissioner (former City Clerk John Gillis and Bill O'Donnell prevailed in a four-man race).

There were also 10 candidates for Governor's Councillor (open seat).

So, all the ingredients apparently exist for a competitive primary.

And we get to do it all over again – vote that is – Tuesday, Nov. 2. Winners take all.

ANYONE WHO is not registered to vote in Quincy but wants to vote in the Sept. 14 primary must register at City Hall by Wednesday, Aug. 25.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 postcard view of the Wistaria Bungalow that was on Cottage Street in Quincy Square. Cottage Street ran from Cottage Avenue to Revere Road through what is now the Hancock Parking Lot. Catherine Yule Woodbury built the Wistaria Bungalow as a social club for young people in 1914 with $500 in savings from her secretarial job at Fore River Shipyard. She was only 21 years old at the time. Under her direction the Wistaria soon became the social center for the South Shore with year-round dancing and all sorts of other activities for young people. In the basement of the Bungalow Woodbury had installed an oil-fired heating system that worked so well she decided to start selling them. With growing success she soon became the first woman to enroll in the engineering program at MIT and in 1933 she founded the C.Y. Woodbury Oil Company. Unable to also manage the Wistaria she sold it in 1935 to the George F. Bryan VFW Post. It was home to the Post for almost 20 years when in order to clear the land for the new Hancock parking lot, the City of Quincy took the building from the Post in 1954 by eminent domain. Not happy with the valuation offered by the city, the Post sued and finally got $31,000 plus a city-owned lot of land on Broad Street that is now the site of the Post's home. Together with her husband, Catherine Woodbury also owned the Glenwood Hall building in Wollaston next to her Oil Company and garage at 676 Hancock St. She was widely known and admired as a successful businesswoman; she received many national awards. In 1964 she was the founding President of the Quincy Altrusa Club. Altrusa is an International service organization of successful business and professional women. Tobin Sued Again Over School Budget; $1.7M At Stake

By FRANK McCAULEY

The School Committee has filed another lawsuit against Mayor Arthur H. Tobin for his refusal to send their budget proposal to fiscal 1982 to the City Council. The suit was filed in Norfolk Superior Court.

The budget that Mayor Tobin sent to the City Council last winter contained an estimated school figure. Later, the School Committee came up with a detailed budget that was $1.7 million higher.

City Solicitor Robert Fleming said that the $1.7 million lawsuit contained the $1.4 million in negotiated teacher salary increases that Tobin and the City Council refused to fund. That figure has been wandering up and down the court system for the past two years.

Tobin said that if the School Committee wins the $1.7 million lawsuit, "the worst the court can do is direct that the School Committee budget be submitted to the City Council." Then, he added, "it would be up to the Council to decide which department to take the money from since there are no additional funds. You'd be taking from Peter to pay Paul."

UNION HOPES TO SAVE JOBS OF 3 POLICE DOGS

Baron, Midnight and Moxie may make it after all.

But whatever happens, no one is going to take them out and shoot them or otherwise put them to sleep.

Baron, Midnight and Moxie are three members of the Quincy Police Canine Corps – that's the Dog Detachment – who have been laid off by Chief Francis X. Finn in an effort to live within his budget.

Finn and Henry Bradley of the police union met for an hour at the behest of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, to see if they could work out a solution to the mounting canine controversy.

"We have to choose men over dogs," said Chief Finn. "It's as simple as that."

"Teachers, firefighters and policemen have been laid off and there was nowhere near the hue and cry we've had over three shepherds."

The chief denied reports that the dogs would be killed because they could not be used for other purposes, nor good. "They make good pets."

White Family Grateful For Autism Support

Our family has had the benefit of receiving much needed support from the South Norfolk County Arc (SNCARC) and the Family Autism Center (FAC) for many years now. SNCARC FAC is a non-profit organization located in Westwood, MA that has provided Roger and our entire family with opportunities that are not commonly available for people with Autism Spectrum Disorders and their families.

Roger's independence has grown due to his participation in activities such as vacation field trips and teen dances. Because of SNCARC FAC, Roger has been able to participate in these programs WITHOUT HIS FAMILY IN TOW! As many of you can relate to, not many teenagers want their mom, dad, or older sister going everywhere with them all the time. Therein lies an issue many families dealing with ASD face; when to "let go." When a family does "let go" they are then faced with the thoughts of "will he be safe," "will he be safe," "will he enjoy the activities," "will he be able to handle the situation." Luckily for us, we have the opportunity to have Roger participate in the programs offered by SNCARC FAC, and know he is in safe, loving care while doing so.

Roger is not the only member of our family that has garnered support from SNCARC FAC! Julia has participated in sibling support programs. These programs are critical to the siblings of people with autism. We, as a couple, have become involved with ALEC (Autism and Law Enforcement Education Coalition) through SNCARC FAC. Roger Sr. is an ALEC instructor. This opportunity allows Roger to train Law Enforcement Officers in the best practices to handle situations that may include people with autism.

For ALL of the above reasons, we are asking for your support of SNCARC FAC. We will be sponsoring a fundraiser for SNCARC FAC on Saturday, Aug. 21 from 3-7 p.m. The funds raised on this day will be used to sponsor the SNCARC FAC's participation in The Rodman Ride for Kids in September 2010. All funds raised at this event will DIRECTLY support SNCARC FAC. The Rodman Ride for Kids will match 10% OF ALL of SNCARC FAC's funds raised, allowing the continuation of critically needed programs.

On a personal note, we would also like to use this day as an opportunity to get together with our friends and family, enjoy other's company, great music and maybe even win a raffle or two while giving back to a wonderful cause.

For this reason we are NOT requesting a ticket price. We would very much enjoy your company and ask that you donate whatever amount you are able to. We can be contacted at 1-617-688-1797 with any questions you may have.

Feel free to visit www.sncarc.org to have a more complete understanding of all of their programs, or www.rodmanrideforkids.org to learn about the event.

Thank you for not only your support of our family, but of all families affected by Autism Spectrum Disorders.

Comcast Partners With Cradles To Crayons For Annual Day Of Community Service

As part of the ninth annual Comcast Cares Day, one of the largest single-day corporate volunteer efforts in the country, local Comcast employees and their family members and friends recently gathered in Quincy at Cradles to Crayons, where they sorted donated toys, clothing and books and filled orders for children in need.

This was Comcast's third year partnering with Cradles to Crayons on Comcast Cares Day.

Prior to Comcast Cares Day, Comcast held drives at 15 office locations, collecting clothing, books and games to donate to Cradles to Crayons.

On Comcast Cares Day, volunteers worked at the Cradles to Crayons warehouse in Quincy sorting donated items and filling orders for various organizations that will disperse them to children in need.

Comcast also presented Cradles to Crayons with a $25,000 grant from the Comcast Foundation in support of the organization's "Ready for School" program, which supplies backpacks stuffed with classroom essentials to local public schools.

COMCAST EMPLOYEE Jeff Thomas cleans donated toys with his son Joey at Cradles to Crayons on Comcast Cares Day.

"We are so grateful for all the Comcast volunteers who came to our Giving Factory warehouse to lend a helping hand," said Lynn Margherio, founder and CEO of Cradles to Crayons. "The amount of work completed will allow C2C to provide hundreds of disadvantaged children with the basic items they need to thrive."

National Park Project Still A Major Goal

New 'Crown,' Carriage Delight Visitors At Dorothy Quincy Homestead

DOROTHY QUINCY HOMESTEAD, located at 34 Butler Rd., sports a new balustrade or railing atop its roof, thanks to Community Preservation Funds and a matching grant from the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR). In a public private partnership, the DCR owns the property and the Colonial Dames maintain the buildings and grounds.

Butler Road was abuzz Saturday as over 100 history buffs enjoyed tours at Dorothy Quincy Homestead which this year sports a fully restored roof balustrade, thanks in part to Community Preservation Funds (CPA).

"It's the crowning joy of the Homestead," Mary Robinson, curator, said of the balustrade or railing which enhances the rooftop of the historic house which dates, in part, back to 1685.

Robinson said a $30,000 CPA grant and a matching state grant allowed the rooftop improvement. "We replaced the balustrade which had fallen off."

For some visitors, this year's tours also offered a bonus, a peek at John Hancock's carriage built in 1750 and gifted to the Homestead by the Clapp family of the Portsmouth, NH area.

"We're certain that he owned it and had it in Boston," said Karen Melican, Chairwoman of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead Committee, adding, "He used it his entire life."

JOHN HANCOCK CARRIAGE – Quincy resident Al Petras shows visitors the 260-year-old carriage which John Hancock used during his lifetime. Petras, a Bank of America vice president, volunteers as a docent or guide at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead and has welcomed 25 volunteers from the bank for the property's spring cleanup.

Last Saturday, volunteer guide Al Petras of Quincy delighted some of the tour visitors when he opened the property's shed door, peeled back a protective plastic covering and offered a glimpse of the carriage.

The wheels had been removed and the base converted to a sleigh but Petras, a Vice President with Bank of America, assured viewers the ancient piece has the original materials enjoyed by the Hancocks.

There was no shortage of other historic treasures within the house for the 113 visitors to the property Saturday. The interior features furnishings and mementos dating back to the Colonial era and the American Revolutions.

Robinson said the property is protected by a public-private partnership between the owner, the state's Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) and the caretakers, The National Society of The Colonial Dames of America in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead was home to five generations of Quincys, once among the leading families of Massachusetts. Abigail Adams' mother was a Quincy and Abigail was a cousin of Dorothy Quincy who married John Hancock. Both President John Quincy Adams and Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes were direct descendants of the Quincys.

During the American Revolution, the Quincy homestead served as a meeting place for such American patriots as John Adams, Josiah Quincy and Hancock.

No doubt Hancock visited the home in his carriage at one time or another and that carriage is now back at 34 Butler Road.

"It's basically untouched in original form," Petras

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Intiative Implemented Jan. 1

Commercial Cooking Regulations

An insurance company contacted me about a client who is looking for clarification on a State Fire Marshal initiative implemented Jan. 1, 2010. It pertains to cleaning and inspections of commercial hoods and ductwork within restaurants and cafeterias.

On Jan. 1ST, those inspecting these hoods and ducts had to hold a certificate of competency issued by the state. It is called a Type 1 certificate. A Type 2 certificate is issued to those who are restricted to conduct cleaning activities for commercial cooking operations that they own or operate. This certificate shall allow the holder to conduct actual cleaning and grease removal of hoods, grease removal devices, fans, ducts and other appurtenances in their own commercial kitchen only. Meanwhile, a Type 2 certificate holder cannot conduct inspections. An inspection must be conducted by an individual holding a Type 1 certificate only.

The general rule for the frequency of inspections by a Type 1 certificate holder is as follows: Systems using solid fuel cooking operations must be inspected once a month. Systems serving high-volume cooking operations such as charbroiling or wok cooking must be conducted quarterly. Systems serving moderate-volume cooking operations must be conducted semiannually. Low-volume cooking operations such as churches, day camps, seasonal businesses or senior centers must be conducted annually.

If a Type 1 inspector finds that a commercial cooking operation is not in compliance, a written notice shall be given to the local fire department. Meanwhile owners must keep their own inspection records. Those records are maintained for a period of three years.

Additional information regarding this new program can be found at www.mass.gov/dfs. If you have questions concerning certificates of competency, contact Lydia Bogar at 978-567-3700. For questions pertaining to compliance issues contact the State Code Compliance Desk at 978-567-3375, or our own office at 617-376-1015.

Tragedy so often impacts change or modification of law, code and standards. It has in this instance. I believe the impetus behind this initiative was the West Roxbury fire where two firefighters lost their lives. If I correctly understand the circumstances involving that fire, excessive grease within the hood and ductwork specifically, was a contributing factor to the extent of that fire.

This initiative is an effort at tightening up the process to assure clean, safe and sound kitchen hood and ductwork. Compliance with this regulation impacts building, employee and firefighter safety.

If we can help clarify any of the requirements or changes, feel free to contact us at the number specified above. We are here to help, direct and support you towards a safer occupancy.

Thank you for making that possible.

New 'Crown,' Carriage Delight Visitors At Dorothy Q. Homestead said after the tour, noting that the rare item fascinates historians.

While Petras acknowledged that the carriage shows the wear and tear of two and one half centuries, he said that's a good thing.

Petras compared the carriage appearance to two ancient tables being assessed at an Antiques Roadshow event. They are the same age but one glistens with a new finish while the other appears dilapidated and looks like a piece of junk.

"The piece of junk is worth $100,000," said Petras, adding that the more glamorous refinished item is worth $10. "We have the hundred thousand dollar piece."

On Monday, Mary Robinson, curator of the Homestead, said the goal is eventually to restore the coach but that's a future project, "It's on hold while we try to see if we can get some grant money."

Robinson detailed the history of the coach, which has documentation dating back to 1750 when Thomas Hancock, John's uncle, ordered it custom-made from London.

The carriage was made of the finest glass and upholstery of the time, according to Robinson who believes that restoration will also uncover the Hancock coat of arms on the coach.

"John Hancock inherited it from his uncle," said Robinson, noting that Thomas adopted John, his seven-year old nephew when John's father, his brother, died.

Thomas and his wife Lydia raised John Hancock in the parsonage located on Adams Street, the site of the former Adams Academy and, currently, the Historical Society.

In 2005, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead was designated as a National Historic Landmark. Parts of the house were built in 1685, in 1706 and, again, in mid-18th century. As a result, the architecture is a combination of Colonial, Georgian and Victorian.

In years past, the late Senator Edward Kennedy and Congressman William Delahunt supported efforts to join the property to the Adams National Historic Park under the National Park Service.

That is still a major goal for the Colonial Dames, according to Robinson. The building is just about a stone's throw from the borders of the Adams property and located at the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road on the banks of Furnace Brook.

The property is nearly hidden from busy Hancock Street by giant and, some ancient maple, catalpa, and linden trees.

Regardless of the decision, Robinson, along with the Colonial Dames and local volunteers continue to protect and promote its beauty and history.

There is enough real history on the property that Robinson is working to dispel urban myths that have been repeated so often over the years that they're taken for truth.

One fable is that Hancock scratched a love note to Dorothy Quincy on glass at the house and the second is that wallpaper was installed for their wedding.

Both tales are fallacies, said Robinson who noted that Dorothy left the house when she was 15-years old, was not married there and Hancock never wrote on the glass.

Robinson credited Producer Joe Catalano's QATV special report on the Dorothy Quincy Homestead tour with the uptick in visitors to Saturday's open house. The remaining public tours this season are scheduled for Sept. 11 and October 2.

Among the guides Saturday were Rebecca Dinsmoor of Quincy, Alexandra Rollins, Marcia Synott and Petras who is one of the Homestead's docents.'

Greeters included Jane Gaillaid and Mary Nokes.

stating that the traffic should be comparable to that experienced while St. Joseph's School was in session.

The project is being funded by $1.5 million in federal funds, a $300,000 grant award from State Street and a tax credit loan from Rockland Trust.

Planners will also consider recommendations to name the concourse as the Walter Hannon Parkway, approve the Primrose Circle subdivision and street as a public passage, and discuss changes in rules and regulations regarding wind facilities and Special Permits.

Keohane Funeral Home Yields First Harvest For Food Pantry

Donates Fresh Produce Through New Program

Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service recently delivered several baskets of fresh produce from the firm's garden to the Interfaith Social Services Food Pantry as part of the Harvest Helpers program.

Harvest Helpers encourages amateur gardeners to donate fresh fruits and vegetables to the food pantry.

"The first donations from Harvest Helpers are starting to come in and our clients are most appreciative," said Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services. "These fresh, nutritious foods are the some of the healthiest yet scarcest items on our shelves."

Last year, the food pantry served over 16,000 clients. With such a demand, the food pantry is always in need of donations but they have a particular need for fresh fruits and vegetables. This need led to the creation of Harvest Helpers which was launched this spring when Keohane Funeral Home donated hundreds of plants to those who promised to donate some of their harvest to the food pantry. In addition, both the funeral home and the food pantry took up the challenge of planting their own gardens.

"This is the first time we have ever had a garden at the funeral home," said John Keohane, co-president of the funeral home. "Scott Whittemore of our staff has done an unbelievable job of managing the garden to the point where we are now making nearly daily deliveries to the food pantry."

Amateur gardeners are encouraged to join Harvest Helpers and support the work of the food pantry by donating some of their harvest. The food pantry appreciates donations from local backyard gardens.

Donations may be delivered to the food pantry at 105 Adams St., Quincy on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. with additional hours on Tuesday until 7 p.m.

For more information about the Harvest Helpers program, contact Keohane Funeral Home at 617-773-3552 or Interfaith Social Services at 617-773-6203.

Interfaith Social Services is a private, non-profit, non-sectarian agency with a fulfilling a mission to strengthen family life and offer assistance to anyone in need. Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service is a family owned firm, operating locations in Quincy, North Quincy and Hingham. The firm is committed to providing the compassionate, comfortable and creative service necessary to provide an environment where healing begins.

BASKETS OF FRESH produce from the Harvest Helpers food program at Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service are presented to Rick Doane (middle), executive director of Interfaith Social Services, by John Keohane and Joe Reardon.

Quincy Fire Fighters Local 792 Endorse Guy Glodis For State Auditor

The Quincy Fire Fighters Local 792 has endorsed Guy Glodis for state auditor.

In announcing the endorsement, Ernest Arienti, president of the Quincy Fire Fighters Association, said, "Guy has spent many years serving and protecting the people of Massachusetts in many different positions.

"As a past state representative, and a past state senator he worked on many pieces of legislation to insure the best for the citizens and the state.

"As a senator he helped the Quincy Fire Fighters to have a piece of legislation passed on the current E911 system. When explained how the system was not working as efficiently as it should have, Guy worked on this through his committee to insure the citizens of Quincy were being protected," Arienti said.

"Now, as the sheriff of Worcester County, Guy is still working diligently for the state. Guy has proved to be an individual that knows how to work hard and get the job accomplished. For these and many more reasons, the Quincy Fire Fighters Association stand behind and endorses Guy Glodis for state auditor," he added.

Morrissey Would Implement Repeat Offenders Unit

Norfolk County District Attorney candidate Michael Morrissey announces he would create a special unit of prosecutors targeting repeat sexual offenders in a move he says will help keep the region's most dangerous predators off the street and away from children.

The Repeat Offenders Unit that Morrissey would create if elected district attorney would be responsible for identifying repeat offenders, tracking their history of addresses and abuses, reviewing probation records, speaking to parole officers and prosecuting cases with an eye toward tougher sentences for these criminals.

"We have to send a message plain and simple: sexual predators will be not tolerated in our communities," said Morrissey, a Democratic state senator from Quincy.

"Many of these crimes are committed by the same small number of people, and we will dedicate every resource possible in the District Attorney's Office to make sure those people who repeat these disgusting crimes are identified and kept behind bars, which is where they belong," said Morrissey.

The announcement was made after Morrissey pressed Gov. Deval Patrick to immediately enact changes to Jessica's Law adopted by the Legislation that will close loopholes in the 1998 law by requiring that anyone convicted of a sex crime against a child be required to submit to the Sex Offender Registry.

Morrissey said targeting sexual predators would be a top priority for the District Attorney's Office, and that repeat offenders will be indentified by criteria based on the number of cases in an offender's file, probation, and parole records.

Prosecutors in the Repeat Offenders Unit would be assigned by region, Morrissey said, to better serve our communities.

"The successful identification and prosecution of these repeat offenders will go a long way towards keeping the citizens of Norfolk County safe. Classification of these individuals as repeat offenders will also lead to higher prison sentences in order to keep these specific offenders off our streets," said Morrissey.

Keenan Pledges Rules Review To Prevent Future End-Of-Year Legislative Logjams

State Senate candidate John F. Keenan said this week, if elected, he would push for a review of legislative rules to prevent the type of logjams that plagued the end of the most recent General Court session.

"I have routinely heard from people frustrated at how the Legislature is unable to finish its work, despite having nearly two years to do so," said Keenan, who is a Democratic candidate for the senate seat representing Abington, Braintree, Holbrook, Quincy and Rockland.

"How the casino legislation was handled at he last minute bothered both supporters and opponents to the legislation."

Keenan cited several other pieces of legislation that did not pass because legislation was put off to the end of the session.

"People expect that the entire Legislature give careful consideration to all legislation," Keenan said. "By leaving matters to the last minute, it does not allow members of the House and Senate to carefully review amendments. It puts too much power in a select few members of the House and Senate, and gives too much influence to lobbyists and special interests."

Keenan said one rule he would push to amend is Joint Rule 10, which requires committees to finish work on and report out all legislation by mid-Marsh of the second year of the session. Keenan said he feels this deadline is too late, encourages procrastination during the previous 15 months over the legislative session, and should be moved forward. Several hundred bills this year had to receive extension orders because committees failed to act on them in time.

Keenan also suggested that the legislature review rules that allow matters to be carried over from one year of the session to the next year of the session.

"By eliminating the ability to carry legislation over to the next year, more bills may be addressed in a timely, efficient manner," Keenan said.

Roos: Failure To Pass The Casino Bill Means No Jobs, No Revenue

Karl Roos, Independent candidate for state representative, said he is disappointed by the failure to pass a casino bill on Beacon Hill.

"I am disappointed in the results," Roos said. "We, the people of the state, will bear the cost of that decision. This will result in no new jobs being created."

House Speaker Sal DiMasi and Gov. Deval Patrick both agreed to license three casinos but disagreed on allowing slot machines at race tracks. DiMasi was in favor of allowing slot machines; his district covers Revere and Winthrop - areas close to Suffolk Downs and Wonderland, Roos pointed out.

"In case the Speaker and the Governor did not notice, there is not a lot of new construction going on. Many hard working people in the trades have been out of work with little prospects of returning any time soon," Roos said.

"A resolution of the Casino Bill would have provided three considerable sized private construction projects for the state. This would have resulted in much needed jobs for the trades.

"The importance of those jobs," Roos continued, "is not just in the weekly paychecks but would allow the workers to accumulate the necessary hours to qualify for health care coverage for the year."

Licenses fees for the casinos could be $75-$50 million per casino. Commenting on potential revenue from the licenses for the casinos, Roos said, "While state revenue from actual gaming at the casinos is several years out, the state could have benefited this year from the millions of dollars generated from the sale of the licenses for the three casinos. I do not foresee the economy turning around any time soon.

"I think that we are going to need that money before the year is out," he added.

As for the merits of legalized gambling in Massachusetts, Roos said, "We have to be pragmatic. We practically already have legalized gambling here. Between the Lottery, scratch tickets, daily games, Keno, Bingo and the buses leaving regularly from Quincy Center or North Quincy to Mohegan Sun and Foxwoods, gambling is already available to us.

"The failure to pass this bill does not change any of that."

Roos also expressed his frustration. "It is shameful that both the potential jobs and revenue for the state have been lost in this economic environment. The priority for the Legislature should be to provide and encourage job creation, to get people working again."

Dewey: 2-Day Sales Tax Holiday Not Enough

Dan Dewey, a Republican candidate for state senator in the Norfolk and Plymouth District, says the 2-day sales tax holiday this weekend is "not enough."

"We can all agree that in this economy both businesses and consumers can benefit from a small tax break," Dewey said. "Unfortunately, the Legislature disagreed.

"They raised the sales tax from 5% to 6.25% and then gave us a 48-hour reprieve while hoping we would forget that tax increase.

"What we need is real economic stimulus. Instead, we received a pre-election, 2-day sales tax holiday. That's not enough," Dewey said, adding the State Legislature should repeal their recent tax increase.

"In a time of record unemployment and stagnant economic growth, we cannot afford to place additional tax burdens on the businesses and taxpayers in our communities. The Legislature should create incentives for economic development and put Massachusetts back to work.

"Instead, they hide behind a 2-day sales tax holiday while raising taxes. I am asking the Legislature to do the right thing and repeal their sales tax increase," Dewey said.

Handicap-Accessible Walkways Among Features

Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington announce the city's Department of Planning and Community Development has finished construction of improvements to the rear of the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library, and adjacent North Quincy Community Center, located at 381 Hancock St.

The work, financed by a Community Development Block Grant, updated the handicap-accessible walkways; relocated some parking to be in a more convenient location; and provided outdoor activity space for the center.

The conceptual plan was designed by Mary Smith, Landscape Architect and Principal Planner, and approved by the Library Board of Trustees last fall.

Survey and construction bid drawings were prepared by H.W. Moore Associates, Civil Engineers, with offices in Boston.

Construction this summer was supervised by Tony Lorsodo, Program Manager of the city's Housing Rehabilitation Office. The work was coordinated with the installation of four bike racks from the Metropolitan Area Planning Council grant for 2009.

New handicap-accessible doors for the front entry of the library were installed as a part of the project. Tony Losordo worked with contractors to build new glass doors into the existing frames, providing an economical replacement solution.

The old doors were so askew that they had to be chained together when the library was closed. The new glass doors allow sunlight and a view into the library from the street.

Planners Receive National Award

The City of Quincy was presented with the John A. Sasso National Community Development Week Award during the National Community Development Association's annual conference, recently held in Seattle.

The announcement was made by Mayor Thomas Koch and Planning Director Dennis Harrington.

The award recognizes communities that exemplify the spirit of the Community Development Block Grant program by showcasing its good works through the activities and events during National Community Development Week.

"I am very pleased with the National Community Development Association's continued recognition of our Community Development Week activities," Koch said. "This award recognizes our continued efforts to provide a better quality of life for all Quincy residents."

Local representatives attending the awards ceremony included Donna Ackerman, Assistant Director of Neighborhood Housing Services, and Jill St. Martin, Programs Director of Father Bills & MainSpring. Both agencies partnered with the Department of Planning and Community Development during the city's Community Development Week celebration this past spring.

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, Aug. 5, at approximately 4:04 p.m., Officers M.J. O'Brien and Jay Borden responded to Goodies Mart on Hancock Street on a report of a shoplifting in progress. While en route to the call, Dispatch informed the officers the suspect was now fighting with the store clerks.

Upon the arrival of the officers, there was no fighting but there was a heated argument between the suspect and the store clerk. The store clerk held up a "Naked fruit smoothie protein drink," valued at $3.50, and accused the suspect of attempting to steal the drink. The suspect adamantly denied stealing the drink, now yelling that he entered the store with the drink after purchasing it at another location.

After the two people were separated, Officer O'Brien interviewed the store clerk, who stated that he observed the suspect enter the store and walk to the rear where the drink coolers are located. He then observed the suspect open the cooler containing the Naked Protein smoothies and remove one from the shelf. He saw the suspect with the drink in his hand until he went behind an aisle and the drink was no longer in his hand.

The store clerk confronted the suspect and spotted the drink in the suspect's right pocket of his shorts. The suspect then immediately became defensive, yelling that the drink was his and that he bought it earlier at another location. The suspect's story was completely different. He said that he entered the store to purchase a bag of potato chips because he was going fishing on a friend's boat. While deciding which bag of potato chips he was going to purchase, the suspect claimed that he was suddenly attacked by the two store clerks.

The suspect claimed that the two clerks slammed him up against the coolers and began going through his pockets, taking "my Naked protein drink" that he bought at another location. The suspect was adamant that he did not steal the drink and demanded it be returned to him so that he could leave the store. He then refused to leave the store without his protein drink. The officers recognized that there were two varying accounts of what occurred, but the suspect was not responding as someone would who had just been, by his account, assaulted by two clerks. The officers inquired if there was video surveillance inside the store and was told there was but the owner had sole access.

The owner arrived on scene and showed the high quality video to Officer O'Brien, while Officer Borden detained the suspect. The video showed the suspect open the drink cooler and remove a Naked protein smoothie with his right hand, then walk out of view of the counter and slip the drink into his right front pocket of his shorts. Officer O'Brien wrote in his report that "It was clear as day and it was obvious that the suspect did not purchase this item at another location."

The video surveillance footage was taken as evidence for court proceedings. At this time, the suspect, a 27 year old Peabody resident, was placed under arrest and charged with "Shoplifting by Concealing Merchandise." This was his third shoplifting offense. He was convicted of shoplifting in Peabody in 2003 and 2005 in Peabody District Court. It should also be noted that the suspect has 71 adult arraignments on his criminal record and out of those arraignments, he defaulted 67 times (did not appear in court).

Quincy August Moon Festival Features New Activities

Over 10,000 Expected To Attend Festival Aug. 22

The 23rd Annual Quincy August Moon Festival will take place Sunday, Aug. 22nd from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Quincy Center, 1400 to 1600 Hancock St.

This year's festival, the largest of its kind on the South Shore, will bring together Asian and non-Asian families from the Greater Boston Area to celebrate diversity and community unity.

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., a non-profit organization serving the needs of the Asian-American community, organizes the festival every year in honor of the popular August Moon holiday. "Our aim each year has been to inform and educate the community about the rich traditions that characterize the celebration of this festival and our culture," says Kim Chan, co-chair of the event. "We want to emphasize the theme of 'Love, Care and Family' this year to recognize the respect with which people treat each other within the community."

In addition to the new theme, this year's festival will feature a Chinese cultural area complete with art demonstrations, poetry readings, and craft-making classes. There will be lively music and dance performances, watermelon eating contests, and activities for all ages, including children and seniors. Local restaurants will serve international cuisine, and more than a hundred vendors composed of businesses and community organizations will participate.

The festival is made possible by Grand Sponsors State Street and the City of Quincy, with the support of more than 150 volunteers. Over 10,000 people are expected to attend the festival. It is a 5 minute walk away from the Quincy Center T station, and free parking will be available.

Ironworker Bobby Harvey: 'The Salt of The Earth'

For the Harvey family, the wounds are still raw since that horrible day, Aug. 14 of two years ago. Bobby, a member of the Local #7 Ironworkers Union, was killed when a portion of the Goliath crane that was being disassembled gave way and fell to the ground. He was just 28 years old.

The handsome stone memorial and plaque sits just outside the main entrance to the shipyard. On it are the words "Building America" and an etching of two hockey sticks with the number 3, Bobby's number when he played hockey at Quincy High, in the middle.

"He was the salt of the earth," said Bobby's brother-in-law Greg Christian. "He was one of the few guys who was fortunate enough to go to a job every day that he loved."

Christian and Bobby had talked about going fishing on Bobby's boat when their schedules allowed them to get together. "I'd kill to have that one day of fishing with him," Christian said.

Some days are tougher than others for Christian. "When the emotion gets to be too much, I go for a ride at Wollaston Beach," he wrote. "It's much better for me to deal with it that way. It must be the salt air."

He remembers Bobby as a dependable, hard worker. Bobby would oftentimes join Christian doing seal-coating jobs. "I'd take one Bobby over five guys," he said. "The kid was a worker."

Four scholarships are dedicated in his memory with two each going to students at Quincy and North Quincy High for $500 each and a $1,000 one from the Local #7 union.

Bobby's father, Robert Harvey, said the outpouring of emotion after his death was overwhelming. "We never knew how popular a kid he was and how much he was loved," Robert said.

A standout hockey player at Quincy High, Bobby scored the first goal for the team in its state championship game in 1998. His jersey is framed and hangs on the wall of the Quincy Ice Arena. The family sponsors a Quincy Squirt A travel hockey team in Bobby's name.

"He had two passions when he came out of high school," Robert said. "One was hockey and one was metal fabrication."

Robert finds comfort in seeing the countless buildings around the city that Bobby worked on. "They're all monuments to Bobby," he said.

Gutro Calls Wollaston Meeting On Proposed 19-Bed Rooming House

By LAURA GRIFFIN

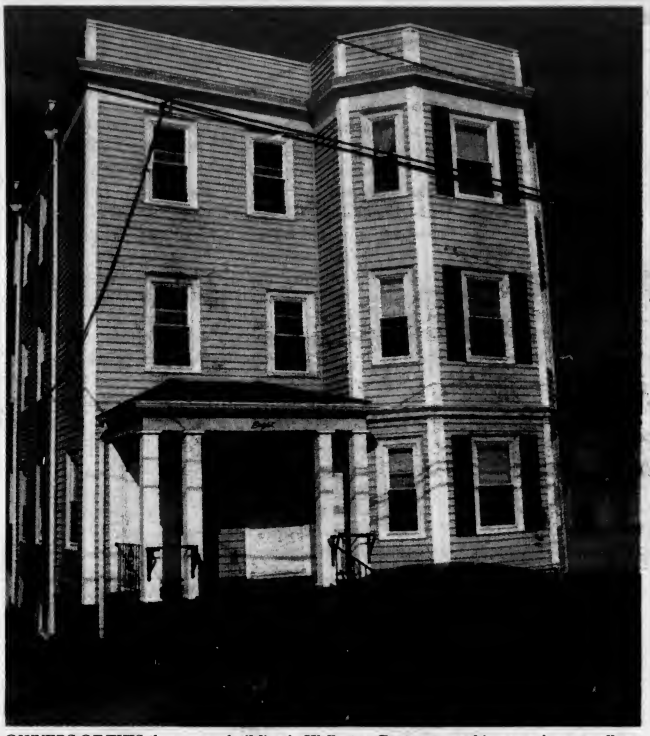
Wollaston Center doesn't need a 19-bed for-profit rooming house, according to Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro who opposes a plan proposed for the three-story building at 6-8 Old Colony Ave. The building is located near the corner of Beale Street.

Gutro wants to hear from local residents on the proposal and has scheduled a neighborhood meeting Thursday at 7p.m. at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St.

Developers Kok Juien Louie and Yu Mei Louie will present their plan for the rooming house at that meeting, according to Gutro.

The Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) which can approve or reject the owners' application for a Special Permit reviewed the rooming house plan July 20. At the request of the Louies' attorney, the ZBA continued the hearing to Tuesday, Aug. 17, at 7:15 p.m at City Hall.

Gutro said he has heard from many of his constituents "united in opposition" to this proposal for Wollaston Center.



"The neighbors believe as I do this use is more detrimental to the neighborhood," said Gutro who explained that the owners are seeking the permit under a previous exemption for the property.

However, Gutro said that special use was allowed under the state's Dover amendment which only exempts non-profits, state agencies, religious, and educational entities from local zoning restrictions.

"It is not an exempt use for a private profit venture," said Gutro who notified his constituents through an Aug. 4 letter which states, "I intend to continue to oppose the request and encourage you to join me at both this meeting and the upcoming Zoning Board of Appeals hearing (at City Hall)...."

On Monday, Gutro also noted that the property has "zero parking" for the potential 19 residents and that the owners originally proposed a rooming house for 27, according to Gutro.

The three-story building assessed at $536,800 and built in 1945 has 9 bedrooms, three baths, a living area of 4902 square feet and an unfinished basement, according to city records.

OWNERS OF THIS three-story building in Wollaston Center are seeking a variance to allow a rooming house for 19 persons. The property, located a 6-8 Old Colony Ave., is at the corner of Beale Street. Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro has called a meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church for residents and business persons to voice their opinion on the project. Quincy Sun Photo/Laura Griffin

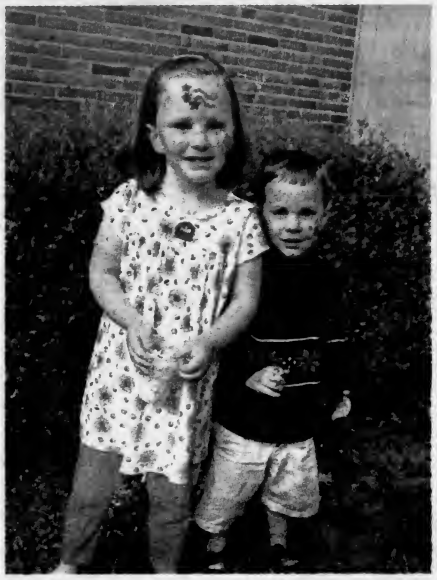
PSYCHED TO BIKE



Cyclists are no strangers to foot problems. This is due to the fact that the foot is the contact point with the cycling pedal. The more you cycle, the most the fat padding under the ball of your foot wears thin. Achilles tendon problems can occur, particularly with cyclists who cover a lot of miles. This tendon can get inflamed from continuous friction. Sesamoiditis, the inflammation of the two small bones known as the "ball bearings of the foot," can cause swelling or rupture under the stress of cycling. The pinching on small nerve branches between the second and third or fourth toes can cause numbness in the toes. Should cycling cause you discomfort, see your podiatrist.

For those who participate in sports of any kind, professional attention and guidance can help reduce the potential for discomfort and injury. An Easy Way To Add Essential Nutrients To Your Diet

(NAPSA)-Adding a natural essential nutrient-omega-3 fatty acids-to your diet could help improve heart health and lower cholesterol naturally.

Most Americans are aware of the importance of omega-3 but don't get enough in their diet. In a recent survey by Equation Research, 63 percent of the respondents said they needed to increase their omega-3 intake. Yet, while they could do so by taking supplements, 70 percent didn't buy them.

One reason many may be reluctant is a concern about the purity of supplements. According to the survey, 94 percent look for assurances of purity as the most important factor when making their choice.

"Since omega-3 fatty acids are found in oily fish, which most people do not consume enough of, supplementation is highly recommended to help Americans meet their recommended levels," said Greg Weatherhead, associate nutritionist (ANutr). "Deficiencies of omega-3 fatty acids have been implicated in the rising rates of many chronic diseases such as heart disease and arthritis. It is essential that the public has simple, easy-to-understand information about purity and the source of the product, appropriate dosing and how and when to add supplements to a healthy diet so we can better use nutrition to stave off disease."

Research has shown that a diet rich in omega-3 fatty acids helps lower triglycerides and increase HDL cholesterol (the good cholesterol) while also preventing blood from clotting and reducing blood pressure. Omega-3 fatty acids may also have an anti-inflammatory effect, with a positive effect on conditions such as Alzheimer's disease, arthritis and several skin conditions.

"Studies also show that omega-3 fatty acids are important to brain development in children," said Weatherhead.

Not all fish oils are created equal, said Weatherhead, who offers the following tips on what to look for:

- Choose a brand that uses the highest quality of fish oil.
- Opt for a brand that tests its oil according to established pharmacological standards.
- Look for a brand that uses a distillation process to deliver pure, potent fish oil.

GETTING THE right nutrients can help decrease your risk of heart disease and stroke.

A Standout Smile Says It All

(NAPSA)-Investing some time in brightening and whitening your smile can help attract the right kind of attention-whether you want to make new friends or make history.

A lovely smile has always served as a great calling card, and in the age of digital cameras, videoconferencing and social networking, a gleaming set of pearly whites may be even more important in getting the right message across.

However, many Americans don't feel their smile shows them in the best possible light-only one American in three (37 percent) say they are completely happy with their own smile, and nearly one in five (17 percent) say they avoid having their picture taken because they are self-conscious about their smile.

APPROACH YOUR "smile routine" the way you would any beauty routine-with daily and periodic treatment solutions.

Having a radiant smile is easier to achieve with the latest whitening systems, which work by attacking existing stains and preventing new ones. Caring for your smile should be an important part of any beauty routine.

To manage both surface stains and those below the tooth's surface, it's best to approach the smile care routine in the same way you might a beauty care routine-with daily and periodic treatment solutions.

Periodic intensive treatments are the best way to remove embedded stains, while daily care is necessary to remove surface stains.

That's why a comprehensive system may be your best bet. For example, the Crest(r) and Oral-B(r) 3D White(tm) collection works in several ways. It:

1. Whitens: Crest(r) 3D White(tm) Professional Effects Whitestrips(r) with Advanced Seal technology deep clean to get at stains embedded below the tooth surface that cannot be reached by brushing or rinsing alone. Worn once a day for 30 minutes, the Whitestrips provide professional-level whitening at home for results you can start seeing in just three days.

2. Cleans: Crest(r) 3D White(tm) Vivid Toothpaste and Oral-B(r) 3D White(tm) Toothbrushes remove surface stains on the teeth. Up to 80 percent of the stains are removed in just two weeks.

3. Protects: Crest(r) 3D White(tm) MultiCare Whitening Rinse and Crest(r) 3D White(tm) Vivid Toothpaste surround teeth with a stain barrier, repelling stains to help prevent future stains from forming. The whitening rinse further whitens teeth by removing surface stains and protecting against future stains.

Macular Degeneration and Cataracts

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is it possible to get wet macular degeneration from a scratch on the left eye during cataract surgery, or could it have been a cyst that caused wet macular degeneration? I am 85, and my right eye is perfect. I had cataract surgery on that eye also. – C.

ANSWER: A scratch on the eye isn't likely to cause macular degeneration. The possibility of cataract surgery leading to macular degeneration is a remote one. More than 6,000 people who had had a cataract removed were followed for five years after the operation. Slightly more people who had the operation developed macular degeneration, dry or wet, in the operated eye than did a similar group of people who had not had an operation. This isn't proof that cataract surgery leads to macular degeneration. The same risks that cause cataracts also cause macular degeneration. The numbers that do develop it after cataract removal are small. A cause-and-effect relationship has not been proven.

I am not clear what you mean by a cyst causing the degeneration. In what part of the eye was the cyst? I have not seen a link between cysts and macular degeneration.

The retina is the back layer of the eye, the layer that converts incoming images into nerve signals that can be transmitted to the brain so we can see. The macula is a small, round area of the retina where there's an aggregation of cells that are essential for central vision -- the kind of vision needed to read a paper, watch TV and drive. Dry macular degeneration, accounting for 85 percent to 90 percent of cases, is a wasting away of macular cells. Wet macular degeneration results from a sprouting of blood vessels in that region. Those newly formed blood vessels leak fluid and destroy macular vision. Procedures are available that can halt the progression of wet macular degeneration.

The booklet on macular degeneration explains both kinds and what is available to help those with this common eye problem. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue – No. 701W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My son-in-law insists on lifting his small children by their arms. I am terrified that he will pull their arms out of joint. I know this isn't the proper way to lift children. Would you give your opinion about this so I can show him? Maybe he will listen to you. –A Worried Grandpa

ANSWER: Sons-in-law should listen to their fathers- and mothers-in-law. They have experience in child-rearing. Lifting young children by grabbing onto their hands or arms can cause the radius (the larger of the two lower arm bones) to slip away from the ligament that keeps it in place. This disruption has the name "nursemaid's elbow." I guess nursemaids must have lifted children in this way. It's painful for the child, and the bone has to be manipulated back in place.

Children who are 5 and older aren't in danger of this happening.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

STRINGING ALONG

The reason that dentists insist that their patients floss (as well as brush) their teeth is because flossing does nearly half the work necessary to remove "plaque." Unless this sticky bacteria-laden substance is removed from between teeth, where toothbrush bristles may not reach, tooth decay and gum disease will result. Patients with receding gums or large spaces between their teeth are advised to use a flat, wide dental tape. If teeth are closely spaced, thin floss is best, especially non-shredding floss. Patients with bridges and braces are likely to find it necessary to use a floss threader to get underneath restorations or wires between teeth. There is also floss with a stiff end that does the job equally well.

By brushing and flossing we help to eliminate the bacteria, which can lead to bad breathe, gingivitis, and periodontal disease thus creating smiles which last a lifetime. Always feel free to discuss your dental concerns with us. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we practice an unparalleled level of dentistry. You can trust the health of your teeth to our extensive training and experience. Our concern is your comfort and confidence – our goal is to help you preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Patients who do not have the dexterity needed to use dental floss may want to try soft wooden plaque removers.

FACTORING INTO FIBROMYALGIA

Chiropractors frequently treat patients suffering from fibromyalgia, a common condition characterized by chronic, widespread pain and tender points in joints, muscles, tendons, and other soft tissues. When it comes to avoiding this condition and overcoming its painful symptoms, maintaining a healthy weight and remaining active may help. According to recent research involving women, being overweight or obese increases the risk of fibromyalgia, particularly among women who are not physically active. According to the study involving nearly 16,000 fibromyalgia-free women over a period of 11 years, overweight/obese women had a 60% to 70% higher risk of developing fibromyalgia than their normal-weight counterparts. Chiropractic treatment can play an important role in preventing and treating fibromyalgia by getting patients up and moving.

Chiropractic care is becoming increasingly popular among fibromyalgia sufferers because of the pain and stress relief that it offers. Roof Brackets Make Repair Jobs Safer

Q: When you write about fixing gutters or stuff on the roof, you always say to secure yourself with a rope so you don't fall. But where exactly is a person supposed to secure the rope? – Dale J., Dothan, Ala.

A: Many home repair guides will tell you to secure the rope to a sturdy feature – like the chimney. I'm not too comfortable with telling people to tie a rope around their chimney, because they're not always as sturdy and secure as one might think. A chimney that's crumbling or leaning is definitely unsafe (in a lot of ways, not the least of which is to the roof worker).

For a roof with a low pitch (an angle that's not too steep), roof brackets can be installed during repair work. These are slipped underneath shingles, about a foot and a half up the roof eave, and nailed directly into a rafter (so they are anchored securely). Multiple brackets are spaced about 4 feet apart.

During the job, your safety rope (or ideally, a roof safety harness) is attached to a bracket. The rope itself should not be so long that you can't pull yourself back onto the roof or over to the ladder should you slip off the edge. Once the job is finished, the brackets are removed and the shingles cemented back down.

Again, the brackets work most effectively on low-pitch roofs. If your home's roof is very steep, or if the roof is several stories up, don't attempt roof repairs yourself. Contact a professional roofer to handle the job – he'll have the tools, the helpers and the safety equipment to match what your roof requires.

HOME TIP: Tape a flashlight to the wall or floor joist near the entrance to the attic, so it will immediately be available for you to use when checking dark corners.

Tips To Help You Plan A Smooth Move

From Clearing The Clutter To Updating With Paint

IF THE THOUGHT of moving has you feeing boxed in, experts say planning and using the right technology can help.

(NAPSA)-Some say it's a period of time that's worse than rush hour or tax time

What is it?

It's moving season.

Each year, 40 million Americans move, with half of all moves taking place between Memorial Day and Labor Day. Although the average American moves 12 times in a lifetime, it never gets easy.

HGTV's Libby Langdon and David Gregg-she is a home design expert; he's a new-product specialist-say "moving stress" stems from a lack of planning and preparation.

"Nobody likes to move; it's a complete upheaval of your life," said Gregg. Both agree that by incorporating the right technology with the right design elements, you can eliminate much of the stress.

Here are their tips:

Clear Out The Clutter

Gregg suggests that moving is a great time for introducing new technologies to organize and de-stress your living environment.

"The average person has five to six remotes sitting around on the coffee table," he said. "Moving is a perfect time to clear out the clutter and get rid of them all, except for one. Upgrading to a universal remote can help; they've gotten a lot simpler to both program and use."

Hide The High Tech

Also, Gregg recommends hiding all your tech equipment behind closed doors or in other, less-traveled rooms. By using a device called a radio frequency extender, you can keep your DVD player and other electronics hidden and still operate them from up to 100 feet away.

Create A Familiar Feeling

As a designer, Langdon believes the key to a seamless move is to focus on creating the feeling from your old house in your new home. She notes this can be done in a number of economical ways.

"Think vertically when it comes to your drapes and hang them where the wall meets the ceiling instead of at the top of your window frame," said Langdon. "This draws your eyes upward, making the ceiling seem higher and your rooms feel bigger."

Update With Paint

Langdon also points out that when it comes to paint, people tend to be fearful of picking the wrong color.

"Painting your walls is an inexpensive way to update the look of a room with your existing furniture," said Langdon.

Creature Comforts First

Above all, Gregg and Langdon say you can eliminate a great deal of moving-related angst by making sure creature comforts, such as your cable television, your Internet and your phone services, are transferred prior to your move.

You can even schedule this transfer at no cost at www.cable mover.com, where you'll find additional tech and design tips to "smooth your move."

Is Foreclosed Home Really a Bargain?

We're poised to hit the 1 million mark this year when it comes to home foreclosures, 100,000 more than last year.

Whether it's being caused by unemployment, or by lenders who aren't cooperating with homeowners in getting revised loans written, or lenders who are snowed under by the number of refinance applications they already have, the bottom line is that there are many houses that are sitting empty. It's a self-perpetuating cycle: When too many houses in a neighborhood are empty, the values in the whole neighborhood suffer. Homeowners find that they can't sell for enough to pay off their mortgage. When they walk away, the cycle continues.

At the same time, if you're in the market to buy, be careful if you consider buying a foreclosed home. Don't let the low prices blind you to the realities.

The biggest thing to consider when buying a foreclosed home: Whoever owned it didn't get to foreclosure overnight. It was likely a long, drawn-out financial decline, during which time needed repairs might not have been made. Additionally the house could have remained empty for a very long time, possibly more than a year. This means that mold could be present, perhaps the result of flooding from frozen and cracked pipes. Animals (even the human kind) could have gotten in and done damage.

Check the HUD foreclosure website (www.hud.gov/homes) and see if you're interested in any of the homes listed. Study the reviewer's notes. Look for mentions of mold, flood damage, lead paint and missing appliances, furnace or central A/C unit. The home could have serious damage that's not apparent from a drive-by look.

Sign up with a HUD counselor. Call 1-800-569-4287 to find one near you. The counseling service is free, but extra services are not. Be sure you know what is included in the counseling.

If you find a foreclosed home that you like and that doesn't have too many problems, don't put yourself in a potentially bad position when it comes to taking out a loan. Do your homework first, as not all lenders will finance a foreclosure, and you could pay higher interest for a loan.

Even though HUD will have inspected the property, hire your own inspector.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475, or send e-mail to columnreply@gmail.com.

Defeats Braintree Cowboys 19-6

Militia Staking Claim As Top Team In The EFL

THE QUINCY MILITIA won its fourth consecutive game on Saturday, beating the Braintree Cowboys 19-6. Next up for the Militia are the Mid-Coast Falcons, Saturday night (7 pm) at Veterans Stadium.

By JOE REARDON

Riding a three-game win streak with very few injuries down the roster, the Quincy Militia wasn't going to kick back and put their collective feet up when the bye week rolled around.

To keep the proverbial ship on course, head coach Vaughn Driscoll put the squad through workouts designed to keep it sharp into the stretch run heading to the playoffs.

"I don't think we were banged up," said Driscoll. "We always want to play. I didn't give them the week off."

Playing against a deceivingly tough Braintree Cowboys expansion team, the Militia put its win streak at four with a 19-6 victory at Memorial Field. The win put Quincy at 4-1 on the season while Braintree dropped to 1-5.

Records, though, meant nothing to Driscoll heading into the showdown. The Cowboys added 15 players from the Hyde Park Seminoles and knew the squad would be tough defensively. "They've improved every game," said Driscoll. "I knew it would be a battle."

The Militia could have gone into the locker room at halftime with an 18-point cushion if not for a pair of mistakes costing the team points. A dropped pass in the end zone and a highlight reel 65-yard TD run by tailback Dolan Reid was called back because of a holding penalty.

Quincy, though, didn't come away scoreless in the opening half. Quarterback Matt Boyle (six carries, 52 yards) turned a naked bootleg and dashed in to give the Militia a 6-0 lead. A miscommunication in the defensive backfield that led to a scoring strike in third proved to be the Cowboys' only points of the game.

Reid (11 rushes, 109 yards, two TD) showed off his athleticism with touchdown romps of 23 and 54 yards. The elusive Reid put on a clinic with his 54-yard carry, making no less than five cuts against the Cowboy defense on the way to the end zone. "In my eyes it was jaw dropping," said Driscoll. "It was something you'd see on a Sunday. People from the league who were there said they've never seen a quicker back in the EFL."

Defensively, the Militia simply shut Braintree down with its continued aggressive play and speed. Defensive end Ricky Odom laid out Braintree's QB three times with sacks and linebacker Donald Jeffrey was continuously around the ball, finishing with six tackles and an interception. Driscoll was particularly pleased with Quincy's stingy kickoff coverage on special teams.

Quincy heads home with a Saturday night (7 pm) showdown at Veterans Stadium against the winless (0-5) Mid-Coast Falcons of Maine. With a return trip to the championship game on the entire team's mind, the Militia will go forward playing every team as if it is undefeated.

"We take everyone serious," Driscoll said. "You can't afford not to. We're going right after them. We have to."

The Militia recently helped out in the fundraising department, presenting a $600 check to representatives of Father Bill's Place before its game against the Granite State Cobras. Driscoll said the team will be conducting more fundraisers through the season.

Quincy Youth Baseball Defeat Quincy Babe Ruth, 3-2, in Championship Game

Final Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament Raises Over $20,000; Ten-Year Total $204,000

By SEAN BRENNAN

A decade of playing a summer baseball tournament, first in support of and later in memory of Patrick White and in support of the Patrick White Foundation and the Dana Farber Jimmy Fund, came to an end earlier this month when the 10th Annual Patrick White Jimmy Fund Baseball Tournament concluded at Adams Field.

The tenth and final year closed the book on a very successful decade-long run.

And Quincy was well represented in the championship game of the 10th Annual Patrick White Jimmy Fund Baseball Tournament as a Quincy Youth Baseball team defeated a Quincy Babe Youth League team, 3-2 to capture the tournament title.

But the real story of the weekend was, again, the generous financial donations made in Patrick White's name to the Dana-Farber Jimmy Fund. This year's event helped to raise over $20,000, bringing the ten-year total to $204,000. This remarkable figure has been reached throughout the last decade through the dedicated work of volunteers, an extensive donor base and the yearly participation of local baseball teams from in and around Quincy.

The tournament was played annually in honor of Patrick White, a former player in various Quincy youth baseball leagues, who passed away in the fall of 2005 after a lengthy and courageous six-year battle with Rhabdomyosarcoma, a form of tissue cancer. White was a champion of the Jimmy Fund's cause. He was a spokesperson for the Jimmy Fund and served as a mentor to younger children receiving services at the Dana Farber Jimmy Fund Clinic.

His memory has been kept alive by this event. This year's tournament featured four teams from Quincy and teams from Scituate, Braintree and Weymouth. Several of Patrick White's former teammates, including some who starting playing with Patrick when he was eight-years-old, and several former coaches participated in pregame ceremonies at each of the three night games at Adams Field.

Teammates Michael LeBel, Joe Vialpando, Dave Griffin, Chris Brown, Ricky Salvucci, Scott Warwick, Greg Ouellette, and Matt Sheridan, along with Bobby Salvucci (who was a batboy on the 2005 Jimmy Fund championship team and currently a member of the Quincy Babe Ruth 13-year-old team) and coaches Mark Vialpando, Rick Salvucci and Paul White (Patrick's father) threw out ceremonial first-pitches.

"It was a wonderful event and we raised over $20,000 and saw some great baseball, including an exciting championship game between Quincy Youth Baseball and Quincy Babe Ruth Baseball," said tournament co-director Bob Griffin. "It was another big showing and we raised a lot of money. In ten years of holding the tournament, we have raised over $200,000 for The Patrick White Foundation and the Jimmy Fund."

The success of the tournament is the result of loyal corporate sponsors, hard-working volunteers and a generous baseball community. S Bank and Krokidas & Bluestein LLP have sponsored the event every year; the concessions effort, which in the early years of the Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament was headed by Jane Warwick and Cindy Ouellette, and more recently by Paul White with the support of numerous volunteers like Wayne, Chris and Griffin Batson, the White family and friends and teammates of White, raised 15% of the $204,000.

And Patrick White's friends and teammates announced every game over the weekend this summer.

But it hasn't just been the Quincy community that has given their time to help such a worthy cause. South Shore baseball communities have donated thousands of dollars during the ten-year run. Weymouth Babe Ruth participated in the last six tournaments; Scituate Little League, Braintree Little League and Babe Ruth and Quincy Youth Baseball and Quincy Babe Ruth League participated all ten years.

Quincy Babe Ruth sponsored the last seven Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournaments, which were played at Adams Field, and Quincy Youth Baseball sponsored the first three tournaments, which were held at the old Mitchell/McCoy Fields.

After ten years and over $200,000 raised, the Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament will not be held in 2011; there will be an event held next summer, but it has not been determined what that will be.

"The ten-year experience has been at times like the closing scene in the movie 'It's a Wonderful Life,' as baseball fans from the South Shore baseball community kept depositing $5, $10 and $20 bills in the donation jar at the entrance of Adams Field," said Bob Griffin.

"Umpires donated their game fee, a Park's Department staff donated his time, baseball players made donations," Griffin continued. "From the moment the tournament started until it ended, friends of Quincy baseball handed me $100 bills and personal checks from $25 to $250.

"The financial success of the Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament is overwhelming."

Griffin also attributed the financial success of the event to volunteers who worked endless hours at the grill, in the concession stand and announcing games. He mentioned how coaches and players skipped the beach and changed vacation plans to participate every summer. The City of Quincy, in particular, the Mayor's Office, and the Park's Department have been equally supportive the last ten years.

"As the ten-year run for the tournament comes to an end the Tournament Committee will redirect its energies to focus on exploring new ways of honoring Patrick White and raise funds for the Patrick White Foundation," said Griffin.

"Thank you to all who have made the Patrick White Jimmy Fund Tournament a success."

(Bob Griffin contributed to the story)

THE 10TH ANNUAL PATRICK White Jimmy Fund Tournament raised over $20,000 for the Patrick White Foundation and the Dana Farber Jimmy Fund. The ten-year total for monies raised is $204,000. Several of Patrick's former teammates threw out ceremonial first-pitches before games played at Adams Field. Pictured standing next to the plaque honoring White's life are (from left): Mike LeBel, Scott Warwick, Dave Griffin, Chris Brown and Greg Ouellette.

Annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tourney Aug. 14-15

The 5th Annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament, held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High School in 2002 and had their lives cut tragically short in the past six years, will be held August 14-15 at the Fenno Street Basketball Courts.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many of the top former and current high school players from Quincy. Games are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday, August 14 and Sunday, August 15, and will continue throughout both days.

The O'Connell and Thomson families have set up memorial scholarships in their son's names to benefit North Quincy High School graduates and this annual tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

At this year's event, the O'Connell and Thomson families are also running a food drive in support of St. Vincent De Paul Society at St. John the Baptist Parish. The families are requesting that anyone who attends drop off non-perishable foods or toiletries for this drive.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation this summer can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and mail it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy MA 02169 – the donations will be split between the two funds.

For additional information on the lives of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, or to learn more about the tournament, visit www.okie33.com and click on the "basketball tournament" tab.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A previous misunderstanding continues to taint the atmosphere to some extent in the early part of the week. But cooler heads prevail, and the situation eases by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) While the artistic aspect of the Divine Bovine is well-served this week, that practical side is also getting the sort of recognition that could lead to a new and well-deserved opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) With home-related matters taking on more importance this week, now could be the time to make some long-deferred purchases. But shop carefully for the best quality at the best price.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Congratulations. While that family problem might still rankle, it should be easing thanks to your efforts to calm the waters. Also, a workplace situation seems to be moving in your favor.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat's energy levels should be rather high these days, and you might do well to tackle any tasks that still need doing. This will clear the way for those upcoming projects.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Someone's criticism might not be as negative as you perceive. Actually, it could be helpful. Discuss the matter with your critic, and you both could learn something valuable.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A business matter could cause some friction among your colleagues. But once again, that logical mind of yours comes to the rescue. And the sooner it does, the better!

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) There might still be some heated temper flare-ups out there. But your sensible self should advise you to stay out of these situations until things cool down and calm is restored.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Changing your mind could be the right thing to do if you can't resolve your doubts. You might want to discuss the matter with someone whose advice you trust.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

When you think about it, there is nothing mysterious or complex about "human nature." Human nature is nothing other than human habits. Human nature is therefore changeable the same as human habits are changeable. Surprisingly, human nature is often mentioned to excuse personal offenses and misbehavior. It is equally surprising that the inherent goodness in man is seldom mentioned as human nature.

The human habits of love, tolerance and respect are certainly as much of human nature as the faults of greed, distrust and other vices. Actually, when you look around, you see far more love, trust and selflessness than hate, distrust and selfishness. In these troublesome times in human relations, it is still true that goodness exceeds the bad. And more importantly, it is good to stress that bad habits can be changed to good habits if a will to do so exists. In short, "human nature" can be changed. Just change "human habits." . . .

STAMBRY'S OWNER Pamela Tand holds a bar of the soap "Quincy Breezes" that she created. Tand is looking forward to selling her soaps and other various items in her new location on Hancock Street.

Soapmaker Pamela Tand Opens Local Boutique

By JOE REARDON

Pamela Tand first started dabbling in creating soaps out of necessity more than 12 years ago not knowing it would ultimately become her passion.

Tand's daughter, Amber, was allergic to the over the counter soaps on the market so Tand made soaps that were more gentle on her daughter's skin.

Tand discovered shortly thereafter that she enjoyed working with the array of butters and oils to come up with soaps in a wide range of scents. It became her passion and she went on to learn as much as she could about the intricacies of the process to develop the best soaps possible.

Tand brought her talents from Lake Champlain, VT to Quincy Center where she opened her own store, Stambry's, on July 16. Shelves with various soaps and lotions line the neat store, which has a small-town, country feel to it. Stambry's also offers photographs, vintage and Swavorski jewelry, and sweaters along with bath and beauty products, aprons and paintings.

Tand has become an expert not only on making soap but on its origin as well. One belief is that it originated in biblical times. Roman legend says it was named after Mount Sapo, and ancient site where animal sacrifices were conducted. After an animal was sacrificed and rain washed the animal fat and ash to the banks of the Tiber River, women washing their clothes noticed they were much cleaner in certain sections of the river.

She's only been open a couple of weeks, but is already excited about her location in the city and the customers who have dropped in to check out her wide selection of products.

"I love it," Tand said. "It's right off the T and it's in the historic district. I'm starting to get requests for custom products. I started doing the Weymouth Farmer's Market last year and have drawn in people from Weymouth."

Tand headed north for the weekend to sell her soaps at the prestigious 35th Annual Franklin County Field Day in Vermont. Well known in the state, Tand developed a large customer base in the Green Mountain State.

"It's kind of like going home," she said. "I have a following there."

The weekend was a busy one for Tand. She left for Vermont after 8 on Friday evening and didn't return until Monday morning at 2:30. She was in the store though, albeit tired from her weekend, early on Monday morning.

Tand has always found making her own soaps not only fun, but therapeutical as well. When something is bothering her she immerses herself in her work and it commands her full attention. "It's been some of the best therapy I could ever have," Tand said with a laugh. "Give me some pots and oils and I'll whip something up."

Tand is embracing the history of the city in several ways, most notably selling photos and postcards of various landmarks in Quincy. She is also able to make her soaps on site, putting in well over 40 hours per week in getting the business up and running in its new location.

She is careful to keep the smell of the soaps mild, not overwhelming. "I want to know what I'm using when I'm taking a bath," Tand said with a laugh. "I don't want people three blocks away to know."

The process of soap making is a slow one. Tand uses seven different oils and butters and is careful with the ingredients. "It's not our grandmother's lye soap," she said. "This isn't a fleeting thing you want to do. It can be very dangerous. The chemicals are very strong. Lye is caustic and can burn."

City Response To Wollaston Robberies Detailed At Meeting

residents at the meeting about the Police Department's coordinated response to the unarmed robberies, about 9 of which have occurred around T stations since late June. Six of the robberies have been in the area of the Wollaston T station and involve suspects approaching victims who are walking home from the T station roughly between 11 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

Police increased patrols in the areas surrounding the T station, including using the department's Special Operations Unit. Undercover units have also been deployed, the MBTA has increased surveillance around the station, and a broad public awareness campaign, including flyers and news releases in both English and Chinese, was launched.

"There is a delicate balance between tipping off the suspects we want to catch and making sure our residents are fully aware of the situation and know to be aware of their surroundings," Keenan said. "We felt it appropriate to get as much information out as possible."

TREES ACROSS the city like this one on Evans Street suffered excessive damage when utility contractors chopped off branches and limbs unnecessarily, according to testimony at Monday's City Council meeting. Coughlin Calls It 'A Chain Saw Massacre'

Councillors Blast Utility Company For Disfiguring Trees

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City Councillors Monday blasted utility company contractors who recently disfigured and denuded countless trees across the city without regard to the local landscape or the health of the trees.

"It looks like a chain saw massacre," City Council President Kevin Coughlin said, describing the 'lopsided trees' left in his ward in the wake of contractors who trimmed the trees in an overzealous effort to protect utility wires.

'Energy Smart Quincy' Program Draws Over 100 Residents

Energy Smart Quincy, the City's initiative to reduce energy waste and support local clean energy, is off to a promising start, with more than 100 people to date participating in the program in less than a month.

Most of these residents have signed up for a no-cost energy assessment of their home at a rate that will likely quadruple last year's participation in energy audits by City residents.

"This is a worthwhile program, and our residents are seeing clearly that reducing energy consumption will also mean substantial savings for themselves," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "I am grateful to all of the people who have worked incredibly hard to make this program such a great success in just its first month."

Quincy Fair Mall Demolition Set Back One Month But:

Asbestos Removal Will Not Delay Parkway Construction

City officials said Tuesday it will be a painstaking process to remove asbestos-bearing material in the Quincy Fair Mall and it will set back demolition of the building by more than a month, but it will not delay the construction of Quincy Center Concourse.

Delays associated with the discovery of asbestos in the mall building relate only to the demolition aspect of the project and will not affect the construction of the road that will cut an east-west corridor from Burgin Parkway to Route 3A, officials said.

The construction work is continuing in the Mechanic Street and Revere Road area while the demolition proceeds at the mall to make way for the road's Hancock Street crossing.

"The asbestos discovery is unfortunate, but it will not have a bearing on the overall construction schedule for this vital roadway," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "The state is continuing to work through issues with the demolition, and we are grateful that the taxpayers of Quincy will not be forced to pay for the additional costs associated with the asbestos removal."

The state Department of Transportation will pay for the additional costs.

Council OKs Fire Chief Cost Recovery Plan

Fire Chief Joseph Barron won City Council approval Monday for a cost recovery plan that will bill insurance companies for services rendered by his department. The program will not bill any individuals.

The plan presented Monday was a stripped-down version of a proposal which created a major stir among councillors in June.

At that time, it was dubbed the "Bacon Fire" ordinance after councillors raised the specter of elderly ladies charged for burning toast or residents charged for smoky bacon fires.

"This does not allow cost recovery directly from individuals," Barron assured councilors Monday when he introduced the revision redrafted with the aid of Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci.

Palmucci had been one of the proposal's toughest critics in June.

"The ordinance has been

Sgt. Paul Turowski Wins State Civil Service Decision

After seven years and $20,000 in attorney fees, Police Sgt. Paul Turowski said he's back where he started: in line for promotion at the top of the department's Civil Service list.

"It cost me $20,000 to be back where I was seven years ago," Turowski said Tuesday. "It's a nice decision. I hope the city does the right thing."

Turowski referred to the 3-2 decision issued Aug. 12 by the state Civil Service Commissioners ordering the city to place his name at the top of the city's promotion list for police lieutenant.

SGT. PAUL TUROWSKI

The Civil Service Commission's decision issued Aug. 12 cited bias and undue political influence in bypassing Turowski for a promotion to lieutenant in 2005.

The opinion states as follows:

"From the testimony and evidence, it does not appear that the Appointing Authority's reasons were honest, fairly determined and free of prejudice or favoritism. In fact, it appears through strong circumstantial evidence that there was bias or political motive for bypass-

Councillors Blast Utility Co. For Disfiguring Trees

"It will blow your mind. I've never seen (this extent of) the removal of limbs," Coughlin said later during this week's special council meeting.

Coughlin wasn't alone in his blistering criticism of the National Grid's recent tree trimming as Councillor Brian McNamee reported, "I did receive complaints about trees in Ward 6."

"This is excessive," said Jim Fatseas, Chief of Staff to Mayor Thomas Koch.

Fatseas said the mayor's office received "a great number of calls. We saw a number of places. It just seemed over the top."

On a trip to the Glendale Avenue area, Fatseas said he spoke to one worker who said. "We're not going to be able to get back here (for four years)..." so they were chopping limbs and branches that might grow in the interim.

Fatseas said the trees are "part of the charm of a neighborhood."

Utility companies can trim trees, not only on public land, but also on private property.

For Evans Street resident Peter Krupp, the contractor's slashing across his property was especially galling.

The tree in Krupp's yard was trimmed because the utility-owned pole is slanting and the wires are now dipping into the tree's growth area on private property.

"The utility pole is slanted," said Krupp.

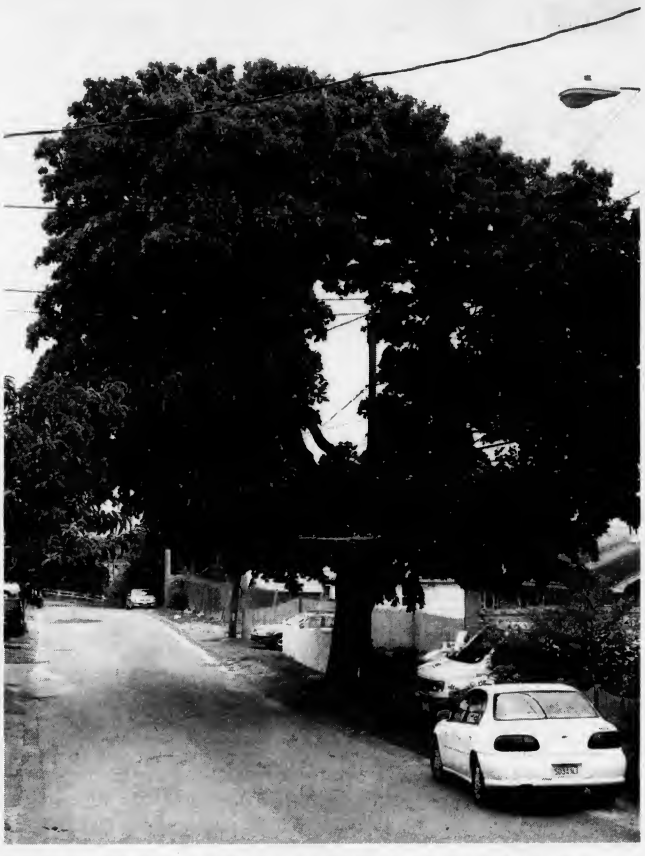
New trees won't be coming back quickly as Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest noted that the city can't plant new trees this year due to budget woes.

Once a tree is incorrectly pruned, it will die eventually, according to Monday's speakers.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said that professionals would trim and "train the tree to grow away from the power line."

Instead, the devastated trees eventually die.

"It's gone. It's dead. We lose a $5,000 tree," said Raymondi.



McNamee suggested the city begin assessing the trees, scoring and tracking the outcome and begin efforts to recoup the city's losses.

"You have to seek recovery for their actions," said McNamee, referring to the expensive repercussions for the city.

On hand for the discussion was Kim Schneider, Coordinator of National Grid's Economic Development Community Investment, NE.

Schneider pledged to investigate the charges and file a future report with the council on the actions of the contractor.

"I'm going to bring them back in," Coughlin said Tuesday, noting the council has a lot more questions for Schneider about the New York contractor who wounded so many of the city's trees.

A DONUT HOLE protects the utility wires on this Brunswick Street tree in Squantum. City councillors charged Monday that National Grid ignored the city's tree ordinance and disfigured trees across the city. Quincy Sun Photo/Laura Griffin

Ward 4 Family Fun Night Tonight

City Councillor Brian Palmucci and the Ward Four Neighborhood Association will host a free Ward 4 Family Fun Night Thursday, Aug. 19 beginning at 6 p.m. at O'Rourke Field on Quarry Street.

All residents are invited and encouraged to attend the free event.

From 6 to 8 p.m. hot dogs, slush and cold beverages will be provided, along with a DJ, face painting, and plenty of games and activities for the kids.

The movie "Ice Age" will be shown on a large inflatable outdoor screen beginning at 8 p.m.

"This will be a fun and inexpensive night out for families and a great opportunity for neighbors and members of the community to gather," Palmucci said. "Be sure to bring a blanket or chair and bug spray."

'Energy Smart Quincy' Program Draws Over 100 Residents

An energy assessment is the best way to start saving energy and money. An energy assessment, conducted by a trained energy specialist, focuses on weatherization opportunities, mechanical systems, appliances, and lighting, said Larry Chretien, the Executive Director of the Massachusetts Energy Consumers Alliance, which is partnering with the City on Energy Smart Quincy.

Based on the assessment, the specialist provides the owner with a customized list of energy saving opportunities and any incentives available, such as free air-sealing and a 75% instant rebate (up to $2000) for insulation. Some energy improvements can be made during the assessment, such as the installation of free energy-saving bulbs, Chretien said.

Many homes and other buildings in Quincy are leaky, wasting energy and money. By sealing up holes and adding insulation, a homeowner can save hundreds of dollars a year, Chretien said.

"Energy audits are a fast and free way toward reducing energy consumption and costs, and the response has been tremendous," Chretien said. "We have a lot of work to do, but we could not be more pleased with the success so far."

ENGRAVED MESSAGES
By engraving personal messages in their wedding bands, marrying couples can imbue their rings with added meaning. The classic approach to engravings of this type involves inscribing the inner surfaces of wedding bands with names (or initials) and dates. Nicknames are also appropriate, as are favorite sayings and the simple word "Forever." Other couples prefer to engrave the words of favorite songs or poetic passages. The most personal of engraved messages are those that are only understood by the future spouse. Some couples prefer a religious phrase or verse, while others choose symbols such as the one for eternity. If couples write their own wedding vows, it may be most appropriate to engrave a phrase contained therein.
Bring your bride-to-be in to see us and let us help you choose something special that matches her radiant smile. We have beautiful engagement rings and wedding bands of both traditional and contemporary styles. Select a simple yet simply elegant gold band, or choose a circle of diamonds or other shimmering gemstone—create your next family heirloom today with us at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. Of course, we will engrave your rings with your very special, very personal message. PH: 617-773-3636.

60 Intersections Slated For New Striping

Long Wait May End For Crosswalk Paint

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon told City Council Monday that he's expecting five tons of the correct paint for crosswalk and street striping any day now and should be able to begin painting the faded markings on the 60 most critical intersections of the city.

Gillon said that he also expects another 20 tons of the paint to be delivered by Sept. 15th. If both shipments come through, Gillon said his department expects to address 20% of the city's streets this season.

"There's been worldwide shortage of thermo-plastic." said Gillon, explaining the delay in starting the painting program this year.

According to Gillon, thermo-plastic is the ingredient needed for crosswalk and street paint that will endure Quincy's winters, freezes and rains.

"Crosswalks should last three to four years," said Gillon before describing some of the factors responsible for this year's scarcity.

In the first place, Gillon said there are only three manufacturers in the world and all are in China.

"China put a halt to their exports," said Gillon, noting that China was increasing construction of its roadways and those in India and using the painting there.

On the brighter side, the city addressed all school areas last year, according to Gillon.

Prior to his report, Gillon presented each city councillor with a 35-page booklet detailing his department's efforts to obtain the paint and the international shortage of thermo-plastic.

His report included his e-mails requesting paint, a letter describing the failure of epoxy paint and documents from officials in the industry.

"I am extremely concerned about this turn of events," wrote Leonard Langevin, president of Traffic Markings, Inc., Graham, NC. in one document.

Langevin continued, "As I mentioned earlier I have never seen anything like this, and I thought I had 'seen it all' when it relates to this industry."

Also, included in Gillon's report were documents from The American Traffic Safety Services Association discussing the "raw material shortages" and news stories from all over the country describing traffic engineers handicapped by the shortages.

QMC Grants Neighbors Access To Glendale Road Land For Recreation Use

Working closely with city officials and the Hospital Hill Neighborhoods Associaton (HHNA), Quincy Medical Center (QMC) is announces it has come to an agreement that will grant the HHNA access to the parcel of land located behind the hospital's parking lot on Glendale Road for recreational use.

"We are pleased that we have been able to work with our neighbors, Councilor Doug Gutro and the Mayor's office to find and arrangement meets the immediate needs of all parties involved," said Mark Dutra, QMC's Director of Safety and Environmental Services, noting that the hospital will continue to provide upkeep for the area and install picnic tables and trash barrels.

"On behalf of our members, I wish to express our appreciation to the Administration of Quincy Medical Center for their willingness to open Glendale Park to the neighborhood once again," remarked Carolyn Moriarty, HHNA Secretary. "Together, it appears we have achieved a wonderful end result."

"The agreement is a sign of good faith," added Mayor Thomas Koch. "Going forward, we will continue to work with the hospital and the neighborhood association to find a longer term resolution for the land."

• On Aug. 27, 1883, the most powerful volcanic eruption in recorded history occurs on Krakatau, an uninhabited volcanic island located west of Sumatra in Indonesia. 'Free Agents' And Primary Turnout

I have a new phrase for the unenrolled voter.

How about "political free agent?"

These "free agents" aren't aligned with any political party. They are free to sign nomination papers for Democratic, Republican and Independent candidates.

And come Primary Day Sept. 14, they can vote in either the Democratic Primary or the Republican Primary. After they pull a Republican or Democratic ballot, they automatically become unenrolled again. (In other words, unenrolled voters who cast a ballot in a primary – and thereby make a preference for one of the political parties in doing so – no longer need to sign a card after they vote indicating their preference to return to unenrolled status. The city's Election Department does it for them without the paperwork.)

The ranks of the unenrolled appear to be growing in Quincy, too. The latest registration numbers from the city's Election Department shows there are 25,159 unenrolled voters. That's 1,365 more than registered Democrats (who are second with 23,804). Registered Republicans remain third with 5,349.

One big question with Primary Day looming: how many unenrolled voters will head to the polls? And what ballot will they take when they do vote?

Those decisions could have an impact on not only the turnout Primary Day, but also on the races on the ballots.

Traditionally, those aligned with a political party have generally turned out for primaries. And those so-called unenrolled or independent voters tend to stay home until the final election in November.

Turnout here for the primary was only 12.23 percent.

But for the final election, turnout swelled to 52.43 percent when Scott Brown defeated Martha Coakley.

The number of voters casting ballots in a state primary in Quincy has reached the 50 percent mark only once in the last 30 years.

That was the 1982 state primary. That year, 56.7 percent of the city's electorate voted. The big draw was the Democratic primary for governor. Former Governor Michael Dukakis defeated incumbent Gov. Edward J. King in a rematch of the 1978 Democratic primary.

At that time, Democrats had the most registered voters in Quincy. Out of 47,154 total voters, Democrats were first with 29,382 voters or 62.3 percent. Independents were second with 11,199 or 23.7 percent and Republicans third with 6,573 or 14 percent.

This year's primary has drawn comparisons to 1992. Eighteen years ago, 43.1 percent of the city's 44,366 voters turned out for the state primary. There were contested races in the Democratic primary for Congress, state senate, state representative in the 1st Norfolk District and Norfolk County commissioner. There were also 10 candidates for Governor's Councillor (open seat).

At that time, Democrats still ranked first in registered voters with 26,777; unenrolled second with 11,064 and Republicans third with 6,541.

Looking ahead to the state primary Sept. 14, City Clerk Joseph Shea has forecast a voter turnout of 42 to 45 percent of the city's registered voters going to the polls. Shea also said he expects more Democrats will vote in the primary than the number of unenrolled and Republican voters.

Why?

Well, there are more Democratic contests on Primary Day. There's the three-way race for Norfolk County district attorney with State Senator Michael Morrissey, Michael Chinman of Milton and state Rep. Joseph Driscoll of Braintree.

Two other well-known local Democrats are on their party's ballot. That would be the two-candidate race between state representative Steve Tobin and city councillor John Keenan who are vying for the Democratic nomination for state senator. Tobin and Keenan both come from well-known political families in Quincy and have established grass-roots campaign organizations.

There's also the two-man race for the Democratic nomination in the 10th Congressional District to succeed retiring U.S. Representative William Delahunt. That contest features Norfolk County District Bill Keating who recently moved to Quincy and state Sen. Robert O'Leary from Barnstable.

There's only a handful of contested races on the Republican ballot. The one with the highest profile is for the GOP nomination for Congress in the 10th District. There are four names on the ballot: Robert Hayden III of Hanover, Raymond Kasperowicz of Cohasset, former State Treasurer Joseph Malone of Scituate and state Rep. Jeff Perry of Sandwich.

So, it will be interesting to see how many unenrolled voters decide to cast ballots on Primary Day. And what ballot they decide to take.

WE MENTIONED last week that the last day to register to vote in the Sept. 14 primary is Wednesday, Aug. 25. City Hall will be open until 8 p.m. that day.

Aug. 25 is also the last day for voters to change their party affiliation in time for the Sept. 14 primary. So, if you are a registered Republican and you want to vote in the Democratic primary, you have to change your party to Democrat or unenrolled by Aug. 25. Same for Democrats: those registered as Democrats who want to cast a ballot in the Republican primary must change to unenrolled or Republican by Aug. 25.

MORRISSEY

A van – what the campaign calls 'Morrissey Mobile' – with his familiar orange and black colors is making the rounds throughout the city and county. You can't miss it – it's mostly orange with black and white lettering on the side. Looks like a giant tomato.

"We use it for visibility and to transport signs and other campaign gear around the county," says Campaign Manager Brian Palmucci. "We have volunteers fighting over who gets to drive. People love to drive it around the county."

SAME NAME but two different people.

Sun readers have no doubt come across stories written by Joe Reardon as well as some photos taken by the same Joe Reardon.

Well, in last week's Sun, there was also a Joe Reardon identified in two photos. One appeared on Page 1 (Manet Community Health Center groundbreaking) and the other on Page 11 (Keohane Funeral Home Harvest Program.)

Confused?

Don't be.

There are two Joe Reardons.

THE SUN'S JOE REARDON

KEOHANE'S JOE REARDON

"Our" Joe Reardon is a staff writer who joined the paper last year. He's a veteran reporter and is a graduate of Braintree High School and Bridgewater State College. He's been a good friend of mine since our Little League days many moons ago. Our dads were friends too. Joe's father was Maurice Reardon, a longtime writer with The Patriot Ledger.

The "other" Joe Reardon is also a good friend -- he's a funeral director at Keohane Funeral Home. He's a member of the Quincy Lions Club and serves as a vice president of Manet Community Health's Board of Directors.

This situation can be confusing. It is for my BlackBerry. When Joe Reardon the writer calls me, the other Joe Reardon's photo shows up in my caller ID. (They are both my friends on Facebook.)

This isn't the first time that one of our staffers has had the same name as a community figure.

Years ago one of the Sun's photographers was named Tom Gorman. His time with the newspaper overlapped the time that another Tom Gorman was the fire chief. What made it confusing to some readers was Tom the photographer took photos at fire scenes. Some thought the city's fire chief was taking photos for this newspaper instead of overseeing a fire scene.

They were also a little confused when Tom took a photo of Tom at his swearing in as fire chief.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 real photo postcard published by George W. Peterson of Wollaston, proprietor of this grocery and provisions store on Quincy Shore Drive. Peterson is likely the man with the necktie and white apron in the center of the group posing for this picture. He operated this store only in the summer season, but he also had a year-round store in Wollaston Center on the site of today's Hancock Tavern. The building shown here was at the foot of Beach Street and it was built on pilings just a few years before the Boulevard was built. It sat on the south edge of Sachem Brook, which at the time was an estuary here that ran almost up to Billings Road. The brook was just to the right of the building with Stuarts Board yard on the other side of the brook. After prohibition ended, Mitchell's building was used as part of Elsie's Cafe on the corner of Beach Street at 685 Quincy Shore Drive. Today, this site is a parking lot for the Ocean Cove Condominiums on the corner of Vassall Street. The brook now runs through a pipe underground. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Addresses Issues Relative To The Track At Faxon Field

I would like to clear up a lot of the misinformation being reported by city hall, most recently in the Aug. 5th issue of The Quincy Sun.

Mayor Koch states the city has won all legal appeals along the way with regard to the track being placed on Faxon Field. This is incorrect. The environmental appeal was dismissed by the DEP, not because the city won, but because we chose not to submit professional testimony to the DEP.

The reasoning for this was because in a meeting with the DEP in December 2009, City Solicitor James Timmins offered to meet with us to reach an agreement beneficial to all parties regarding placing the track at Faxon Field. (This, I might add, was the first time both sides had actually met to discuss a solution. Up until this time the city had never approached us to see if we could find a solution). We felt we needed to place some level of trust in the city as a gesture of good faith to end the ongoing impasse and met with Mr. Timmins in January 2010.

The purpose of this meeting, between members of the parents4pageant group, area residents – including former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, environmentalists, and city solicitor James Timmins; was to pinpoint and address the obstacles to placing the track on Faxon Field in the Russell Park neighborhood.

This trust came at a cost because as soon as the DEP filed for a motion to dismiss the City stopped all discussions - forcing us to take the only option we had available to us; filing an appeal in Norfolk Superior Court. We have made every attempt to solve this issue; we have sent letters to all the councilors and informed them of the issues that must be addressed. Mayor Koch made public at the last school committee meeting that he will ask the council to vote on the funding for a track on Faxon Field in September. The City Council could help solve this impasse. Currently the funding for the track is allocated specifically to Pageant Field. If the council changes the allocation of funds to Faxon Field, they should do so only with specific stipulations and conditions, to which the City must comply. These would be the stipulations and the conditions previously discussed by us with the city, eliminating the need for continuing appeals. The issues the city needs to address are:

1. Reinstall equalization pipe to the project. This would drain off the swamp on the opposite side of Russell Park into the Faxon Field wetlands. In addition, the pipe would have a control valve in it that would allow someone to physically close off the pipe should excessive water begin to back-flow through it, filling the swamp under extreme weather conditions.

2. The Faxon Field wetlands should be restored, as nearly as possible, to its original state; removing the fill that was placed in the wetland in the past along with the phragmites. This in return would allow for more water storage capacity for the water that would be entering the wetlands from the Russell Park Equalization pipe.

3. This restoration and removal of the phragmites would also solve the issue of intransient (homeless) camps that frequent the area. Solving this issue is a positive for the city. We find these camps to be a safety issue for the children that attend the high school, the children that attend track meets, as well as the children who live and play in the neighborhood, not to mention any citizens or

6 Mayoral Candidates File Papers

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
1977
33 Years Ago

If you think the coming mayoralty contest is simply a race between those bitter rivals Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and Council President Arthur H. Tobin than you've got a little more thinking to do.

No less than six candidates for highest office in Quincy filed nomination papers before the Tuesday deadline.

In addition to LaRaia and Tobin, the mayoral candidates include attorneys George M. Tull and Thomas M. Barron, real estate man Leo J. Hannon and Thomas P. McHugh.

Councillors at-Large Paul Harold and John Quinn were seeking re-election, but the Ton vacancy has attracted six more candidates including Ward Six Councillor Dennis Harrington, School Committee member Frank McCauley, and former representative Joseph Brett.

The others are Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, retired State Police Captain Michael E. Faherty and student Carl A. Awed, Jr.

TOBIN CALLS FOR WEEKLY REPORT ON NQHS CONSTRCUTION PROGRESS

Council President Arthur H. Tobin has asked School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and Public Works Commissioner Paul N. Anderson to file a weekly, "List of accomplishments, progress and work schedule made toward the opening of North Quincy High School on time."

Tobin noted that the addition to the high school is "65 days behind schedule with nothing being shown at this point except hollow promises."

Commissioner Anderson flatly promised that students would be in the addition by Sept. 1, 1978.

The Spa At Boncaldo's Opens At 75R Beale Street

Mayor Thomas P. Koch and members of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce recently celebrated the grand opening of the Spa at Boncaldo's at an official ribbon cutting ceremony at 76R Beale St. in Wollaston.

Alyse and Philip Boncaldo, owners of The Spa at Boncaldo's, recognize the uniqueness of their facility and location. The Spa is set up with individual treatment rooms and the staff is licensed and experienced in identifying client issues. Treatments include products from the Image Skincare natural, botanically based product line coupled with beneficial essential oils for a more profound experience.

The Spa is located in the same Victorian age structure as Boncaldo's Gentlemen's Barbershop, which will be celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. According to Philip Boncaldo, a 30 year Master Barber at the adjacent Gentlemen's Shop, "Customers have been asking me about offering a reputable establishment for spa services for some time...and the time was right. We employ licensed, experienced personnel. The location is convenient for them before or after a haircut." Mr. Boncaldo is also quick to mention that The Spa offers services for women, too. "Friends, wives, girlfriends and mothers of customers are coming in for those special waxing, skin and massage treatments that they would have to make a separate appointment for. Now, while Little Joey is getting his haircut, they can see to their needs, which saves time all around."

The Spa at Boncaldo's is reasonably priced, to appeal to all age groups and service levels. Jill Rogers, their featured Esthetician, worked for many years in Harvard Square and still has a loyal following. Rogers specializes in brow "grooming" for men and brow "shaping" for women. A Signature Facial is offered at $50 and features the full cleansing, exfoliation, massage, mask and moisturizing. "One of our key areas is facial cleansing and acne in the pre-teen and mid-teen age group," adds Alyse Boncaldo, Esthetician and one of the owners of The Spa. "Oftentimes acne can be avoided or improved with proper cleansing techniques and natural products." The Spa features Image Skincare as their premier product line.

Kasia Ginter, The Spa at Boncaldo's Massage Therapist offers a variety of massage therapies ($65-90) to meet customer's needs. From Swedish, Deep Tissue and Thermal Stone massage to Therapeutic, Maternity and Pressure point specific, the client is re-assessed and managed at each session. A private steam room experience may round out the service.

The Spa's Manicure Specialist, Danielle Rizzitano is skilled in nail care (manicure and pedicure) as well as nail art with natural nails and Gel Colors. Gel is a stronger alternative to traditional color, lasting up to 2-3 weeks without chipping. Men are the Spa's best customers when asking about Pedicure services...they've reported enjoying the services in a setting which caters to them.

Unique to The Spa is a Hydromassage Bed. Fully clothed, the client receives the warm jets of 25 gallons of distilled heated water, soothing aching muscles. The settings are customizable by the client to target key areas. Priced at a seasonal special of monthly unlimited visits for $30, the Hydromassage Bed is a great deal.

The Spa at Boncaldo's is available for spa parties and special events, with menus customized to the group. Call them for a Mom's Night Out, Men's Night, or a fun alternative to dining with friends.

For additional information, contact Alyse or Philip Boncaldo, The Spa at Boncaldo's, 76R Beale Street, Wollaston, MA 02170, (617) 471-9515, www.boncaldos.com.

Fire Cost Recovery Plan OK'd

tightened up," said Palmucci who explained that he believed the previous proposal could have harmed "persons on a fixed income."

Councillor Joseph Finn questioned the new wording, describing his fears that situations, such as a blameless car fire, could result in higher insurance for the victim.

"My insurance rates are going to go up," said Finn while Palmucci suggested the insurance company would deny that claim.

Councillors approved several technical changes before passing the ordinance and Chief Barron agreed there would be no retroactive charges.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said it was important that monies from the cost recovery be earmarked solely for the fire department. This year's department's budget actually includes the $250,000 anticipated from a cost recovery plan.

The monies cannot be directly submitted to fire department without a revolving fund.

City Auditor Sue O'Connor said that $250,000 from cost recovery was budgeted would be transferred to the fire department before the end of the fiscal year, provided the department can collect that much.

However, Raymondi said every penny raised from the program should be directed to the department to provide "positive reinforcement" to firefighters and to enhance the department, which has been badly under-funded due to the economy.

As one example of budget woes, Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest told the chief she was disappointed with the number of brownouts in her ward, stating Engine 8 was "out on more occasions than I anticipated."

Raymondi, also, asked how the new funds would be collected from the insurance companies.

Chief Barron said he has already sought proposals from private companies for the program. A private contractor will be paid through a 20% charge subtracted from each claim before the city is paid.

The new ordinance lists the following charges under "Fire and Rescue Services Fees:" $500 for either Class A Engine or Arial; $600 for Rescue (Heavy); $300 for SSU; $400 for Hazmat; and $200 for Command Vehicle.

Suspected Craiglist Killer Deemed Suicide

Philip Markoff, the suspected 'Craigslist' killer, apparently committed suicide early Sunday morning in his cell at Boston's Nashua Street jail, according to Boston police.

According to Jake Wark, spokesman for Suffolk County District Attorney Dan Conley, a preliminary autopsy was conducted Monday, but the medical examiner had not released the findings.

The suspect, 22, had lived in Quincy's Highpoint apartments while studying medicine at Boston University. His trial was scheduled to begin in March.

Markoff was charged with the murder of Julissa Brisman, 25, during an attempted robbery at Boston's Marriott Hotel. He was also facing charges stemming from a robbery in Rhode Island.

During a search of Markoff's Quincy apartment, police discovered a gun and women's clothing allegedly connected to the victims as well as the computer used to contact his victims.

$151,000 Salary; Bumps And Roll-Ins Eliminated

Barron Signs 3-Year Contract

For the first time, the City has entered into a specific three-year contract with its fire chief that Mayor Thomas Koch says will provide a new measure of "transparency and accountability."

The contract will see Fire Chief Joseph Barron earn a salary of $151,000 that eliminates all roll-ins and other pay bumps that have traditionally been part of the packages earned by fire chiefs. The salary is about $10,000 less than what the Chief would have been had he remained a deputy chief.

"This contract shows what is expected of our chief, and it shows exactly what he is getting paid: The salary is the salary, and that's it," said Koch. "This is another measure of transparency and accountability that we believe is important for such a vital position as fire chief."

As Acting Fire Chief, made $135,000 in Fiscal Year 2010, and the new salary set for Fire Chief will be less than the salary of at least one deputy fire chief.

Human Resources Director Stephen McGrath said the new salary and contract set-up for the fire chief will "leave no question" about the responsibilities and compensation for the fire chief by eliminating complex salary add-ons such as education incentives that are always part of salary packages, but not previously reflected clearly in the City budget.

"This is a serious effort to make sure salary and responsibilities are spelled out clearly, and we believe is setting an example," McGrath said.

As part of the contract, Barron was paid $18,000 for time he served as Fire Chief but was paid less than he would've been as a deputy chief.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Off Campus Housing

Parents of college students will be motivating their children back out of the house, back to school, if they haven't already. Many students will be occupying off campus housing for their first time. While preoccupied with meeting the students' needs, and preparation for another school year, take a moment to consider and prepare for their safety as well.

Typically, colleges are quite proactive when it comes to life safety issues within campus dormitories. I can't speak for their involvement regarding privately owned off campus housing, while I can add some suggestions here for a safer school year while children are residing within these buildings. Therefore, let me convey a few words, which will focus on a few specific areas of off campus housing requiring some attention.

Make certain that there are working smoke detectors outside bedrooms, and at the base of stairwells. Heated smoke naturally rises, while stairwells can act as chimneys funneling smoke upwards. The base of stairwells is then a practical location for early notification of a smoke condition on another level. In multifamily dwellings, smoke detectors should be present within common hallways to alert residents of a smoke condition within another unit of the building. Smoke detectors are essential for survival in the event of a household fire, make certain the student is adequately protected with their presence.

I suggest a carbon monoxide detector be placed outside of bedrooms as well. Our Nicole's Law is quite specific requiring CO detectors on each habitable level, while I can't speak for the requirements, if any, in other states. Carbon monoxide is colorless, tasteless, odorless and deadly, so consideration for detection should be made prior to moving into housing.

Consider purchasing a 2 ½ or 5 lb fire extinguisher rated for all types of fires, labeled A,B&C should the student need to extinguish a small fire. Their use must accompany caution. A fire extinguisher should be located adjacent to an exit from a room or building and used to extinguish small fires, and only if it can be used safely.

All exits must be clear of storage and obstruction. Remember, in an emergency, windows can be used in the event that secondary egress is required, especially if they afford access to roofs. Therefore, make certain windows can easily open and encourage the student to develop his own evacuation plan from the building. Taking the time to proactively visualize his or her options evacuating the building in the event of a household fire might be energy well spent. The time to do so isn't during an actual emergency.

Occupying bedrooms within a basement or attic without adequate secondary means of egress is hazardous and must be avoided. You can contact the building department within a city or town to confirm the legitimacy of a basement or attic unit. Adequate secondary means of egress from a bedroom or apartment is essential during an emergency, anything less is unacceptable.

Candles, their use being so popular with students, must not be left unattended. Keep them a safe distance from combustibles while they should be inaccessible to pets. Do not leave lit candles unattended! 60% of candle fires start by being left unattended and forgotten.

If you or others smoke, accidental ignition of upholstered furniture and mattresses is the leading cause of residential deaths throughout the United States. Smoking with alcohol use exacerbates this problem. If you must smoke, please do so responsibly.

Finally, cooking is the leading cause of residential fires, while unattended cooking is the leading behavioral factor. Do not leave cooking unattended as well.

With all that parents and students have to think about while preparing to emigrate to cities throughout this country, off campus housing safety might not be at the forefront of their efforts at this moment. I therefore suggest that some consideration and preparation be given to this subject to assure a safer college year. Thank you for doing so.

Legal Decision Expected On Quincy College President Vote

City Solicitor James Timmins said Monday that he and the Quincy College attorneys would announce their decision Wednesday on the legality of the current Board of Governors and their June 14 vote for president.

The 11-member board has been trying unsuccessfully to move forward since that vote which has been challenged by three members who have cited the college's charter requirements for residency.

At the time of the vote, the board included more than four persons who do not live in Quincy in violation of the college charter which limits the number of non-residents to four. The charter, also, includes the requirement that one member be a graduate of the college.

Last week, Timmins told the board that officials in the state attorney general's office refused to issue an opinion. Subsequently, board members asked Timmins to solve the impasse with a definitive decision.

Timmins planned to meet Monday with attorneys from Murphy, Lamere and Murphy who have represented the college to date.

Attorney Michelle McNulty has stated that the June 14 vote was valid despite the residency issue because the board acted as a defacto board. However, McNulty also said that the board had to solve the residency question before any future votes.

On Tuesday, Timmins was mum the legal issues. The attorneys must decide whether an apartment lease, a car or voter registration, taxes or a driver's license determines residency.

College president Sue Harris said that she plans to stay on board until a new president is appointed and she will help the new president during the transition.

Planning Board OKs Office Building In West Quincy

Officials Optimistic Traffic Issues Can Be Worked Out For Proposed Head Start Early Learning Center

By JOE REARDON

Traffic flow around the proposed Head Start Early Learning Program Center location at the site of the former Saint Joseph's School in Quincy Point proved to be the major concern of the planning board during a public hearing last Wednesday night.

The board and Head Start officials believe the concerns can be ironed out, which would pave the way for the early childhood program. The building, located at 22 Pray Street, will begin with an enrollment of 200 children and eventually expand to no more than 240.

The center, which is expected to open in the fall of 2011, will have 32,000 square feet of early childhood space, including 16 classrooms for up to 240 toddlers and preschoolers. It will serve Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton and Hull. The center will consolidate three other Head Start locations.

The board unanimously voted to keep the public hearing open with another date to be scheduled sometime in September.

QPAC Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo said she was pleased the planning board and QPAC are on the same page regarding the new school. "We have a lot of detailed information and we look forward to providing it," she said. "We're very excited. We're thrilled that we can have children in there again."

Construction will include repairing building deficiencies including addition of an elevator, replacing the roof, refurbishing current classrooms, adding bathrooms, redesigning the existing gym to add 4,400 square feet needed for classrooms.

The project will also create 150 construction-related jobs. The total development cost for acquisition and renovation are estimated to be $7 million. Approximately $5 million of that total will be for construction-related costs. The kitchen will be renovated and a playground built. Twenty-two parking spots and a pair of handicapped accessible spaces will also be added.

Planning board member James Fay expressed concerns with the potential for traffic tie ups during the busiest times of the day when children would be arriving and departing. "My concern always is the people who live there and how it affects them," Fay said.

Half of the children attending the school will arrive by bus and the other half by car. Of the 120 arriving by car, nine families have siblings attending.

The starting time is staggered to limit congestion in the area. The earliest classes begin at 7:15 am and the latest start at 11:30 am. The busiest time in the afternoon falls between 1:30-4 pm.

One million dollars in federal funding for the project was secured earlier in the year through the work of U.S. Rep. William Delahunt. The check was presented to the Quincy Community Action Program (QCAP) by Delahunt and Mayor Tom Koch at the school back in March.

QCAP Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo said the Saint Joseph's School is an ideal location for the Head Start program because much of the interior is already in place. "This is a perfect location for us," she said.

The area outside of the school will undergo an overhaul that will include a new curb cut that will allow garbage trucks to back in near the dumpster, the removal of hard surface with 15 new trees and shrubs. Two 14-foot-high lights will shine down in the parking area. The school's original draining system is still functioning well and does not need to be replaced.

QCAP board member Josephine Shea told the planning board that Mayor Koch has been supportive of the program from the start and believes the issues with the traffic will be worked out. Shea also commended Delahunt for his efforts in securing the funding.

"Having his (Delahunt) support and Mayor Koch's support is great," said Shea.

Timothy Macklin, who is also on the board, echoed Shea's feelings and expressed his faith in both the QPAC and planning boards. "We will be responsive in dealing with these traffic issues," said Macklin. "We have a responsive board here that will take care of things."

In other planning board business, the surge of construction within the city continues as the planning board gave the go-ahead with a unanimous vote for a 2-1/2-story office building in West Quincy.

The proposal by Galvin Commercial Holdings calls for the construction of a 14,000-square foot building at 104 Quarry Street with a proposed total of 143 parking spaces. The building will be adjacent to the Son's of Italy hall.

Blasting away ledge won't be required for the project and four catch basins will be added to prevent the possibility of flooding," according to Jim Burke, an engineer for Galvin. It will most likely be a medical building occupied with no more than three businesses according to Burke.

The thick vegetation in the area, which is home to varied wildlife, will not be altered during the building's construction. Work on the building is expected to take about six months.

'Where In The World Is John Adams?' Monday

Michael Lepage will portray John Adams as he discusses his life and composes the letter that he will forward to his family in Braintree from Philadelphia on Aug. 23, 1777 this Monday, Aug. 23 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at 133-141 Franklin St., Quincy.

Monday's program is entitled "Where in the World is John Adams?"

Lepage will offer an intimate look at the now-famous correspondence between delegate to the Continental Congress John Adams and his "dearest friend," his wife Abigail. Their letter provides a sometimes heartbreaking, often amusing, and always inspirational record of events that shaped the life and times of this truly American family and the new American nation they helped to create.

Lepage is an ardent study of history and a devotee of John Adams who portrays Adams and other "founding fathers" for appreciative audiences at Adams National Historical Park and other venues in the state.

★ ★ ★ On The Campaign Trail - State Election 2010 ★ ★ ★

With the campaign season underway for this fall's state election, The Quincy Sun will publish, from time to time and when space is available, press releases submitted from candidates and their committees.

Keenan Supports Responsible Casino Gaming Legislation

Democratic candidate for State Senate John F. Keenan said he supports expanded gaming in Massachusetts, but not slot parlors.

"The people of Massachusetts already spend hundreds of millions of dollars every year at casinos, they should have the the option of spending those dollars in their home state," said Keenan. "However, while destination casinos can be part of a diverse and healthy state economy, studies have shown that slot parlors often have a negative economic impact."

After several years of debate, the Legislature on the final day of formal sessions this year approved an expanded gaming bill that would have legalized three destination resort casinos and slot parlors at two of the state's racetracks. The bill was rejected by Gov. Deval Patrick who said he would only approve a bill calling for one slot parlor.

"Legalizing casino gambling would create thousands of construction jobs as well as thousands of permanent positions for people working at the casinos," said Keenan, "but the job creation benefits of destination casinos do not apply to allowing slots at existing racetracks."

Keenan said his support for casinos would be dependent on a strong regulatory structure that protects the integrity of the industry and the interests of taxpayers.

"We must ensure that there is no revolving door between those serving in government and those involved in the casino industry, and we must seek to guarantee the maximum amount of revenue for the taxpayers of the Commonwealth," he said.

Keenan also pointed out that studies show casinos and slot parlors often cause a loss of economic activity in neighboring areas.

"The combination of three destination casinos and two slot parlors impacts too many communities and would oversaturate the market immediately," said Keenan.

"Appropriately located destination casinos alone, not slot parlors, provide the Commonwealth with the best opportunity to safeguard the interests of the communities that host them, minimize the impact on neighboring communities, as well as attract business from out-of-state players.

Keenan said as the state continues to address important issues such as casino gambling that it is important for elected officials to send a clear mesage on where they stand.

"My position on expanding gaming will remain consistent: I support appropriately located and strictly regulated destination resort casinos, and I oppose slot parlors," he said.

Keating Endorsed By Professional Fire Fighters Of Massachusetts

Candidate for the 10th Congressional District Bill Keating has been endorsed by the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts, a statewide union representing more than 12,000 firefighters from 200 fire departments throughout the Commonwealth.

The endorsement cited Keating's long history as an advocate for public and fire safety throughout his entire political career.

"Bill Keating has always been on our side," said Robert McCarthy, president of the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts. "He has always shown a dedication to fire safety for the citizens of the state, and a dedication to the safety of firefighters. We are proud to support him in his race for Congress."

As a legislator, Keating sponsored several pieces of fire-safety legislation. One law calls for the installation of automatic sprinkler systems in every high-rise building in Massachusetts built before 1975, as the law at the time only required buildings constructed after 1975 to install automatic sprinkler systems. This legislation was the first of its kind to appear in any state.

Keating also wrote the law providing that homes must have working smoke detectors when being bought or sold - a law that has prevented untold property damage and loss of life by making smoke detectors standard equipment in most residences.

"I am honored to receive the support of the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts," said Keating. "I've worked very closely with these brave men and women in the past in order to make Massachusetts a safer place for firefighters and citizens alike. I am grateful they are giving me the chance to continue to represent them in Washington."

As Norfolk District Attorney, Keating helped to establish the Norfolk Firewall Partnership, a community coalition to help address and prevent youth fire setting, which accounts for more than half of the arrests for arson of youth under the age of 18.

The program provides classroom training and intervention to stop fire setting behavior as part of any court sentence for youths involved in arson charges. Since it was implemented, the program continues to enhance public safety, promote early intervention and accountability, and provide appropriate services for children, families and communities.

And as District Attorney, Keating worked with fire and police officials to form the Autism and Law Enforcement Educational Coalition, which provides training for first responders designed to prevent the misunderstandings and unique circumstances that can come about when first responders are called to help citizens on the autism spectrum.

Roos: Failure To Pass The Casino Bill Means No Jobs, No Revenue

(Editor's Note: The name of the Speaker of the House of Representatives was misidentified in the following press release published in last week's Quincy Sun.

The error was made by The Quincy Sun and not by Karl Roos, an Independent candidate for state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District.

The Sun regrets the error and apologizes to Mr. Roos.

Here is the press release again with the correction.)

Karl Roos, Independent candidate for state representative, said he is disappointed by the failure to pass a casino bill on Beacon Hill.

"I am disappointed in the results," Roos said. "We, the people of the state, will bear the cost of that decision. This will result in no new jobs being created."

House Speaker Robert DeLeo and Gov. Deval Patrick both agreed to license three casinos but disagreed on allowing slot machines at race tracks. DeLeo was in favor of allowing slot machines; his district covers Revere and Winthrop - areas close to Suffolk Downs and Wonderland, Roos pointed out.

"In case the Speaker and the Governor did not notice, there is not a lot of new construction going on. Many hard working people in the trades have been out of work with little prospects of returning any time soon," Roos said.

"A resolution of the Casino Bill would have provided three considerable sized private construction projects for the state. This would have resulted in much needed jobs for the trades.

"The importance of those jobs," Roos continued, "is not just in the weekly paychecks but would allow the workers to accumulate the necessary hours to qualify for health care coverage for the year."

Licenses fees for the casinos could be $75-$50 million per casino. Commenting on potential revenue from the licenses for the casinos, Roos said, "While state revenue from actual gaming at the casinos is several years out, the state could have benefited this year from the millions of dollars generated from the sale of the licenses for the three casinos. I do not foresee the economy turning around any time soon.

"I think that we are going to need that money before the year is out," he added.

As for the merits of legalized gambling in Massachusetts, Roos said, "We have to be pragmatic. We practically already have legalized gambling here. Between the Lottery, scratch tickets, daily games, Keno, Bingo and the buses leaving regularly from Quincy Center or North Quincy to Mohegan Sun and Foxwoods, gambling is already available to us.

"The failure to pass this bill does not change any of that."

Roos also expressed his frustration. "It is shameful that both the potential jobs and revenue for the state have been lost in this economic environment. The priority for the Legislature should be to provide and encourage job creation, to get people working again."

Addresses Issues Relative To The Track At Faxon Field

seniors that would wish to make use of the track. This change would also catalyze the re-beautification of the area, which would complete the entire site from Southern Artery to Woodward Ave.

4. The city, in conjunction with the restoration of the wetlands, should inspect the pipe which flows through the wetlands on Faxon Field from Edgewood Circle in addition to the storm drains and pipes in the area from Woodward Ave to Southern Artery and Cedar Place, using the camera equipment the city already has for the inspection. This would be done to pinpoint and repair any problems, such as blocked drains, crushed or damaged pipes, that would prohibit or restrict water flow. There must be regular inspection of the drains to prevent sediment build up.

5. The city should also address the amount and speed of the traffic that goes between Hancock St. and Southern Artery during track events by disallowing on-street parking by track event attendees in the neighborhood during track events.

6. We also request that Russell Park be labeled as a school zone with signage referring to it as such, a speed limit of no greater than 20 miles per hour be applied to the road along with enforcement of the speed limit.

7. We also requested that the large trees along southern artery remain standing to continue the canopy effect when the trees are in full bloom. These trees are also beneficial to absorption of water.

8. We requested that the city not erect a permanent fence around the site; effectively denying access to the general public at any time.

These requests that were discussed with the city are in no way unrealistic or unobtainable.

The Equalization pipe that was meant to run under Russell Park must be added back into the project to allow the drainage of the swamp behind the houses on Southern Artery into the wetlands on Faxon, but with that comes an approximate half city block of roughly 5 to 6 feet depth of water. This is why it is imperative that the city remove the fill that is in the Faxon field wetland by restoring it and allowing for more water storage capacity. This, by the way, was a mandatory condition added to the project by the city's conservation commission and agreed to by Mr. Timmins. The reason the Equalization pipe was removed from the project was because during the environmental review with the DEP, we asked that the city do a hydrological study on the swamp to ensure that placing the pipe would not cause adverse affects to the houses that border it. We also wanted to make sure that there was enough water storage in the Faxon Field wetlands to compensate for the amount of water that would be taken in from the swamp. The city did not want to conduct the study and removed it from review of the DEP. City ordinance requires that the pipe be installed. The city, by refusing to comply with the ordinance, forced us to file an appeal in court.

I personally do not want to continue to prevent the construction of the track, but we cannot sit by idly and allow the construction to take place at the risk of negative actions to the neighborhood. I understand politically it may not be in the best interest of the Mayor to approve restoring the wetlands along with the track project because of the perception that the cost of the track would exceed prior statements made by the Mayor and his administration; that a track at Faxon would be cheaper to build. However, we cannot make decisions like this based on politics. The raw fact is this is a neighborhood that in the past has had little to no representation.

Our area, the neighborhoods surrounding Faxon Field, have long suffered flooding issues, not only during heavy rains, but the tidal effects, run off from higher level areas, and even moderate rainfall affects us detrimentally. Our problems are real. We need this situation addressed by the Council, if not by the mayor. The city, in years past, has allowed construction in areas such as Ballou St, Sheldon St, and Alrick Rd; areas that our current Mayor stated that if he were mayor during the construction of those areas, he never would have allowed the construction to take place because of the flooding issues in those areas. (This was stated at the neighborhood meeting at the Common Market after the recent spring time flooding of those areas.) Now, there is proposed construction in our neighborhood, a neighborhood already besieged by flooding and drainage issues, with wetlands practically surrounding us. Construction of a track at Faxon Field without adequately addressing and resolving our existing drainage (or rather non-drainage) issues holds severe consequences. Our city has seen the effect of not addressing these issues in years past. It should not continue to ignore these issues in building Quincy's future.

In closing the city has had every opportunity to resolve this issue over the last three years and has chosen not to address any concern brought to them by the people of the city. I find it quite hypocritical for the Mayor to continually vilify the people who have fought tirelessly to insure the project is done in a manner that is satisfactory to all involved, especially when the Mayor himself has not engaged in any conversation whatsoever in an attempt to rectify the ongoing stalemate. Instead he makes statements like "as you know each step of the way, there have been objections filed by citizens holding up the process."

But what he fails to mention is the reason we have filed countless objections; because he has ignored all suggestions for a compromise. However, this does not mean that we are not willing to entertain and enter into an agreement should the city want to reengage where it left off its discussions in January 2010.

Family Autism Center Honors White Family As Volunteer Of The Year

The White family of Quincy – Roger, Andrea, Julia and Roger, Jr. – were recently honored as volunteers of the year at South Norfolk County Arc (SNCARC) located in Westwood.

The White family was honored for its commitment and dedication to the Family Autism Center at SNCARC.

In August, 2009, the Whites raised over $18,000 for the SNCARC Family Autism Center at the First Annual White's Family Fundraiser. The funds directly benefit children and young adults diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorders. Programs funded with the monies raised include: social skills groups for children ages 3-12; community outing trips for adults, family fund day events where entire families access various community activities; bowling groups, cooking classes, open houses at local fire and police departments; parent workshops regarding guardianship, estate planning and special needs trusts; residential and work opportunities for adults, basic rights; support groups for parents, grandparents and siblings.

Roger White, Sr. also volunteers as a trainer for the Autism and Law Enforcement Education Coalition (ALEC) at SNCARC Family Autism Center. ALEC trains First Responders (including police officers, fire fighters, EMTs, nurses, probation officers and other court room personnel) on appropriate intervention strategies involving individuals diagnosed with autism or other developmental disabilities in crisis situations.

In the past seven years, ALEC has trained over 10,000 First Responders throughout Massachusetts and helped countless individuals who have found themselves in need of emergency assistance.

The Whites will host their second annual White's Family Fundraiser Saturday, Aug. 21 from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Beachcomber, 797 Quincy Shore Dr., Quincy.

There will be raffles and silent auction prizes, along with live music and refreshments.

All proceeds will benefit the many aforementioned programs at the SNCARC Family Autism Center.

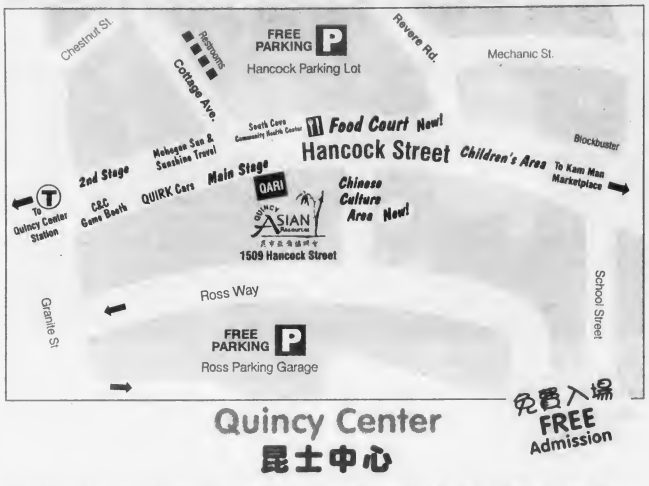
Over 10,000 Expected At August Moon Festival Sunday



The 23rd Annual Quincy August Moon Festival will take place Sunday, Aug. 22nd from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Quincy Center, 1400 to 1600 Hancock St.

This year's festival, the largest of its kind on the South Shore, will bring together Asian and non-Asian families from the Greater Boston Area to celebrate diversity and community unity.

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., a non-profit organization serving the needs of the Asian-American community, organizes the festival every year in honor of the popular August Moon holiday. "Our aim each year has been to inform and educate the community about the rich traditions that characterize the celebration of this festival and our culture," says Kim Chan, co-chair of the event. "We want to emphasize the theme of 'Love, Care and Family' this year to recognize the respect with which people treat each other within the community."

In addition to the new theme, this year's festival will feature a Chinese cultural area complete with art demonstrations, poetry readings, and craft-making classes. There will be lively music and dance performances, watermelon eating contests, and activities for all ages, including children and seniors. Local restaurants will serve international cuisine, and more than a hundred vendors composed of businesses and community organizations will participate.

The festival is made possible by Grand Sponsors State Street and the City of Quincy, with the support of more than 150 volunteers. Over 10,000 people are expected to attend the festival. It is a five-minute walk away from the Quincy Center T station, and free parking will be available.

Asbestos Removal Will Not Delay Parkway Construction

Asbestos material was discovered by demolition crews within floors that had been covered over multiple times by subsequent floors installed over the life of the building, and it was not discovered during the original assessment of the building.

Asbestos, a fibrous mineral formed of magnesium silicate, is used for fireproofing, electrical insulation, building materials, brake linings, and chemical filters. The small fibers can cause cancer when lodged in the lungs.

The state Department of Environmental Protection is closely monitoring the clean-up, which is expected to add about $1 million to the cost of demolition and slow down demolition by roughly 6 weeks, according to state officials.

Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele said the material poses no public health threat, as none of the material is airborne.

All of the material will be collected by workers wearing protective suits, and will be bagged and transported off-site immediately once removed according to state and federal clean-up guidelines. Air monitoring will be conducting throughout the removal process, and the DEP will shut down the site if problems arise, officials said.

There are no changes in plans for this weekend's August Moon Festival, and the City is working with organizers to ensure the annual event runs smoothly.

The Concourse is expected to be completed next year, providing a link from the Southeast Expressway to several neighborhoods in Quincy in what the City has long believed will end much of the traffic bottleneck in the heart of Quincy Center today.

The road is also viewed as a vital cornerstone to the City's $1 billion redevelopment plans for Quincy Center.

ing the Appellant.

"This may be reasonably inferred from the three relatives of the Mayor (William Phelan) who were promoted from this one certified eligibility list, two of whom were ranked below the Appellant of that list."

Turowski declined to disclose his plans to act on the decision, but did cite his loss of back pay, his attorney's fees, and the need to adjust his seniority.

"Hopefully, I'll be promoted," Turowski said, adding, "It's the right thing to do."

The city has 30 days to appeal the commission's findings.

As of Monday, Mayor Thomas Koch had not announced his decision. His spokesman Christopher Walker stated that Koch "will be discussing it with the legal team and the Police Chief Paul Keenan to determine a final resolution of this matter.

"The Mayor," Walker continued, "is proud of the work the Quincy Police perform on a daily basis to protect our residents and the great work that Chief (Paul) Keenan has done to more the department forward beyond these issues of the past."

Former Mayor Phelan declined to comment specifically on the decision, but suggested that reporters consider the dissenting opinion submitted by Civil Service Commission Christopher Bowman.

"There is nothing in the record to show that the two police chiefs who served on the panel were biased or influenced by improper motives...."

Bowman also cited several instances during which Turowski exhibited anger and "became loud and hostile."

"While the record establishes that relatives of then-Mayor Phelan were promoted to the position of lieutenant, this alone does not show that the decision to bypass the Appellant was not justified."

A member of the police force since 1983, Turowski and his wife live in Houghs Neck. He was promoted to sergeant in 1993, placed third on the Civil Service list in 2005 and was one of 15 eligible for the seven positions. Phelan eventually appointed eight lieutenants.

The commission report states "Six of the candidates selected for appointment were ranked below the Appellant (Turowski) on the above-referenced Certification."

Turowski is also a cancer survivor and the commission determined that, at one point, the police interviews focused unfairly on his medical problems.

The decision states, "... there had never been even an insinuation of the Appellant's (Turowski) misuse of sick leave.... Chief (Robert) Crowley deliberately created this uncomfortable situation....."

Former Police Chief Robert Crowley could not be contacted prior to The Quincy Sun's deadline Tuesday.

At Renovated Warehouse At Former Shipyard

Sting Rays Headed Here

By JOE REARDON

Dozens of Cow-nosed Sting Rays will be moved from the New England Aquarium to the off-site holding area for sea mammals in renovated Warehouse No. 1 at the former Fore River Shipyard.

The medium-sized Rays, which are common to the mid-Atlantic, will be moved to the shipyard in late August while a new shark and ray tank is built at the aquarium. They'll then be relocated back to the aquarium next summer.

The New England Aquarium has been leasing the 23,000 square-foot building since January. The holding site includes between 20-30 tanks, the largest being a 30-foot diameter structure. The facility also includes loading, work zones and exam rooms. Between 50-250 sea turtles will be quarantined at the site later this month.

The 30-foot tank currently has water running through it to make sure the system is operational. It also enables the natural biological agents to build up to levels crucial to sea life.

"Everything's pretty much on schedule," said Tony LaCasse, spokesman for the New England Aquarium. "It's in the final stages."

In late autumn, 50-250 sea turtles will be quarantined. They become stranded on Cape Cod beaches because of hypothermia. The facility will offer the complex and lengthy medical treatment the turtles require.

The marine animal rescue team rescues and rehabilitates stranded, injured and diseased marine animals from along the Massachusetts and New Hampshire coast. The animals include whales, dolphins, porpoises and seals.

The Quincy Point Congregational Church donated $500 to the facility and will continue to collect funds to build the sea turtle rescue and rehabilitation facility. Sea turtles are among many forms of marine life that have died as a result of the Gulf oil spill. "Stewardship of the earth is part of their Christian mission," LaCasse said.

Back in January Senator Bill Delahunt said the addition of the holding area was just one of another face-lifts the city is undergoing. "This is an exciting movement for the city," he said. "In the future, students in the city will have the opportunity to come witness the mammals and fish.

"It's a good moment for this city and this region,"

Mayor Thomas Koch welcomed the collaboration. "We are thrilled to welcome the New England Aquarium, a beloved and important institution to our entire region for decades and now another example that the City of Quincy is working hard to create new jobs and spur economic growth at the shipyard and beyond," said Koch.

Walter Flaherty, the aquarium's chief operating officer and treasurer, said the facility would be built in phases over the next several years. Locations in Charlestown, South Boston and East Boston were considered before the shipyard was picked. He said it was a good central spot because of its closeness to Boston and the accessibility to salt water.

"This is going to be very animal intensive," said Flaherty. "This is a critical facility for us. It adds much needed flexibility for our rescue team."

These rays will be the one of the main species that will be on exhibit in the Aquarium's new shark and ray touch tank that will open in the spring of 2011. Sam Cheng Photo

It's Hard to Let Go of Parent's House

Q. About a year ago, I sold my mother's home to a friend of my daughter's. It is a well-built old farmhouse with a couple of acres and lots of history. My parents added all sorts of personal touches in and around the house, as my father loved woodworking. I've visited a few times since then, and I don't like what my friend is doing to the house. The woodworking shop is filled with junk, some custom shelves were painted over, and he and his three kids don't keep things very clean. I'm not happy about this. What can I do to get him to take better care of the house? – Jim H., Gardner, N.H.

A. In a word – nothing. You sold the house lock, stock and barrel, and the new owner can do pretty much whatever he wants with it.

It sounds like you, or your daughter, has maintained a friendship with the owner. Broaching this subject – that you're not happy with the home's upkeep – could strain or break that relationship.

Probably the best you can do is keep telling stories about the house when you visit. Like, "my mother used that shelf there to put up jam." Or a little bit about the history of the woodwork installed around the house. The new owner probably will appreciate knowing more about the place -- if not now, in the future -- and might develop a sense that he should preserve some of that history.

Then again, he may not. It's entirely his decision.

O'Donnell Releases Quarterly Real Estate Activity Report

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell has released a report on real estate activity in Norfolk County for the quarter ending June 30, 2010.

The Registry's electronic recording program continued to expand with the quarter seeing 990 documents recorded for 66 different accounts.

The total dollar volume of real estate sales in Norfolk County for the quarter period from April, 2010 through June, 2010 stood at $1.5 billion. This represents a 54% increase from the comparable period last year.

The total number of 4,106 deeds recorded during the period also increased, though by the smaller margin of 13%. This increase includes the closings that occurred in the quarter in response to the first time home buyer tax credit which was scheduled to expire on June 30.

The average sale price of deeds over $1,000 (both residential and commercial properties) increased to $559,619, an increase of 19% over the same quarter in 2009. This increase is probably a reflection of the transfer of some larger commercial properties and may not necessarily be an indication that residential prices increased over 2009's April to June quarter.

Foreclosure deeds continue to come into the Registry and were up 96% over last year to a total of 241.

The slower mortgage refinance market translated to a decline in mortgage recording activity by 38% on a year to year basis with 7,922 new mortgages being recorded in the quarter.

Total mortgage value for the quarter stood at just over $5.3 billion.

"It is important to note," O'Donnell said, "that this total mortgage value amount does not necessarily represent the true increase in indebtedness as some mortgages may be recorded multiple times against different parcels of land, are refinances simply replacing existing debt, or are recorded to secure equity credit lines which may not be drawn to their capacity.

Total document recordings for the quarter had to measure against particularly strong 2009 mortgage refinancing recordings, but the total did recover some in June so that the quarter as a whole showed total document recordings declining by just 22%.

The Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Hundreds of thousands of Registry land records back to 1793 are already available for on-line viewing. The on-line index has grown to include records back to 1920 while the Register continues to expand indexing capacity to include earlier records.

The Registry of Deeds can be contacted via telephone at 781-461-6101.

Affordable Ways To Make Your New House Feel Like Home

(ARA) - You know that moving into a new home can be one of life's biggest stressors - the packing, the paperwork, the unpacking, finding the nearest coffee shop ... even though numbers are down, 35.2 million Americans changed residences in 2008, according to a report by the U.S. Census Bureau. There are many ways to make your new house feel like home sooner than later, according to interior design faculty at The Art Institutes.

"Incorporating items with personal meaning, such as memorabilia or a special collection, can make your new place feel less like a stranger's house and more like your home," says Annette Lawrence, academic director of the Interior Design program at The Art Institute of Ohio - Cincinnati. Lawrence describes the concept of "adaptive re-use," an easy, inexpensive way to create a "sense of place" - in other words, making your new house the place in which you feel most comfortable - home.

Adaptive re-use involves bringing items from your previous residence to your new home, but with the twist of adapting them for a different or new use. Adaptive re-use is affordable, ecologically responsible and helps ease the psychological stresses that come with moving into a new, unfamiliar space. Adaptive re-use also involves using items from local design consignment shops. Such establishments can now be found in most towns and carry items ranging from furniture to window treatments and accessories.

Some examples of adaptive re-use:

* Same item, same use - The entry rug from your old house goes in the entryway of the new house.

* Same item, different location - Your living room furniture from your old home becomes your family room furniture in your new place.

* Same item, new use - You use the fabric from a window treatment to upholster your dining room chairs.

"Mies van der Rohe's old adage, 'less is more,' certainly holds true here," says Jackie Barry, interior design instructor at The Art Institute of Houston - North, a branch of The Art Institute of Houston. "Select significant pieces of furniture and art to move. You don't need to have or show everything you have all in one room."

Barry also advises incorporating a concept called biophilic design, which recognizes the inherent need of humans to interact and affiliate with nature to achieve and maintain optimum health and well-being.

A Commonsense Time To Buy A Home

(NAPSA)-America is experiencing a conjunction between very affordable home prices and historically low mortgage rates that hasn't been seen for at least 50 years. Since nobody knows how long this will last, today's market is a rare buying opportunity for working families with stable incomes and good credit.

Unfortunately, many of these families may be sitting on the sidelines, says Freddie Mac senior vice president Paul Mullings, because they are unsure about the new rules of the road for getting a mortgage.

To qualify for an affordable, conforming, conventional mortgage in today's market, Mullings says borrowers should have:

- A stable income;
- A good credit history;
- A commonsense down payment; generally about 5 percent for a conventional, conforming mortgage (fortunately, there are down payment programs for qualified borrowers);
- Documentation-responsible lenders today will want documentation verifying income (like W-2 forms, tax returns), employment, your latest credit reports, and assets such as bank statements to verify savings.

The lender must also obtain an impartial third-party appraisal complying with tough new rules to verify the house you want will secure the mortgage you need to buy it.

Borrowers still unsure about the new rules can ask a reputable lender to prequalify them for a mortgage. Think of a prequalification letter almost like a driver's permit that can:

- Confirm you can qualify for a mortgage;
- Tell you how much you can expect to borrow;
- Make you a stronger home shopper, since sellers won't have to worry about whether you can qualify for a mortgage.

During the prequalification process, the lender will review your credit, financial and employment information after you fill out an application and provide documentation. (There may be an application fee.) While mortgage prequalifications are only good for a limited time, they are still worth getting. Even though you will need to apply for a mortgage once you find a house to buy, your prequalification letter helps clear the way by telling home sellers you're road tested for the most affordable mortgage market in 50 years.

Weighing The Costs Of Walking Away From An Upside-Down Mortgage

(ARA) - Owing more on your mortgage than your house is worth may seem like a bad investment. But the alternative - choosing to default on your mortgage even if you can afford the monthly payments - will take a significant toll on your credit rating.

While it may seem like a good move to simply stop paying and walk away from a bad investment, keep several factors in mind when you consider strategic default:

* It's very final. Strategic default will lead to foreclosure by the lender. Foreclosure will negatively impact your credit report and scores. In fact, only bankruptcy will affect your scores more adversely than foreclosure.

* The default will remain on your credit report for seven years. Since credit scores are based on information in your credit report, the foreclosure will greatly impact your credit scores during those seven years. Securing other credit at reasonable terms and rates will be very difficult, if not impossible, during that time.

* Potential lenders aren't the only ones looking at credit reports these days. Insurers, employers and even cell phone companies are considering the creditworthiness of those who want to do business with them. By impacting your credit report, a strategic default may affect your ability to get a job, secure insurance and enter into important service contracts.

* Fannie Mae, the government-controlled mortgage giant, announced on June 23 policy changes that will make you ineligible for a new Fannie-Mae-backed mortgage if you walk away from a current mortgage that you actually could afford to pay. The ineligibility will last for seven years from the date of foreclosure.

* Finally, in some cases, the debt that foreclosure "erases" may be recorded as income, which means you will have to pay taxes on it.

Reducing Sources Of Indoor Pollution

(NAPSA)-If you like to think of your home as a safe haven to escape pollution, you may want to take a deep breath before stepping through your front door.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), indoor pollution levels are two to five times greater than those found in the outdoor air.

While this can be a serious problem for those suffering from asthma, allergies or emphysema, it's not healthy for anyone, especially small children. Because they breathe in 50 percent more air per pound of body weight than adults, children are more vulnerable to the effects of pollution.

Efforts to rid your home of dust, dirt and allergens could even make things worse, as many poorly sealed and filtered bagless vacuums add to the pollution by releasing lung-damaging particles back into the air.

Here are a few tips to help reduce indoor air pollution.

- Properly maintain heating, ventilating and air-conditioning systems, changing filters regularly.
- Use only nontoxic household detergents and cleaning agents.
- Open the windows when weather permits.
- Clean up water leaks that can lead to the formation of mold.
- Choose a vacuum cleaner with a filtering dustbag and reputation for providing superior dust retention and filtration. Bagless vacuum cleaner bins can be an environmental hazard when emptied into the garbage. Dust poured from a bin emits fine particles back into the air. That's also true for any open bag that's pushed into a garbage bag.

A BAGLESS VACUUM can contribute to indoor air pollution by releasing fine particles back into the air.

A recent independent scientific study shows that some vacuums with HEPA filters do not effectively protect a home's air quality and unfiltered air may escape, releasing as much as 2-14 million lung-damaging particles per minute into the air on average.

These particles can pollute indoor air quality for hours after the vacuum is turned off.

The scientific study showed that the Miele vacuum, with its Sealed System engineering, equipped with a unique AirClean Filterbag and certified HEPA filter, had significantly lower rates of particle emissions than competitive models. The vacuums captured and retained over 99.9 percent of harmful and lung-damaging irritants, making them a serious cleaning tool for maintaining an allergy-friendly environment.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Aug. 9, Officers Sean Glennon and Michael Eddy were dispatched to the area of Cross Street by Miller Street on a report of 3 males in the area, wearing black hoodies and acting suspiciously.

LT. DAN MINTON

Within moments, the officers began checking the area. Officer Eddy found a parked vehicle on Cross Street with the driver's side door open, the glove box open and the interior of the vehicle in disarray as if it had been rummaged through. Officer Eddy notified dispatch that he found a vehicle that had been entered illegally. The officers, knowing that suspects breaking into cars will often walk through residential neighborhoods targeting unlocked vehicles. They usually focus on, but are not limited to electronic equipment (IPODS, GPS Units, Laptops, etc...).

As Officer Eddy attempted to make contact with the victim, Officer Glennon continued to check the area for the suspect(s). As Officer Glennon approached Common Street, he observed a blue minivan without lights on, pull out of Reardon Street and turn left onto Common Street.

The officer pulled the minivan over in front of 154 Common Street and notified dispatch of his actions. Officer Eddy responded to the location. As Officer Glennon approached the vehicle, it started to slowly roll forward. Officer Glennon ordered the driver to place the car in park and turn off the vehicle's engine.

When the driver was asked for his license and registration, the male driver said he didn't have a license or the registration, claiming that his mother owned the minivan. With no positive identification or valid registration, the driver was instructed to step out of the vehicle. As the driver got out, a black Phillips head screw driver fell from his person to the ground. The driver then responded, "Oh @#$%".

Through training and experience, the officers knew that people who steal and/or break into vehicles often times use screw drivers to punch the locks and ignitions. When asked again who owned the minivan, the driver said, "I don't know whose car it is."

At that time, Officer Glennon gave the driver his Miranda warnings and asked him if he wished to answer questions, and he said he would. When asked where the car came from, the driver said, "I took it from around the corner." The officer asked him if he stole it and he responded, "yeah." The driver/suspect said the windows were down in the minivan and the keys were in it, so he stole it.

The officer noted that the suspect's clothing was damp with sweat. When asked why he was sweating, the driver/suspect stated that he was playing basketball at Merrymount Park earlier that evening. It should be noted it was now nearly 3:30 a.m. and the lights at Merrymount Park are turned off at 10:30 p.m.

The location of where the car was stolen from in relation to where the caller reported seeing the suspicious parties (the area of 108 Cross Street) were within a few hundred yards of each other. At that time, Officer Eddy informed Officer Glennon that he searched the minivan and found an IPOD and three GPS units inside.

Officer Glennon asked the suspect if he had been breaking into cars that evening and he confessed. When asked where the breaks occurred, the suspect stated, "all over the place, I don't even remember." Officer Glennon made contact with the owner of the minivan, who said that she did not give permission to anyone to take the van. She said that the GPS units and IPOD were not hers.

Utilizing the home function on the GPS units, addresses were discovered for each and notification to all the property owners were made. The suspect, a 16 year old Willard Street, Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for Larceny of a Motor Vehicle, Unlicensed Operation of a Motor Vehicle, Operating a Motor vehicle at Night without Lights, 4 counts of Receiving Stolen Property under $250 and Seatbelt Violation.

Juvenile Probation was contacted since the juvenile was already on probation. This suspect was linked to car breaks on Lyons Street, Town Hill Street, Crescent Street and Cross Street.

Nice Work!

Longtime Patriot Ledger Reporter

A funeral Mass for Raymond Joseph McEachern, 67, of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, formerly of Houghs Neck, a longtime reporter and columnist for the Patriot Ledger, was celebrated Wednesday in Immaculate Conception Church in Portsmouth.

Mr. McEachern died Aug. 15 at the Clipper Harbor of Portsmouth Care and Rehabilitation Center after a prolonged battle with kidney disease.

Born and raised in the Creek Hill section of Portsmouth as the fifth of eight children of Archie D. and Ann T. (Regan) McEachern. He graduated from St. Patrick's School in 1957 and from Portsmouth High School in 1961, where he was Junior Class President. Throughout his life, he maintained an abiding interest in politics at all levels.

At UNH, Mr. McEachern took journalism classes from Pulitzer Prize winner Donald Murray, who became his lifelong mentor. He also served for several years as a panelist on Quincy Community TV Newsmakers show for which he won an award in 1984. That same year, the Quincy Bureau News honored him as Media Person of the Year. And in 1989 he was one of three reporters to share the Inland Press-University of Wisconsin First Prize in Local Government Reporting.

HEALTH ALERT!

Dispelling Common Myths About The Benefits Of 'Light' Cigarettes

(NAPSA)-From soda to salad dressings, the idea of a "lighter" version has always been perceived to be a healthier option. Even cigarettes can be found in "lighter" varieties. But are these "light" cigarettes really a safer, healthier option for smokers? For years, "light" cigarettes have fueled misperceptions that they are in some way less harmful than regular cigarettes, leaving those who may have had an eventual desire to quit to be misled.

A new survey, sponsored by GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) Consumer Healthcare, shows that many smokers choose "mild" or "light" cigarettes because they think these cigarettes may be less harmful to their health than "regular" cigarettes. Now there's a new legislation that bans word descriptors such as "light," "low" and "mild" on all packaging and advertising of existing cigarettes and smokeless products.

Despite the new legislation, the survey shows more than one-third of smokers misunderstand the health impact of "light" or "mild" cigarettes. Almost half of smokers surveyed (44 percent) say they typically smoke "light" or "ultra-light" cigarettes, with one-quarter of these smokers saying they do so because they mistakenly believe "light" cigarettes are less harmful and/or easier to quit than regular cigarettes.

These survey findings and new legislation provide a great opportunity to clear the air and address common myths about these so-called "light" cigarettes:

Myth: "Light" cigarettes are healthier than regular cigarettes.

Reality: The federal government's National Cancer Institute has concluded that "light" cigarettes provide no benefit to a smoker's health. Any amount of smoking can be harmful and "light" cigarettes do not reduce the risk of smoking-related cancers and other diseases.

Myth: "Light" cigarettes deliver less tar, nicotine and chemicals than regular cigarettes.

Reality: Research has shown that "light" cigarettes deliver amounts of tar, nicotine and other substances to the smoker that are comparable to regular cigarettes. Also, because smokers crave nicotine, smokers who choose "light" cigarettes may inhale more deeply or smoke more frequently to satisfy their cravings. Still, any level of smoking exposes a smoker to more than 4,000 other chemicals and at least 69 known or suspected carcinogens.

Myth: Smokers have a better chance of quitting by switching to "light" cigarettes.

Reality: Smoking "light" cigarettes may actually decrease a smoker's chances of quitting. A newly published study has shown that smokers who switch to "light" cigarettes with the eventual desire to quit have even lower odds of quitting than those who didn't switch.

The study also showed that smokers who switched to a "lighter" cigarette for health reasons made more attempts to quit but were almost half as likely to actually succeed.

"The common misperception that 'light' cigarettes are less harmful than regular cigarettes is simply untrue and a belief that we have been trying to correct for years," said Saul Shiffman, co-author of the study, professor in the departments of psychology and pharmaceutical sciences at the University of Pittsburgh, and senior scientific advisor at Pinney Associates, which provides consulting services to GlaxoSmithKline. "The reality is that the best way to reduce and even eliminate the health risks caused by smoking is to stop smoking completely. There are a number of methods out there that are proven safe and effective to help smokers quit, such as nicotine gum, nicotine lozenge and nicotine patch."

The earlier smokers quit, the better it is for their health. Smokers making a quit attempt should utilize support and coaching from in-person clinics, quitlines or online programs to help understand what to expect and how to handle the tough situations when quitting. In addition, smokers who use nicotine replacement therapy products such as the Nicorette(r) gum and lozenge and the NicoDerm(r) CQ(r) patch can double their chances of successfully quitting versus placebo.

A Breakthrough In Contact Lens Technology

(NAPSA)-For the 40 million Americans who wear contact lenses, a new advancement in contact lenses is now available at eye doctors' offices around the country.

The first and only silicone hydrogel daily disposable contact lens in the United States offers wearers exceptional comfort, comparable to a contact lens-free eye, health experts say.

Designed to keep eyes looking white and healthy, this new lens combines a next-generation, high-performance silicone hydrogel material and a technology that provides lasting comfort throughout the day, with the hygiene, flexibility and convenience of a one-day replacement lens. It also offers the highest level of UV protection in a contact lens.

"1•Day Acuvue TruEye was designed, developed and clinically researched versus the ultimate benchmark: the natural eye," says Colleen Riley, OD, VP, Professional Development and Medical Affairs, Vistakon, Division of Johnson & Johnson Vision Care. "The data suggest that it can help maintain ocular health with the near 'no lens' experience, and keeps the lens-wearing eye looking white and healthy, while also providing consistent comfort throughout the day."

The new lens provides wearers with a unique balance of eye health properties:

• Comfortable Health: The lens features an improved formulation of the unique Hydraclear(r) technology that combines high-performance base materials with a moisture-rich wetting agent for consistent, lasting comfort.

• Visible Health: The lens' unique material helps eyes stay white because "it allows your eyes to breathe almost as if you were not wearing contact lenses at all," explains Dr. Riley.

• Everyday Health: A number of studies have shown that daily replacement is the healthiest way to wear contact lenses. By putting in a clean, fresh lens every day, daily contacts help minimize the potential for buildup of allergens and irritants. Additionally, one-day contacts are a more convenient option for wearers because there's no need to clean or store them.

NEW CONTACT lens technology offers exceptional comfort and ocular health.

• Proactive Health: The lens offers the highest level of UV protection in a contact lens, blocking more than 96 percent of UV-A rays and 99 percent of UV-B rays that reach the lens. Contact lenses should always be worn in conjunction with high-quality UV-blocking sunglasses and a wide-brimmed hat for maximum UV protection for the eyes.

Staying Smart About Prescription Medicines

spotlight on health care

(NAPSA) - For almost half of the American population, prescription medicines are a part of daily life. When taken as prescribed, they can play an important role in the treatment and prevention of a variety of health conditions. However, prescription medicines can be harmful in the hands of those who do not have a valid prescription.

"Many people don't realize that the most common source of prescription medicine abuse is the medicine cabinet of a family member or friend, not 'dealers' or illicit drug sources," says Jan Engle, a pharmacist and past president of the American Pharmacists Association (APhA) and Executive Associate Dean and Head of the Department Pharmacy Practice at the University of Illinois at Chicago College of Pharmacy. "That's why it's important for everyone to know how to store and dispose of prescription medicines properly."

Dr. Engle and APhA are working with the American Chronic Pain Association and Cephalon, Inc., to offer advice about prescription medicine storage and disposal as part of the When Good Medicines Become Bad DrugsSM program. To keep your family medicine cabinet safe, Dr. Engle recommends the following tips and information:

"Start with a biannual inventory of all over-the-counter and prescription medicines," says Dr. Engle. "Any medication past its expiration date, showing signs of decay, or left over from a previous illness should be set aside for disposal."

Prior to throwing away in the trash, medication should be removed from its original container and mixed with an undesirable substance such as kitty litter or coffee grounds in a disposable container with a lid or in a sealable bag. Or, check with your pharmacy for disposal days or other programs for unused medicines.

Dr. Engle also says medications should be stored in an area that is cool and dry, since heat and humidity can damage medicines. Locking medications in a cabinet or drawer can also keep prescriptions safe and prevent others from gaining access, either intentionally or accidentally.

"We all have responsibilities to ensure our prescription medicines are used safely and appropriately," says Dr. Engle. "By keeping these helpful tips in mind, we can all do our part to help prevent misuse or abuse of prescription medicines."

Chiropractor

GAINING A COMPETITIVE EDGE

Not only do chiropractors treat patients hobbled by pain and limited flexibility, they also may be called upon to treat sports-related injuries. The first step that injured athletes and exercisers should take to help themselves is to seek help from the chiropractor at the first sign of pain or extended muscle/joint soreness. Anyone who tries to "work through" pain will only find his or her condition becoming worse. Postponing treatment is also likely to make it more complicated and lengthy. On the other hand, athletes and exercisers with sufficient body awareness to schedule an appointment with the chiropractor will be rewarded with a complete examination that pinpoints the cause of their injuries, followed by immediate treatment.

Doctors of Chiropractic are not only trained in problems dealing with the spine, but are formally educated in clinical examination and diagnosis of the entire human body. Through the use of conservative, non-surgical, drug-free care, the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC provides chiropractic treatment from acute symptomatic relief to wellness care. Chiropractic is a system of natural health care. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. You have nothing to lose – and vibrant health to gain. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

5th Annual Event Drew 16 Teams, 160 Players

O'Connell/Thomson Tourney Still Going Strong

By JOE REARDON

Jim Finn was busy early Saturday morning, carefully dividing the brand new basketball singlets by size and arranging them into neat piles on the stonewall that borders the Fenno Street Basketball Courts.

Finn was just getting started when players began to descend onto the popular courts to pick up their singlets and loosen up for the first game of the day in perfect sunny, dry conditions. The games ran all day and into the evening on Saturday. The players came back and did it all over again on Sunday.

Some players paused, wondering why the only two numbers on the more than 160 singlets were #8 and #33. The answer was simple and made perfect sense to the hoopsters when Finn filled them in. The numbers were those worn by Dennis Thomson and John O'Connell when they played for the North Quincy High basketball team during their schoolboy years.

The two numbers were fitting for the 5th Annual O'Connell/Thomson Basketball Tournament. The tournament, which drew 16, 10-player teams, is held in memory of Thomson and O'Connell, both of whom starred on the court for the Red Raiders. Thomson, a three-sport star in football, basketball and baseball, was killed by a drunk driver in 2004 while stationed in Mississippi as a member of the U.S. Air Force. O'Connell, known as "Okie" to his friends, passed away in 2005 after being punched while breaking up a fight during his senior year at Westfield State.

O'Connell made it a point to wear #33 after his favorite player, Larry Bird. After his death, Westfield State College established the John "Okie" O'Connell Award, given to an outstanding student athlete who best represents his sportsmanship and athleticism.

Finn, a 1997 graduate of NQHS, knew both O'Connell and Thomson well and thought a basketball tourney in their names would keep their spirits alive. "I figured it would be a good way to keep these guys in people's memories," said Finn. "A lot of kids from their graduating class come down and hang out for the day."

O'Connell's parents, Matt and Mary, were among the spectators who gathered nearly an hour before the opening game. Both have been moved by the outpouring of friends who gather in the waning days of summer to compete in their son's name.

"It's great to have the kids get together to honor the two of them," said Mary. "It's not about the money, it's about the friends. They come back every year, which is amazing. The make the sacrifice to come."

The highly competitive tournament, which has raised more than $12,000 over the previous four years, supports scholarships for three NQHS graduates of the Learning Center, along with 12, $1,000 scholarships. Former Governor Mitt Romney donated $8,000 the inaugural year of the tournament and local businesses have been a staple since the start with their generous donations. "They're really good guys," said Finn. "We get a lot of help from the community."

Matt finds the large turnout of Thomson's and O'Connell's friends both comforting and uplifting.

"It's a nicely run tournament," said Matt. "There's always 200 or 300 people who come to watch the players."

Dan Duggan, who played on the varsity basketball squad with both Thomson and O'Connell, said the quality of play in the two-day tournament has gotten better every year with many players who played at the Div. 2 and 3 levels in college participating.

"It's still going strong," said Duggan, who covers the Celtics for the Boston Herald. "The competition is as strong as ever. The players bookmark the date on their calendars."

Finn admits the talent level in the tournament has passed him by. "I'm lost in the weeds," he said with a laugh. "I can't play with these guys anymore."

With a 11-10 Victory Over Hingham

Quincy U14 Win SSSL League Championship

An exciting walk-off victory propelled Quincy Under-14 softball to the South Shore Summer League Under-14 Division II championship. Quincy won the deciding game, 11-10, over Hingham on August 6 at Mitchell-McCoy Field.

The championship win capped off a 10-2 season record for Quincy, which also won the Division II regular-season title with an impressive 8-2 record. Quincy defeated South Braintree, 20-14, in the semifinals to earn its place in the title game.

In the finals, Quincy jumped out to a 9-3 lead after five innings, but Hingham staged a rally in the sixth inning, scoring six runs to tie the contest at 9-9. Hingham took its only lead in the top of the sixth inning, scoring one run to take a 10-9 lead and seemingly placing Quincy on the ropes.

However, Quincy refused to fold. Shauna Canavan and Jamie Bergin got the winning rally started with consecutive one-out walks before a pitch to load the bases hit Krista Ferent. Maryssa Dwyer was up next and she delivered. After fouling off several pitches, Dwyer, Quincy's leadoff hitter, lined a pitch to left field, plating Canavan and Bergin and setting off a wild celebration at home plate.

The championship game was the culmination of a great season for Quincy, which avenged its only two regular-season losses (to Hingham and South Braintree) in the Division II playoffs.

The Quincy Under-14 roster included: Vanessa Igoe, Maryssa Dwyer, Caroline McBride, Leann McColgan, Liz Green, Emma Kimmell, Kayla Odegaard, Bethany Walker, Shauna Canavan, Lisa McCarthy, Jamie Bergin, and Krista Ferent. Jim McBride and Chris McBride coached the team.

Recreation Department's Annual Arts & Crafts Display Attracts Crowd

The Quincy Recreation Department's Annual Arts and Crafts Display at City Hall Plaza attracted a large turnout once again this summer. Participants on the playgrounds, as well as the public cast over 500 ballots for 13 different projects.

After the two-day exhibit, the votes were tallied and "Celtics Minion," created by the Fore River Playground took first place; the end result of a great amount of time and effort by the playground's participants. Recreation Department youngsters created the winning project with assistance from QRD Leaders Pat Joyce, Kayla McGonagle, and Kylie Kozlowski.

Squantum Playground's creation, "Gingy," a larger than life replica of the Shrek gingerbread man, finished in second place. Fintin Murtaugh, Tim Layden, and Danielle Diamond helped to create the project with QRD Leaders Jackie McAllister, Katelyn Layden and Dom Venuti.

Youngsters Jordan Curry, Annie Waterman, Mary Kate McDonald and Lindsey Lee designed Montclair Playground's third-place winning paper-mache creation, "Pizza Connection Calzone" with help from QRD Leaders Suzi Sweeney, Anthony DiPalmo and Justin Callahan.

Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, said that the children, QRD Leaders and the Arts & Crafts Specialists deserved extra recognition for the hard work that was involved in producing such great projects. Arts & Crafts Specialists Mary Burke, Shelly Donovan and Katherine Shea organized the exhibit and voting.

The participants from all 13-playground locations worked hard in order to receive prizes generously donated by local business establishments.

"Many thanks to the kind generosity of Balducci's, The Pizza Connection, Dairy Freeze, Renaissance Café, Tony's Clam Shop and Babycakes Cupcakes for donating prizes for our winners," said Welch. "Their generosity helps ensure that the hard work of these youngsters does not go unrewarded. Their sponsorship helped to make this year's event tremendously successful."

FORE RIVER PLAYGROUND, FIRST PLACE: Fore River Playground's "Celtics Minion" took first-place honors in the QRD's annual Arts & Crafts Display Contest.

MONTCLAIR PLAYGROUND, THIRD PLACE: Montclair Playground's "Pizza Connection Calzone" garnered third-place honors.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We all live in a changing world. Change is constant. Facts, figures, and circumstances can change from one moment to another. At times we feel fearful about the changes occurring to us... The earth and all it contains is in a state of constant growth and change. Perhaps changes are happening to those we know – a loved one dies, another moves away, a friend begins a new job, new acquaintances enter our lives and bring about change.

God gives each of us a lifetime to resist or welcome changes. The lifetime varies, of course. Some grow old, some don't. The questions that will be asked eventually is, "What did you do with your lifetime?" Was it spent in good deeds or was it frittered away in foolish non-essentials; deeds to be proud of or to be ashamed of? Should it not be realized that it is unimportant how long we live but what we did with the time given us – changes in time and customs notwithstanding? ...

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A relaxed mood early in the week could give way to high-temperature disputes. The Aries Lamb should resist being pulled into heated quarrels that could really singe your wool.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Satisfy that practical obligation first, then you can feel free to indulge in your creative endeavors. Also, check for hidden or overlooked areas where repairs might be long overdue.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Home is still the Twins' major focus this week. But outside matters begin to take on added importance, especially those involving possible career moves. Stay alert for signs of change.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A travel plan might need to undergo some considerable adjustment because of unexpected changes. Keep an open mind and let the facts guide you on how you want to handle this.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Playing cat and mouse with a matter you don't really want to tackle wastes time, energy and, most important, an opportunity. Ask someone with experience to help you get started.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A shift in policy might not please you, but before you put up a "No Go" wall of resistance, examine the circumstances. You might be quite pleasantly surprised by what you find.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Yesterday's critiques about your methods might have already evolved into today's praise for your achievements. Good for you. Now go on and continue to build on your credibility.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An occasional temperamental flare-up might occur as you continue to help get things back to normal. Stay with it. You should soon get some idea of where to take things next.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A negative reaction to what you believe was a well-deserved request might mean that you need to reconsider your position and make changes accordingly.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) There's always room for someone new at the Sea Goat's table. And the someone new this week could bring a message you've been waiting a long time to hear.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A pile-on of personal matters this week might seem too overwhelming to deal with. But handling them on a one-by-one basis could have you out from under it by the weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A friend might need your good advice regarding a matter. Be supportive. But unless you can be absolutely sure you have all the facts, be careful about any suggestions you might be asked to offer.

BORN THIS WEEK: Few things make you happier than bringing people together and helping to forge new friendships.

Commission Would Prioritize Problems

Councillors Seek Citywide Coastal Improvement Plan

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy's waterfront, 27 miles of it, puts the shine on the city's allure but the beaches, the ramps, the railings and the rafts need major patching and polishing, and a long-term plan, according to city councillors.

At their Aug. 16 meeting, several councillors called for a Waterfront Commission to be named by this fall, a citywide blueprint developed by spring, and the end of what City Council President Kevin Coughlin called a "piecemeal" approach to the waterfront

"It's apparent there are a lot of needs that have to be addressed," Coughlin said after councillors concluded a lively debate over a $9,000 transfer from the Waterfront Improvement Fund to pur-

New Quincy High School Dedication Sunday

The new Quincy High School, ready to open for the first day of school this year, will be formally dedicated in a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 2 p.m. on Sunday in the school's foyer and auditorium.

"This project is on time and on budget, and I am grateful for the hard work of many to get us here," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "This building is a great symbol of the commitment that this entire community has made to our children."

Major Membership Change For Quincy College Board

Quincy businessman Mark Bertman resigned Tuesday from the Quincy College Board of Governors through a letter citing the dissension and the current impasse immobilizing the board.

"The school deserves much more than the current conflict that surrounds it," wrote Bertman who raised funds for the school's endowment while serving four years on the board.

Bertman's resignation brings to four the number of actual openings on the Board of Governors which, according to President Sue

Morrisette Post Awards For Patriotic Display Of U.S. Flag

The Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post in West Quincy announces the Post will award American Legion "Citations of Appreciation" to residents and businesses in the neighborhoods generally adjacent to the Post in recognition of their patriotic display of the United States flag.

Post members will deliver some of the citations in person while others will be mailed.

The Post encourages all residents and businesses in Quincy to display the U.S. flag and to remember that when a flag is no longer serviceable (faded, worn, or tattered) it should be brought to any veterans' organization for proper disposal according to federal regulations, said Post Commander George Bouchard.

According To State Department Of Revenue

Report: Quincy Only Community On South Shore With No Tax Increase

A new report by the State Department of Revenue shows that Quincy was the only South Shore city or town that did not raise property taxes in the current fiscal year, a time when many communities actually attempted to override the state's tax-raising law called Proposition 2.5

The average single-family bill in the City showed no increase in Quincy, something that occurred in only 23 communities statewide and none on the South Shore, the report showed.

"We made a commitment to not raising property taxes for this year and the coming year, and we are sticking to it," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "We are making real spending cuts, maintaining our core services, and holding the line the taxes in a way that is positioning our City for the future."

The report highlighted property tax bills for the 2010 fiscal year, and found that while property values decreased across the state, property tax bills continued to increase. The bill for the average single-family home increased by 3.3 percent, adding about $140 to the average single-family bill across the state, the report said.

The towns of Milton and Rockland saw double-digit increases in their property tax bills thanks to Proposition 2.5 overrides that were approved in both towns. Property taxes increased in Weymouth and Braintree by 3.75 percent and and 2.2 percent, respectively.

The Department of Revenue Report covers only Fiscal Year 2010, and does not include figures for revised tax bills that residents will see at the end of this calendar year. Mayor Koch's City budget is based on a similar formula, and does not raise total taxes raised by the City beyond new growth and development.

"These are extraordinary times, and we are taking extraordinary action in these two fiscal years that acknowledge the challenges we face by holding the line on property taxes in a way very other cities have in the Commonwealth," Koch said.

ine Craven and members of the School Committee and City Council will take part in the ceremonies, which will be capped by an introduction of the new school by Principal Frank Santoro and a walk-through of the 330,000-square foot facility.

"The new Quincy High School will be an extraordinary learning environment for our students for many years to come, and opening the doors for the first time will be a tremendously proud moment for the many people who have invested countless hours over the years to make it a reality," said Superintendent DeCristofaro. "Sunday's ceremony is a celebration of the work completed, but more importantly, it is a celebration of the future and what this building means for the future of our students."

Added Principal Santoro:

"The new Quincy High School is a 330,000-square foot state-of-the-art, interdisciplinary facility that will provide the kind of enhanced learning environment that will serve our students well for years to come. We are all greatly looking forward to seeing students in these classrooms for the first time."

The new facility will showcase energy-efficient components throughout, including classrooms with sloped acoustical ceilings and tall windows to allow for better lighting.

The project's design and approach target meeting the Massachusetts Collaborative for High Performance Schools (MA-CHPS) criteria to gain additional grant funds from the Massachusetts School Building Authority.

Among the other components of the $126 million building, of which the state paid the City $72 million:

- Sustainable Energy Garden with Photovoltaic Electrical Panels, Solar Hot Water Collection and Science Greenhouse
- A 750-Seat, Air Conditioned Theater with Dramatic Arts Classroom
- Integrates the Quincy High School Technology and Core Curriculum
- Large 3-Station Gymnasium with Multi-Purpose Room and Fitness/Cardiovascular Room
- Wireless Intranet Access throughout the Facility
- New, State-of-the-Art Library Media Center with Separate Computer Lab
- Academic Computer Labs
- Multifunctional Large Group Instruction Spaces.

Marina Bay Designated As Noise Sensitive Area

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Noise limits at Marina Bay may become even more stringent in the future as City Councillors last week designated the area as a "Noise Sensitive Area."

At their Aug. 16 meeting, Councillors voted 7-2 to approve the designation and Mayor Thomas Koch will sign off on it, according to his spokesman Chris Walker.

Under the city's Title 9, entitled "Public Peace and General Welfare," regulations for noise sensitive areas may be "more stringent than those that otherwise apply to the area...."

The section describes churches, nursing homes and/or schools as the customary reason for designating an area as "noise sensitive."

While there is a nursing home and assisted living facility at Marina Bay, both are located some distance from the boardwalk and docks, the nightclubs and the luxury apartments and condominiums that define Marina Bay.

BRIAN McNAMEE

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee sponsored the amendment after acknowledging the competing interests of residents and nightclub owners.

McNamee was the sponsor of the original noise limit ordinance passed last June and he suggested that ordinance is already working.

"This summer has been better than any other summer," McNamee said, stating he has received fewer complaints about noise since the passage of the ordinance.

However, McNamee, also, stated that more stringent limits are still necessary, "We have liquor licenses transferring all the time."

Councillor Mike McFarland asked the councillors to wait a year and study the effects of the total noise limit law before tinkering with changes.

"Take a look at the whole ordinance," McFarland said and pointed out that the ordinance is not totally in effect now.

"The Noise Advisory Board has not yet been put together," said McFarland, referring to the ordinance's requirement for continual review of the noise limit plan, review of decibel levels and testing methods.

Under the ordinance, a Noise Control Advisory Board of seven members will advise the mayor and other city officials on noise control issues.

Councillors approved the designation by a 7-2 vote with McFarland and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest voting in opposition.

Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said Tuesday that the mayor will formally appoint the advisory board in the near future.

FOR APPEARANCE'S SAKE

While not everyone can afford a 3-carat diamond, there are techniques that any woman can employ to make her diamond jewelry look bigger than it really is. The first of these diamond-enlarging strategies rests with choosing a fancy-shaped diamond. In particular, diamonds with elongated shapes (marquise, oval, and pear-shaped) tend to look larger than round diamonds of equal weight. Diamond lovers can also choose pavé settings, which involve side-by-side placement of diamonds that makes them appear to blend together, resulting in the assembled diamonds looking like one large diamond surface. Another technique employs an "illusion" setting, in which the diamond is mounted to a mirror-like plate (before setting it into the band), making the diamond look larger and more brilliant.

Diamonds of any size are sure to be a brilliant choice for that very special gift or to add to your own jewelry collection. And because they are the hardest substance known to man, and their shimmering beauty is without peer, they are a true investment in the future. At 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, our creative designs, selection of the finest gemstones, and our high degree of craftsmanship put us well ahead of the crowd. As soon as you walk through our doors, you will soon see what we mean. PH: 617-773-3636.

BANK OF AMERICA BUILDING

Immediate Plans For 2-8 Chestnut St. Call For Green Space But Future Development Possible

Quincy Center Building Razing Seen By October

By JOE REARDON

Demolition of the building at 2-8 Chestnut Street is scheduled to begin by the end of September and be finished by mid-October, according to representatives of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

"We're happy it was approved," said Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co. Senior Vice President Steve Briggs. "We hope it will spur some activity in downtown Quincy."

Briggs said the demolition goal is by mid-October. The company is waiting for a report on asbestos.

The Quincy Historical Commission voted unanimously Monday to approve the demolition of the 91-year-old building, home to long-standing businesses Taj Coins and Quincy Typewriter Repair, along with the more recent Hairplace One salon. The salon will be moving to a new location at 85 Quincy Ave.

Robert Hornais, a member of the Quincy Planning Commission for 15 years, who represents Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance, said the building would be replaced by green space in the immediate area with the possibility of development in the future. "There are hopes for future development as Quincy Center develops," Hornais told the commission.

Quincy Mutual acquired the building for $1.4 million in July. The possibility exists for the eventual construction of a 15-story office and residential tower at the location by Street-Works LLC as part of the redevelopment of Quincy Center.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said Monday that residents should try to look past the sentimentality they have towards the building as the redevelopment moves forward.

"This is what I think we've been waiting for," said Gutro. "The city of Quincy has set a precedent for redevelopment downtown. This redevelopment is for the benefit of residents and visitors."

Historical Commission Chairman Anthony Ricci was concerned that the commission hadn't received correspondence regarding the demolition from the planning commission and pointed out that leveling the building was not part of the downtown development plan. Since there was no word from the commission with concerns the assumption was made that the planning commission backed the project.

"I think we're in the formative stages of this project," Ricci said.

THE 91-YEAR-OLD BUILDING at 2-8 Chestnut Street in Quincy Center is set to be demolished by the end of September, according to the building's owners. Immediate plans call for green space on the site with future development possible. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

The biggest festival of its kind on the South Shore featured Chinese arts, crafts, games and painting classes for the kids in attendance. There were also Asian poetry readings during the family-oriented festival.

This year, a large children's area was added with

Remembering Ruth Gordon: She Was One Of A Kind

(Editor's Note: Saturday, Aug. 28 marks the 25th anniversary of the death of Academy-Award winning actress Ruth Gordon. Ruth was born on Winthrop Avenue in Wollaston and graduated from Quincy High School before launching her acclaimed acting career. She won an Oscar for best supporting actress in the 1968 film "Rosemary's Baby." She also won an Emmy and two Golden Globe awards for her acting.

Ruth was a good friend of Quincy Sun founder Henry Bosworth. Below is Mr. Bosworth's tribute Sunbeams column that appeared in The Quincy Sun after Ruth died of a stroke in Edgartown, MA on Aug. 28, 1985 at the age of 88.)

Debbie called me on the intercom, excitement in her voice.

"Ruth Gordon is on the phone."

I picked up the phone and greeted her.

"Hi, beautiful."

She laughed as she always did when I called her that.

"Henry," she said, turning serious. "A Charles Flagg called me here and said you wanted him to take a picture of Garson and me for The Sun. Is he your photographer?"

I told her he was, that he had a place on Martha's Vineyard not far from her home and I had told him next time he was down there to go over and say hello and ask to take a photo.

"Okay," she said. "Just wanted to be sure. I probably won't be able to do it today. I have a busy schedule, but tomorrow should be all right."

I thank her and said:

"I haven't seen or heard much about you lately. You been hiding?"

"Oh no," she said, her voice rising with enthusiasm. "I've been very busy. Going to make another movie. I'll tell you about it later. Got to run."

"Don't forget our date," I said before she could run.

"I won't," she said. "I'll touch with you later."

For three years we had been planning to do a television special for Quincy Sun Channel 8.

It was going to be called something like "Reminiscing With Ruth Gordon." We were going to walk around Winthrop and Elmwood Avenue, Wollaston area where she was born and grew up and have her just recall those days as she remembered them.

"We'll make a million with it," she had laughed.

But we never got around to doing it. She was just too busy doing so many other things.

"But we will do it one of these days," she promised, believing there was plenty of time.

The day of that phone call about the photo was Wednesday, Aug. 21.

Flagg took several photos of Ruth and her husband, Garson Kanin and dropped them off to me. They were good – maybe the best ever of the two of them together. They're going to like them, I said to myself, planning to use one of them soon.

Early the following Wednesday, Aug. 28, Dick Koch called me.

"Have you heard?" he asked.

"Heard what?"

"I hate to be the one to tell you because I know of your close friendship. Ruth Gordon has died. A television reporter just called me wanting some information about the amphitheater."

I was stunned.

Just a week ago to the very day she had called about the photo and to tell me about the new movie she was planning to make and how busy she was.

She sounded just like her old self. Full of pep and enthusiasm. Looking ahead as she always did.

At 88, she still had a lot of things to do.

I told her last November when she came home for the dedication of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater that she had so much enthusiasm and energy that she could play the role of a high school cheerleader and get away with it.

She laughed at that.

But now, that famous witty voice was stilled. Ruth Gordon, who seemed almost indestructible, was gone.

The phones started ringing. ABC, NBC, Ch. 5, Ch. 56, etc., all looking for information.

We picked out the best photo Flagg had taken that day gave it to the Associated Press, Ch. 5 and to our own Sun

Ch. 8. We also gave videotape clips to Ch. 56 and Ch. 5. The photo appeared in The Boston Globe, The Herald, The New York Times and newspapers all over the country. We gave The Patriot Ledger one of the others.

They are the last known photos of Ruth Gordon.

She would have loved them but, sadly, would never see them.

My friendship with Ruth goes back to 1968 when I started The Quincy Sun.

I sent her one of the first copies.

She wrote to thank me and we became friends, communicating by telephone or by letters from then on, and getting together now and then when she came home.

She continued to receive The Sun.

And, she really read it, page by page, story by story.

One time when she called she said: "I see your hockey team lost to the Burgin Platner team."

It was a story back in the sports section but she had seen it.

She said she liked to see the photos of old Quincy in the Burgin Platner "Remember When" advertisements.

"They bring back fond memories," she said.

Once in a while, she would call to correct a date or a name of long ago.

Her letters were always hand-written – never typed. The personal touch. They were somewhat scrawled through and each one contained a few words that were difficult to make out.

Sometimes it took almost the entire Sun staff to decipher those words.

But the letters were precious. As were her phone calls from the Vineyard and New York City.

She had invited me to be her guest at her Quincy High School Class of 1914 reunion in 1983 but I couldn't make it because I had to take my son, Bob, to the University of New Hampshire for freshmen orientation.

She later wrote:

"Sorry you missed the 69th reunion. It was a really warm event. Twelve good people glad to see each other. How often does that happen?"

In January, 1982, after we had written a column urging that the uncompleted Ruth Gordon Amphitheater be finished, she wrote:

"Love reading the note about the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater. Thank you so much for The Quincy Sun."

"Watch Super Bowl and you will see the first Quincy born to occupy 30 seconds for which was paid over $300,000 and for only one spot. My first commercial for the Subaru Brat. Thirty seconds! I'll be in a lot of rooms in Quincy. They figure a third of the world's population will watch. Over $300,000."

RUTH GORDON waves to admirers and fans at the dedication of the city's outdoor amphitheater named in her honor in 1984.

"In City Hall, I hope my birth certificate is wearing well."

Although she was fond of her 1914 classmates she was miffed when they went ahead and held their annual reunion last year while she was in Spain.

"The stinkers" she wrote. "They could have picked a different date. If the Neighborhood Club wasn't available on another date, we could have brown-bagged it somewhere else."

But she got over it.

At the amphitheater dedication last year, she smiled, when she thought of it and mused: "I was off making lots of money."

She was delighted at having the amphitheater named after her.

"I am the first person in my family to have a theater named for her. It took a long time. I started towards this 88 years, 11 days and five and a half hours ago. I never face facts. I never listen to good advice. I am a slow starter, but I get there."

She was grateful to City Councillor Joseph LaRaia for seeing that the amphitheater which was started in 1977 when he was mayor and then virtually abandoned – was finally completed.

And, to Mayor Francis McCauley for proclaiming "Ruth Gordon Day."

The following month she wrote me a letter telling how she felt that day.

"I think it was the best day of my life.

"It was the perfect day – a day on which Quincy seemed to be a dream world all of its own.

"I thought we all took off and went somewhere else. We went somewhere where there was no trouble, or worry, or mean stuff. We all floated off where it all went right.

"I know the work that went into making it happen. Oh My!"

It was a beautiful day and Ruth Gordon was beautiful that day as she completely captivated her home town.

Although her talent took her to stardom in New York City, Hollywood and overseas, her heart was always here.

She loved Quincy. She was Quincy's "Ambassador of Good Will," and one-woman Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

When I called Garson Kanin on the Vineyard that Wednesday to tell him how sorry I was at Ruth's passing, he told me:

"You were her link to her hometown."

If that is so, I consider it a great honor.

I really loved Ruth Gordon.

I'm going to miss those phone calls and those letters with the words hard to make out.

Most of all, I'm going to miss her.

Not because she was a talented actress.

But because she was a down-to-earth, nice person, who never gave up and was always ready to take on Broadway, Hollywood, television – and the world.

She was one of a kind.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A late 1930's postcard view of Wollaston Center looking north on Hancock Street at the intersection of Beach and Beale Streets. On the left was the W.W. Willson real estate office, the House of Lieberman cleansers and several doctors and beauty shops in the Klein Building. Alouwil Pharmacy was in the store on the corner now the Grandasia Bridal & Fashion Shop. On the next corner was the Beale Street Pharmacy, now Papa Gino's in a new building, and then there was Woolworth's Five and Ten. On the right were Well's Cafe', now the Hancock Tavern, Guay's Bakery, Fowler's Market and the Old Corner Drug Store. The Gardner Building on the next corner had rooms to let upstairs and the California Cleansers at street level. That building burned and there is now a Bank of America AMT on this corner. Further down were The Russell Funeral Home and Balcom's Texaco. An artist at the postcard publisher removed the overhead trolley and utility wires and poles – which were there at the time – but are now gone. An enlarged view of this postcard can be seen in The Hancock Tavern. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Sad Over Stolen Swing

To the persons who took my two-seater swing from my front lawn, I hope your grandmother enjoys it as much as I did.

If, however, you stole it to sell it, may God have mercy on you.

I was looking forward to the cool days of September so I could enjoy sitting out frequently once more.

Did any neighbor's hear/see a truck? It's the only way it could have been transported.

58th Annual Parade Scheduled Sunday, Nov. 28

'Christmas Around The World' Theme for Christmas Parade

The 58th annual Quincy Christmas Parade will be held Sunday, Nov. 28 stepping off at 12:30 p.m. in Quincy Center.

Rain date is Sunday, Dec. 5.

This year's parade theme is "Christmas Around the World." The winning theme was submitted by Karly Heine of South Weymouth, originally from Braintree.

This was the 42nd year the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Committee invited the public to submit entries for the parade theme.

The theme was selected by the Festival Committee among numerous entries received. "As always, it is never an easy decision," said Parade Chairman Jack Nigro.

"Christmas Around the World" is one that offers a wide scope of imagination for the float builders," Nigro added.

Heine said she has watched the parade since she was young. "I was able to participate in the parade through work representing Quincy Credit Union for the past four years. I joined the QCU Parade Group because I love to be involved in the planning and creation of our float.

"I've participated as the following characters in past parades: Raggedy Andy, Christmas Mouse, Charlie Brown and Big Bird. I've submitted themes in years past hoping to bring my creativity and ideas to the entire.

"This year was my year," Heine added.

Karly will ride in a convertible along the three-mile parade route and will receive a gift of appreciation from the Christmas Festival Committee.

"We thank everyone who participated in the theme contest and we seek your future involvement as the Christmas Festival Committee sets its sights to the 59th annual Christmas Parade," Nigro said.

At South Shore Conservatory

James Harborg Participates In Summer Music Festival

Quincy student James Hagborg recently participated in South Shore Conservatory's 2010 Summer Music Festival.

Under the direction of Music Director Malcolm Rowell, Program Directer Ed Sorrentino, and guest instructors and conductors, students from the South Shore and beyond were part of a program with a dual goal: playing music for the joy of playing while also learning and perfecting technical skills.

According to Sorrentino, "The culture of Summer Music Festival is not typical of a summer day program. It is about encouraging the complete student. We work extensively on technical skills, but we also focus on playing what is emotionally pleasing. It's all about playing from the heart. We know our approach resonates with the kids because we see it every day in their commitment to the music and in the camaraderie of being with like-minded student musicians."

The Conservatory's Summer Music Festival allows woodwind, brass and percussion students to participate in up to three ensembles (by age and ability) as well as master classes. The program focuses on group rehearsals and musicianship workshops that expose students to improvisation, composition and creative movement while allowing them to enhance their listening skills, technical abilities and overall musical knowledge. The Conservatory's Hingham campus provides state-of-the-art rehearsal and performance space (the Jane Carr Amphitheater) that creates a professional atmosphere in which students can build musical confidence before performing in final concerts that are open to the public.

Hagborg was a member of the Summer Wind Ensemble.

To Further Military Education At Norwich University

William Tinney Awarded Agnitti Scholarship

By JOE REARDON

For as long as he can remember, Quincy's William Tinney has dreamed of a career in the military with the ultimate hope of being able to defend his country somewhere down the line as a proud member of the Marine Corps.

Tinney spent two years at Archbishop Williams before transferring to the Fishburne Military School in Waynesboro, VA, for his junior and senior years. He flourished at Fishburne where he emerged as a true leader. He captained both the football and lacrosse teams, while maturing and developing discipline that can only help him in his next step in his road to the military.

Tinney leaves this week to begin his collegiate and further military education at prestigious Norwich University.

Last week, his hard work at both Archbishop Williams and Fishburne were recognized when he was awarded the Agnitti Book Scholarship from local businessman Tony Agnitti.

Agnitti, himself, a 1984 graduate of Norwich, has awarded more than 60 students the scholarship over the course of 20 years. The scholarship is presented to a South Shore resident attending Norwich intending to have a military career with the intention of becoming an officer.

Agnitti has been involved with the Norwich community since his graduation and said Tinney was a solid choice for the award. "He's a fine young man who has proven himself academically," said Agnitti. "I look forward to putting lieutenant bars on his shoulders in four years."

Tinney, who plans to double major in Criminal Justice and Psychology, has little doubt he can handle the tough, regimental routine of a military school. At Fishburne, he was up at 6 am sharp, every morning, prepared his room for inspection and ate breakfast in the mess hall before heading off to a day filled with classes, military training and football and lacrosse practice. Tinney intends to play both sports at Norwich as well.

"It's definitely prepared me for life," said Tinney of his two years at Fishburne. "If I want something, I go after it."

William is another member of the Tinney family to seek a career in the military. His father, William Wright, was a staff sergeant in the Marine Corps. Wright passed away three years ago, but was proud of his son's desire to some day defend his country.

"He thought it was great and he really supported me," said Tinney. "He taught me to respect people, be an honorable guy and live with integrity."

Tinney's uncle, Dan Tinney, who was a sergeant in the U.S Army, is both excited for and proud of his nephew. "I think it's a good thing for him," Tinney said. "Norwich prides itself on the soldier/citizenship concept. I appreciate that more than the full fledge military schools.

"He decided he wanted to attend a military school. He went there (Fishburne) and really did well. He really took it upon himself to make his own achievements."

Tinney is especially looking forward to going to school closer to home and developing "life-long friends" with the other students he meets at Norwich. "The camaraderie is what I'm really looking forward to," he said.

Along with Fishburne, Archbishop Williams provided a strong foundation for Tinney's future. "I'm glad I went to Archbishop Williams," he said. "It helped me out. It prepared me academically."

Property Owners Will Be Billed

New Charges Aimed At Reducing False Alarms

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City Council's passage last week of a cost recovery plan for fire department expenses overshadowed a second unanimous vote which allows the city to bill property owners for false alarms.

Councillors voted unanimously to approve all the charges at their Aug. 16 meeting.

Under the amended city code, property owners will now be charged for false alarms due to mechanical failure, malfunction, improper installation, negligence or malice.

The charges will kick in after the second false alarm in each year.

JOSEPH BARRON

Fire Department Chief Joseph Barron said Monday the false alarm charges are aimed at the owners of large apartment buildings where the alarm system has been neglected, causing multiple, but wasted and fruitless trips by firefighters.

"Our focus is on larger occupancies," Barron said, explaining that, some building owners ignore the false alarms and despite repeated system malfunctions, "The problem doesn't get fixed."

Barron said this ordinance is "not meant to be a revenue generator," but rather the department's goal is to keep firefighters and the equipment ready for real emergencies at all times.

Under the amendment, property owners will be warned with no charge for the first two calls in a year, charged $100 for the third call and $200 for the fourth and all subsequent calls.

A similar ordinance is already in effect in Braintree, according to Barron.

Orchestra Concert, Author Book Signing Tonight At Adams National Historical Park

The Boston Landmark Orchestra will perform classical gems, including Beethoven's Symphony No. 1, Haydn's Symphony No. 88 and Prokofiev's Symphony No. 1, also known as the "Classical Symphony," today (Thursday) at the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., at 7 p.m.

In the event of rainy weather, the concert will be held at North Quincy High School.

Conductor and artistic director Charles Ansbacher and guest conductor Bruce Hangen, will lead the Boston Landmarks Orchestra at its Quincy performance.

Marian Carlson, a children's writer, will also be on hand to autograph her new illustrated book, "John Adams: the Voice Heard 'Round the World,'" which includes text she originally wrote for the orchestra's 2008 children's commission of the same name. The book signing will begin at 5 p.m.

This summer marks the ninth season that the Boston Landmarks orchestra has partnered with the National Park Service and the Adams Historical Park to bring orchestral music to Quincy. The State Street Foundation is sponsoring this year's event.

Councillors Seek Citywide Coastal Improvement Plan

chase buoys for Mound and Avalon Beaches.

Councillor John Keenan questioned whether a citywide waterfront study would find those buoys to be the city's most pressing waterfront need at this time.

Instead, Ward 2 Councillor Margaret Laforest, Councillor Keenan and other councilors recommended a waterfront commission that could prioritize the coastal problems and potential, develop proposals that could buff up neglected areas, tackle safety issues for swimmers and boaters alike, protect the natural resources along the coastline, and include a financing proposal.

Laforest said the waterfront should be approached "holistically, instead of area by area. We have a lot of problems on the waterfront...."

As one example, Laforest cited the neglect of the city's only public landing in Houghs Neck where the solid wood walkway of the ramp hides the rot of the pilings below and nearby cement stairs deteriorate along with the rusted remains of a railing.

"We keep putting Band-Aids on it," said Laforest

"We need a long-term strategy," said Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, suggesting that a Harbor Use Commission could develop a plan and outline the financing.

Under the current patchwork system, Gutro said, "We're pitting neighborhood against neighborhood."

Similarly, Councillor Keenan said waterfront issues should be addressed "as a citywide issue" while Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said it's "important to have a planning dialogue."

Councillors spoke as the council prepared to vote on Police Chief Paul Keenan's request for a $35,000 transfer from the Waterfront Improvement Fund.

Of that sum, $26,000 will be used for maintenance of boats and equipment and $9000 for buoys to protect swimmers at Avalon and Mound Beaches.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi told councillors the need for the buoys at the beaches was urgent to protect swimmers from boaters as "two yacht clubs abut those beaches."

"We've been very, very fortunate not to have had a problem especially with young swimmers," said Raymondi.

"We're halfway through August," Councillor Keenan said, noting that summer is nearly over, other efforts could protect those swimmers for the short-run while a citywide plan is developed.

"We will have protection no matter how you vote," said Councillor Keenan while encouraging fellow councillors to postpone action on the $9000 until a full plan is developed.

Keenan and Councillor Brian McNamee supported the delay, but the majority rejected Councillor Keenan's amendment to postpone the $9000 purchase and the $35,000 transfer was approved by a unanimous vote.

After the meeting, Laforest said that the council sponsored a resolution for a citywide coastal commission and study several months ago and she hopes the commission will be in place this fall with a plan by spring.

Laforest believes a commission of seven persons which includes members of the boating community, recreational users, and waterfront residents could offer the city an outline for the future.

Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said Tuesday the mayor is considering the proposal for a commission, but it is still under review.
